Russia Seeks Canada's Help

KOSYGIN . . . meeting

TRUDEAU . . . in Moscow

By JOHN MIKA
Times Ottawa Bureau

MOSCOW — Russia wants Canadian help in developing the technology for building giant-size gas pipelines for Arctic use and also would like to see Canadian businessmen develop services and factories in the U.S.S.R.

These were two areas of mutual interest explored by Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin and Prime Minister Trudeau in their first discussion here today.

Canadian participants at the meeting later told reporters that Kosygin's opening statement during the 2¾-hour talks raised the desirability of Canadian-Soviet co-operation in overcoming shared problems like transport of gas and oil in permafrost areas.

He said Russia was well advanced toward building outsize pipe far larger than anything being developed in the U.S. and Canadian exchange of information under the technological and industrial applications agreement signed here by the two countries in January would be welcomed.

The Canadian mission in January expressed great interest in Russian work towards developing a 96-inch pipe for natural gas and Kosygin's reference to such work indicates the Russians will exchange information on this subject.

The Canadian contribution likely would be in the field of large pipeline compressor pump in technology in which it is recognizably ahead of the Soviets.

The sources said that Kosygin did not mention oil pipeline technology for permafrost conditions but this likely would be involved in swapping information.

The Russians have only begun to lay pipe in permafrost which covers a much smaller proportion of their Arctic region compared with Canada — and are known to have an experimental test loop in Siberia much bigger than the Canadian test pipeline in Inuvik.

They also recently completed a 12-inch and a 20-inch oil pipeline in the permafrost of the Yakustk area, although they claim they still are novices.

A Canadian Gas Association private mission went to Russia last July hoping to examine the permafrost oil lines but instead were only shown the projected route along the River Ob of a new 56-inch natural gas pipeline which would be the biggest built so far. However, they were keenly interested in the work going on for designing a 96-inch pipe.

Canadian Bechtel Ltd. has begun discussions directly with the Soviet ministry of gas which supervises design and construction of all pipelines in the U.S.S.R. They have reported U.S.S.R. permafrost pipeline knowledge is very advanced.

Cooper-Bessemer Canadian Ltd. has opened negotiations for sale of large pipeline compressors to the Soviets and Trans-Canada Pipe Lines has begun talks towards a deal for designing some phases of oil and gas pipeline construction in Russia.

Kosygin today also stressed that Russia would like to see Canadian private companies as well as the government consider opportunities to balance trade between the two countries which is lopsidedly in favor of Canada. In the past five years, largely as a result of wheat sales, Canada exported some $15 billion to Russia while only importing $70 million.

The sources said the Soviet premier mentioned that it would be helpful if Canadian business set up plants in Russia with the capital investment paid off through exports. The Fiat company recently agreed to build an auto factory in Russia which would be paid for through Soviet exports.

The goods-for-factories arrangements undoubtedly would need Ottawa co-operation but the Soviet stress on the idea bodes well for a greatly intensified willingness by Moscow to make deals with private businessmen which has been frowned on in the past.

Canadian sources pointed out the Kremlin now is also interested in the services of Canadian companies as well as capital goods and equipment.

Foremost Industries Ltd. of Calgary last year made a breakthrough when it sold 50 large off-highway tracked vehicles for $5.3 million to Machine Import of Moscow which will be used in building a natural gas pipeline from Russia to feed Italy.

The Soviets now are actively negotiating for purchase of two miniature submarines, for $3 million, from International Hydrodynamics Ltd. of Vancouver.

Because of Canadian leadership in pulp and paper technology, the Soviets specified that a Canadian consultant must be used by a French consortium which has been asked to build a 1,600-tons-daily pulp mill at Ust Ilimsk with French government credits.

KOSYGIN'S DAUGHTER ESCORTS MARGARET

She was shown through the Tretyakov art gallery by gallery director Polikarp Lebedev, expressing particular interest in icons — mosaics of sacred personages — and late 19th and early 20th-century paintings by Soviet artists Levitan and Serov.

U.S. Senate Moves To Halt Rail Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate labor committee approved 13 to 1 today a resolution designed to halt, until Oct. 1, the United States-wide rail strike called by the signalman's union.

The committee acted as the strike sent mounting ripples of paralysis through much of the U.S. economy for the second day and posed the threat of hitting thousands of Canadian auto workers unless it is settled soon.

A spokesman for Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. said production will cease by the end of the week if the strike continues to cut the flow of U.S. parts.

A shutdown of Ford plants at Talbotville, Oakville, Windsor and Niagrara Falls would afect 13,000 autoworkers.

The Kellogg Co. of Battle Creek shut down today idling some 3,000 employees in Michigan and the Quaker Oats Co. told 500 employees at its Cedar Rapids, Iowa, plant not to report due to rail strike.

Some 300,000 commuters awoke to another day's scramble for alternative transportation — usually buses or car pools — and the post office department invoked contingency plans to keep the mail moving.

Produce and citrus growers in Texas and Florida watched as tons of their perishable products piled up on rail sidings and in terminals.

Sponsors of the Senate resolution said they hoped it could clear the Senate in a few hours and then be reconciled later in the day with House of Represenatives legislation, and sent on to President Nixon.

The committee included in its resolution an approximate 17 per cent wage increase for the 13,000 members of the signalmen's union.

The president had proposed a simple extension of the no-strike period to July 1 without any wage increase.

But members of the Senate labor committee decided that the men should receive an interim wage increase since they had been working 22 months without one. The wage increase included in the committee's resolution covers the first three steps of a wage package recommended by an emergency board.

New Slide Probed

CASSELMAN, Ont. (CP) — Provincial geologists and engineers started examinations today along the South Nation River where banks collapsed Monday, sliding hundreds of tons of earth into the riverbed.

Canada to Protest B.C. Boat Chase

SECORD . . . flees Americans

(Times News Services)

VANCOUVER — The Canadian government will protest to American authorities about harassment of a Canadian fishing vessel for 12 hours Sunday on the northern B.C. coast.

Maurice Houghton, chief of conservation at the federal isheries branch here, said the Canadian halibut vessel Anthony J. was fishing in Canadian waters — below the B.C.-Alaska boundary in the northern part of the Dixon Enfrance — "when the U.S. Coast Guard moved in and tried to superimpose their authority in an area that was out of their jurisdiction."

'Serious Incident'

The fisheries officer also said the cutter radioed the Anthony J and Canadian fisheries officials that they were considering firing across the bow of the fishboat.

"This is quite a serious international incident," said Houghton.

"The American vessel was illegally in Canadian waters and was not authorized to perform as it did," he said.

"We are concerned that a U.S. warship would come into Canadian waters like this."

A spokesman for the federal fisheries department in Ottawa said the department is investigating details of the complaint, but that it appears the vessel was in Canadian waters and a protest will be launched.

Coast guard authorities at Ketchikan and Juneau, Alaska's capital, refused to enlarge on official reports of the incident and said the U.S. state department is looking into the matter.

A U.S. Coast Guard spokesman reported Monday that the Canadian vessel was spotted in waters near Cape Chacon at Prince of Wales Island within 2½ miles of U.S. territory, off the Alaska Panhandle.

Well-Known Fishing Family

The skipper of the Cape Romain ordered the Anthony J. to follow it into Ketchikan, Alaska. The Anthony J.'s captain, Jack Secord, indicated he would comply but suddenly cut his fishing gear and steamed toward Prince Rupert.

The coast guard's attempt to capture Anthony J. was hampered by another Canadian fishing vessel, the Masset Maid, which made several passes within 50 yards of the cutter.

The Secord brothers—Jack, Denver, Cartwright and Richie are a well-known commercial fishing family from the Vancouver area.

Cartwright was skippering the seiner Roselinde and Richie the Nanceda in the same area at the time of the incident. Denver is skipper of the Secord J, currently fishing on the east coast.

DRUG NET CLOSES ON 59 IN VANCOUVER

VANCOUVER (CP) — City police and RCMP began a roundup here today of 59 persons named on warrants as suspected drug traffickers.

By 9 a.m., 11 suspects had been arrested as a result of information gathered during four months of separate undercover operations by both police forces.

U.S. Investment In CDC Urged

OTTAWA (CP) — The executive council of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce says the proposed new Canada Development Corp., a government planned investment company, should not be too exclusively Canadian.

A council submission today to the Commons finance committee says rules should permit up to one-quarter of the corporation's shares to be owned by non-Canadians.

"The corporation should also follow a policy of joint ownership with major foreign companies rather than a policy of Canadian exclusivity.

The government has said that one aim of the new corporation would be to promote Canadian ownership of Canadian industry.

Financed at first by federal funds, corporation shares eventually would be offered for sale to the general Canadian public.

The Canadian Chamber of Commerce opposed the whole idea of such a corporation in a policy statement last September.

But since the government introduced legislation anyway in January, the chamber's executive drew up a 24-page booklet of criticism and proposed changes for presentation to the finance committee.

B.C. TRUSTEES GET SCHOOL DRESS ROW

A proposal that school dress be left up to the discretion of parents has been sent to the British Columbia School Trustees' Association by the Greater Victoria School Board.

Present policy in the Victoria area gives the responsibility for rules on school dress to principals.

The issue was raised by trustee Peter Bunn who said he felt it was wrong for a principal to tell mothers what clothes to buy their children to wear to school.

In other business, school board referred to committee a proposal to ban the strap in the Greater Victoria school district. See Page 7.

4 Members of Family Drown Off Vesuvius

Searchers on Salt Spring Island were today still looking for a Duncan man whose wife and two children died of exposure after their small boat swamped Sunday in rough seas off Vesuvius Bay.

They identified the mother as Yuet Han Patsy Salter, 32, of 3324 Gibbons Road. The children are a son, Wai Kwok Fong, 10, and a daughter, Wai Sze Fong, 11.

The bodies were found about 7:30 a.m. Monday, washed up on the shore in Vesuvius Bay, by Mrs. Ruth Heineky, of Goodrich Street, who was out for a walk.

All three were wearing lifejackets. Their 12-foot clinker-built boat, powered by an outboard, was upside down 75 yards away.

INQUIRY

At the preliminary inquiry held Monday night Ganges coroner Miles Acheson determined the three had died of exposure.

It is thought the accident occurred Sunday night as the family was returning to Duncan.

COMPANIES GOING BROKE; PEOPLE RICH

Ibo Soothsayer Beats Soccer Pools

By GODWIN IRONKWE

ENUGU, Nigeria (Reuter) — Amazingly accurate forecasts by an Ibo soothsayer have thrown soccer pools companies here into a turmoil as more and more people win big money prizes on the basis of his predictions.

It was not certain whether the soothsayer, Ubani O. Ubani, a 41-year-old schoolteacher, is really a genius or just a plain opportunist. Others are selling their meagre property to raise betting stakes.

At present only Ubani really knows what he is. And he has gone into hiding as a storm of inquiry blows around east central state, home of the Ibo tribe, impoverished by Nigeria's 37-month-long civil war.

But from his hideout he did tell a reporter:

He did not say who "their" was and seemed to imply some kind of spiritual power.

Either way, he has brought a financial boost to thousands and a major headache to the soccer pools companies.

The sudden rise to fame of Ubani, who gave up schoolteaching to become a pools' agent, began only in March when he forecast correctly five drawn matches for a fixed-odds bet on the pools coupons on which people place their bets.

He placed the forecast for all to see on a notice board in front of his one-room apartment office in a city suburb.

At this stage only a few people used the forecast to stake their bets. But they won big dividends.

For two more weeks running, Ubani's forecasts were stunningly accurate and the news spread quickly round the state.

People sold their clothes, bicycles, cars and anything handy to raise money for a stake in the "magic forecast."

For the fourth week running, his forecast was right on target and pools experts said that nearly $1.3 million was won, creating financial difficulties for the smaller pools companies.

Some announced they were withholding payments on the grounds of possible "irregularities."

A potentially explosive crisis loomed and anti-riot police were brought into Enugu to disperse angry mobs trying to attack pools offices. Most betting houses were given guards.

At the height of the crisis, Ubani disappeared from his home and still is in hiding, visited only by relations and close friends.

From the hideout, Ubani, who says he never bets himself, said: "I am set to provide funds to rehabilitate the Ibos."

Chanters March Toward Lava Flow

SANT'ALFIO, Sicily (Reuter) — About 2,000 Sicilian villagers, led by a parish priest carrying relics of their patron saints, marched today in procession up Mount Etna to a huge, moving mass of lava threatening to engulf their homes.

The cries of wailing women drowned the rumbling of the black mass of volcanic rock as Rev. Francesco Parisi held up the reliquary and called on the saints to halt the lava in its tracks.

The villagers, chanting the rosary, wound their way through terraced vineyards about two miles from this prosperous farming village until they reached the smoking column of advancing lava.

As they left the village, a new explosion roared out from high on the mountain peak, sending a thick black column of smoke and ashes pouring 4,500 feet into the air.

The lava is still about two miles directly above Sant'Alfio, and appears to be losing momentum, but the villagers believe only a miracle can save their homes.

Huge chunks of blazing rock slid forward, rumbling into the grass and setting it ablaze, as the priest shouted out: "Lord, look at this faith and bless this land of ours, our villagers, our souls."

BOUCHETTE, Que (CP) — Two more cases of typhoid fever have been confirmed by doctors in this Gatineau valley village of 300 and five other Bouchette residents suffering from symptoms of the disease have been admitted to hospitals in nearby Hull and Maniwaki.

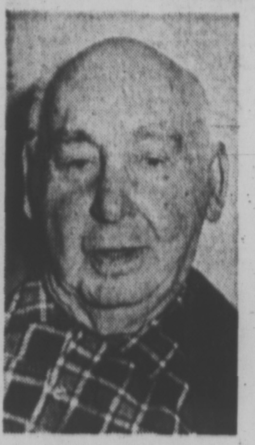
Hijack Bid Fails

MALMOE, Sweden (Reuter) — An unidentified black U.S. Army deserter was in custody here today after an attempt to hijack a passenger jet from Malmoe airport to the United States via Stockholm or Copenhagen Monday night.

Rest Home Guests Caught In Middle

"They might as well shoot me, if they are going to ask me to leave here," said Charles Howard one of the 300 rest home guests caught in the middle of the dispute between rest home operators and the B.C. government.

Howard, 83 years old, has lived at Postles Manor on Heywood Avenue for the past 11 years. Five of the 28 guests face possible eviction from the cosy, homelike Postles Manor, facing Beacon Hill Park.



MILLER
. . . hard on us

Before settling down at Postles Manor, Howard had moved through 12 different places. "One place that I stayed in one night was so bad that I still haven't gotten over it," he said.

THEIR JOB

According to Howard the maximum sum of $174 paid by the provincial government to the rest homes for welfare guests, is insufficient. "The government should pay more; that's their job."

"I can't say that the rest home operators are being unfair, but they're being hard on us," said Jim Miller another welfare guest.

"I have a nice room overlooking the park and good food here. I had planned on staying here for the rest of my life. If they ask me to leave I have no idea where I will go."

HOWARD
. . . like shooting me

"I don't give them a great deal of trouble. Of the three years I've been here, I've paid my own way for the first two years."

Mrs. Postle, operator of the rest home claims that the sum paid by the B.C. government is insufficient. Despite the boost of the rate to $174, she still only receives $150 per patient per month.

RARE BIRD CLARA LAYS GREEN EGGS

PURLEIGH, England (AP) — Chicken farmer Roy Smith has a rare bird named Clara. She lays green eggs.

Scientists say the black-speckled hen coule be a genetic throwback to an ancient breed of chicken called the Arancuna, which descended from prehistoric hens.

Several are reported to have reached shore from Spanish Armada galleons sunk in the English Channel in an attempted invasion of England in the early 16th century.

. . . CANADA PROTESTS

Mr. Houghton said his department had "directed our Canadian vessel not to voluntarily proceed to Alaska but to land at a Canadian port."

The coast guard said after the Anthony J. steamed into Canadian waters at Prince Rupert, the Massey Maid put into Nichols Bay near Ketchikan and the coast guard escorted it back to Canadian waters.

The coast guard spokesman said the Cape Romain broke off the chase after being told by the state department to avoid any overt action.

But Mr. Houghton said "the cutter not only tried to intimidate our vessel but proceeded to pursue it for 12 hours to Triple Islands just outside of Prince Rupert."

Captain Secord later said he had a U.S. chart showing he was in Canadian waters.

He said the coast guard vessel got close enough to tell him he was relieved of his command— but he didn't act on that.

Instead, he made contact with his company, the Canadian Fishing Co. of Vancouver, and fisheries officials.

Mr. Houghton said the international boundary was established "several years ago and all waters south of that boundary are Canadian waters.

"But the Americans haven't accepted that," he said. "They say the line only divides the land, not water."

RECALLS 1970 INCIDENT

The incident occurred near the point where the coast guard boarded the Canadian fishing vessel Clipper II in September, 1970. The catch aboard the ship was impounded and the captain paid an out-of-court settlement before being released.

Norm Christensen, vice-president of Canadian Fishing, said Captain Secord doesn't want to return to the area without an escort and has asked the federal fisheries department to help recover the $2,000 worth of equipment.

RCMP and fisheries patrol vessels met the Anthony J and escorted the fishboat to Prince Rupert, Mr. Christensen said. Before the chase ended, the Americans had pursued Captain Secord about 40 miles into Canadian waters.

"I can imagine he was very nervous because they had their guns on him, but there were no shots fired," Mr.

All Police Will Seek Wage Parity

VANCOUVER (CP) — Most municipal police officers in British Columbia will seek wage parity with Vancouver policemen in contract negotiations this year, Ernie Doyle, president of the B.C. Federation of Peace Officers, said Monday.

An arbitrator Saturday awarded Vancouver police officers a 15-per-cent wage increase, bringing the basic first-class constable's salary to $885 a month.

Constable Doyle, a member of the police force in Delta municipality, said the strongest demands will come from Vancouver Island forces, which he said are considerably behind Vancouver in wages.

"A bullet is just as hard over there as it is here," he said.

Ken Horseman, president of the Victoria Policemen's Union, said he thought the Vancouver settlement was reasonable, but not exceptional.

Victoria wages are extremely low, he said, and as of July 1 they will be $173 a month behind Vancouver.

Most B.C. municipalities are policed by the RCMP but there are municipal police forces in some communities on the island and lower mainland, and in Nelson.

Rites Held For Former Victorian

Funeral services were held recently in Prince George for former Victorian Philip E. Bishop, 49, regional construction engineer for the provincial highways department at the time of his death.

Educated at South Park and Victoria high schools, Bishop studied engineering at the University of British Columbia until he joined the Royal Canadian Air Force during the Second World War.

He joined the highways department in 1945, working out of Princeton, Smithers, Burns Lake and Penticton before going to Prince George.

He is survived by his wife, Norma, and daughter, Judy, both living at home; two sons, John of Vancouver and Michael of Dawson Creek; three brothers, Charles of Murrayville, B.C., Rev. Ernest Bishop of Saskatoon and George of Victoria.

There are also two sisters, Mrs. G. J. (Dorothy) Margison of Victoria and Mrs. G. M. (Joyce) Newman of West Vancouver.

Low Income Won't Picket $25 Ball

The Victoria Low Income Group executive has decided not to picket the Victoria Days inaugural ball Friday at The Empress.

The group had considered picketing because it feels the $25-a-couple price discriminates against the poor peole. But president Walter Olszewski said today the executive decided it was not the right time to picket.

"We just can't afford to get the type of publicity we would get. The people in Victoria do not look kindly on all the things we do, and we feel this is just not the right time to picket."

UBC Team To Monitor Utah Dumping

The University of British Columbia has been selected by Utah Construction and Mining Company to monitor effluent from the company's copper mine near Port Hardy.

W. N. Venables, director of the pollution control branch, said today he has approved the choice as well as the proposed monitoring program.

Under terms of a PCB permit allowing Utah to dump 9.3 million gallons of effluent daily into Rupert Inlet, the company must bear the costs — estimated at $60,000 annualy — of the monitoring program.

INDEPENDENT TEAMS

The independent monitoring team consists of physical, chemical and biological oceanographers, geologists, mineral processing and mining engineers.

J. B. Evans, head of the department of mineral engineering at UBC, will coordinate the team, which began preliminary studies in March.

The program "is designed to determine natural physical, chemical and biological variations in Rupert Inlet and related waters prior to mine-mill discharge and to equate these with actual conditions upon introduction of the mine effluent."

The permit to discharge effluent was issued Jan. 20 after strong protest from environmental groups concerned about the effect of the effluent on Rupert Inlet. Venables said today the UBC studies will be submitted to the PCB and could be the basis for tougher standards which could be imposed on Utah under its permit.

3 Injured In City Accidents

Two-year-old Philip Damon Welch, 236 Crease, suffered a fractured skull when hit by a car in front of his house Monday night. The car was driven by Evelyn Sanders, 62, of 195 Crease, police said.

An accident at the intersection of Skinner and Craigflower at 1:15 a.m. sent two people to hospital. Both are in good condition.

Kenneth C. McCuaig, 836 Carrie St., suffered a broken wrist and head and facial cuts, while Janet Ellis, 19, of 936 Colville, was cut around the face.

The accident occurred after McCuaig's car, travelling east on Craigflower, went out of control and crossed to the other side of the street, struck a traffic control sign and then collided with a parked car.

CAPITAL SCENE

The Victoria Horticultural Society will meet Tuesday, June 1, at 8:30 p.m. in the Inn, 1528 Cook. Eric Billington, former president of the Canadian Rose Society, will speak on the cultivation and care of roses. Miss Doris Page will hold a question and answer session.

Electricians At Hydro May Strike

Some 2,000 electrical workers employed by B.C. Hydro are prepared to serve strike notice if no wage offer is made today, an official of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers said this morning.

Douglas Cronk, business agent for Local 258 of the union, said Hydro officials were meeting mediator Clark Gilmour this morning and the union would meet Gilmour this afternoon. Strike notice would depend on what happens this afternoon, he said.

Cronk said B.C. Hydro has not made a wage offer during negotiations even though the crown corporation called for the services of a mediation officer.

Wages and job security are the main issues, he said.

On wages, the union is seeking a 29½ per cent increase over two years. Journeyman lineman rate now is $5.39 an hour, with other rates above and below this.

Cronk said the rate for private line contractors will be $6.57 this fall.

On job security, he said the union wants a guarantee that its members will not be laid off as a result of B.C. Hydro contracting out work.

He said there never was a problem in the past, but in the last year B.C. Hydro has accelerated its use of non-union contractors which could lead to redundancies among Hydro employees. Hydro had also decided 50 per cent of capital expansion in the distribution division should go to contract "which could be union or otherwise and could create redundancies," he said.

Sadat Orders Arrest Of Former Ministers

CAIRO (CP) — Former vice-president Aly Sabry and other former high-ranking officials accused of plotting to overthrow President Anwar Sadat were taken to jail at dawn today and may soon face public trial, informed sources reported.

Sabry, six former cabinet ministers and others ousted last week had been under house arrest since Sadat launched his purge last Thursday.

The sources said details of the plot would be made public when the investigation now under way is complete.

Meanwhile, they gave this preview of the plans Sadat's opponents had made:

Labib Shukair, the Speaker of the National Assembly, was to be installed as figurehead president. Sabry, considered Moscow's man in the Egyptian hierarchy and a man of considerable unpopularity, was to boss the Arab Socialist Union, the country's only political party.

Interior Minister Sharawi Gomaa, whose ministry controls the police, had deployed his men throughout Cairo with instructions to use force if necessary to keep order once Sadat was out of the way.

LINES TAPPED

The presence of Lt.-Gen. Mohamed Fawzi, the war minister, was supposed to ensure the army's support.

The investigating commission looking into the conspiracy has found that at least 11,000 telephone lines were tapped by departments controlled by Interior Minister Gomaa, Cairo newspapers reported.

First Game To Fischer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bobby Fischer of New York won the opening game of his 10-game match against Mark Taimanov of the Soviet Union Monday when the Russian grandmaster resigned without further play.

The game had been adjourned Sunday night with the U.S. grandmaster holding a commanding position after the 40th move in the first game of the quarter-final elimination match to decide a challenger for the current world champion, Boris Spassky of Russia.

TIP-TOE HAPPY TINY TIM was overjoyed with Heather Cownden's presentation of tulips, before his Monday night performance. The presentation was especially significant to Tiny, as he and his wife Vicki have just named their daughter, Tulip. Tiny Tim will give performances today at 4:30 p.m. and 10 p.m. in the Memorial Arena.

Just Tiny Tim and I . . . In Back Seat of the Car

By SALLY GLOVER

Tiny Tim is a different man in the back seat of a car than he is at a press conference.

Hair blowing in his eyes, brown shopping bag in his hands, and head bowed he disembarked from the Air Canada Viscount.

He was a little tired makeup had run onto his collar and tie, but he was happy. Happy and nervous.

He was introduced and in a slightly high voice said, smiling, "Oh . . . hello." Then he was escorted into the back seat — with me.

That's all — just Tiny Tim, (who isn't so tiny), his two ukuleles—one of which he had broken when he stepped on it getting out of the shower—and me.

Speaking slowly, deliberately and dramatically, with eyes rolling to the back of his head every time he paused, he talked. As a matter of fact I rarely got a world in edgewise.

His hair, naturally streaked with grey fell in unkempt wringlets on his shoulders and mine. "Yes I wash and rinse it all the time . . . Johnson's baby shampoo."

As he talked of Viki and "the blessed event," he swooned and again rolled his eyes. Although he was affected somewhat in his speech and mannerisms, I thought him fairly sincere.

He was worried about his reception from Victorians and he seemed greatly relieved to hear I had been impressed with his performance at the Isle of Wight last August.

"Oh I hope they like me, I hope so," he said wringing his hands together. "Tell them I'll sign as many autographs as they want, I'll always sign autographs."

The "blessed event" (the birth of his daughter) had touched him deeply and he again sighed as he remembered he had to call "his darling," as he does every night. He was a little concerned about the fact that Vicki "didn't want to go through all that pain" again and he doesn't believe in birth control.

Later at the press conference, he entered in similar garb — brown suede sneakers with striped laces, brown and orange socks, black pants, brown corduroy jacket, blue shirt and green tie; shy at first, but he came on strong. He was quick to answer questions and he loved every minute of it.

Toronto Maple Leafs are still tops as far as he's concerned, but he feels "Montreal has the stronger club, but I think Chicago's going to win it because I told people that if they won the first two games at home, they would take it all."

He thinks stronger law enforcement in the U.S. would be a partial answer to the drug problem and would help end the war. But it's permissiveness and quitting that is the crux of our basic problems.

Reminiscing is his favorite pastime, he loves the zeal of youth and never thinks about his age.

If Tiny's manager hadn't been around, he would have stayed talking and laughing for hours. But his fans were waiting at the Jaycee Fair at Memorial Arena.

WELCOME TO THE FAIR

A Cutey Named Cindy Was First

By IAN HAMILTON

Long before opening ceremonies at the Jaycee Centennial '71 Fair Monday, a curly-haired cutey named Cindy Willet, 7, of 940 Queens Ave., unofficially opened festivities by button-holing a celebrity.

Somebody had told her Tiny Tim was coming to the fair and, like women everywhere, there was no way she was not going to get her man.

Stationing herself in the Memorial Arena corridor where she thought he was to appear, she sidled up to ask questions of everyone in the record-breaking crowd of 15,000 within earshot.

HER HERO

"What's he look like? When's he coming?" she asked.

When her hero in baggy pants finally marched in through a side entrance for his afternoon show, she formed a shy, but sure, one-woman welcoming committee.

"Hi Tiny Tim."

"Hi!" he replied, stopping. "Hi pet!"

"Gee," she said later, "aren't fairs grand?"

Welcome citizens to the 25th annual Jaycee Fair.

Beginning Monday and continuing for a week at the fairgrounds, there would appear to be something for everybody. Organizers don't guarantee you'll meet a celebrity on a personal level, but the do promise you'll get your money's worth.

Even though Norman McLaren, chairman of the fair committee doesn't like competing with past chairman for cliche "best fair yet" quotes, he does point out that Monday's opening gate was the greatest in history.

He sent his accounting people home at 3 a.m. bone-tired from tabulating figures and settled for an approximate crowd total of 15,000.

Also, he does point out that exhibitors have been lauding this year's efforts. Displays, from a Saanich police department effort to a mobile armed forces exhibit, are better than those of other years, he maintains.

Provincial secretary Laurie Wallace, the man in charge of Centennial programs for the province, officially opened the fair but the grounds were opened to the public several hours earlier.

4-H DISPLAYS

Helping him were Miss Victoria 1970, Debra McCloy, fair chairman McClaren and the HMCS Naden Band.

As well as a midway, daily 4-H competition and the numerous displays, highlights included a Sweet Sixteen fashion show and preliminaries to the Miss Victoria contest.

Slight acoustical problems in the arena failed to mar the singing of Kim Hughes, and a recitation by Susan K. Jones, both students at Oak Bay Secondary.

WINNERS

Quiz winners were Lorraine Brooks, Sherri Adams, Phillip Cuthbert (junior); Laura Croll, Wendy Calander, Darrell Papuschak (intermediate); and Marilyn Looy, Wayne Papuschak and Bobbie Calnan (senior).

Today's highlights include performances by Tiny Tim at 4:30 p.m. and 10 p.m. in the arena, a stretch and sew fashion show and more Miss Victoria preliminaries.

Rich Little takes over the arena stage Wednesday and Thursday, with Johnny Paulo and the Harmonicats appearing Friday to Monday.

Wednesday is kids' day and all children will be admitted free before 7 p.m. On Thursday it's the oldtimers' turn, with all senior citizens admitted free.

U.S. Visitors Expected

More than 500 Port Angeles area people are expected in Victoria to celebrate "Port Angeles Day" Saturday.

The guests led by Mayor Joseph Wolf and his council will be met at the Coho at 9 a.m. by Miss Victoria, Debbie McCloy, and Victoria Jaycees who invited them.

A parade led by the Royal Canadian Legion Boys' Pipe Band will march via Douglas St. to City Hall, where Mayor Haddock will welcome the visitors and read the proclamation "Port Angeles Day in Victoria."

The Victoria Jaycees hope this will become an annual event.

Housing Body Urged for B.C.

British Columbia should establish a provincial housing authority to get more federal money for low-income housing projects, Walter Olszewski, president of the Victoria Low-Income Group, said today.

Olszewski said nothing should make this need more evident than the fact that Vancouver will get the only important housing project in B.C. under the recently-announced $90 million federal housing scheme.

BARED IN HALIFAX

Robert Andras, federal minister responsible for housing, unveiled the plan Monday as he spoke to the 66th annual conference of the Union of Nova Scotia Municipalities in Halifax.

Andras said the government will loan between $85 and $90 million with interest at 7¼ per cent a year for construction of selected housing projects comprising about 5,000 houses or housing units. Money will be loaned through Central Mortgage and Housing Corp., and poor people's representatives will act as judges with the CMHC to approve design submissions.

Olszewski praised the scheme, but he said most of the 25 cities involved are in Ontario. He charged that this is because the provincial government does not actively encourage low-income housing.

"This government in British Columbia doesn't believe in public housing. It believes in home ownership," he said.

OULD GET MORE

If B.C. had a housing authority as does Ontario, he said, more provincial lobbying for a greater share of projects like Andras' would inevitably help B.C.'s poor people.

But aside from this criticism, Olszewski joined other Victorians who are pleased with the federal project.

Saanich Ald. Edith Gunning said involvement of low-income people is a "good idea and a good try." But she cautioned against too much delay in approving housing projects.

Susan Talbot of the Community Action Group said she was particularly interested in one part of the plan which allows for construction of shell houses to be purchased cheaply and later finished by the buyer. Olszewski also liked this plan, which has been extensively used in Nova Scotia.

During his speech, Andras also said he intends to meet provincial and municipal government representatives in Victoria Aug. 25 to plan a national conference on urban problems.

To Join the Metric World

THE MATTER OF CHANGING Canada's system of measurement from the present inch-pound method to the metric system is one which should be kept continually in the thoughts of the federal government and the public. Already North America is becoming an inch-pound island in a metric world: about 90 per cent of the earth's population lives in countries which use the metric system of measurement or are changing to it. Britain will have switched by 1975; Japan has almost completely converted; Australia, New Zealand and South Africa are in the midst of a change-over.

A major reason for Britain's change is basically that which applies to Canada: a great deal of Britain's exports go to countries on the metric system, Canada cannot hope to make the most economic use of foreign markets unless it makes its products conform to the metric system. And countries which have started to change have found that the costs of conversion proved to be much less than estimated.

Actually, metric measurements have been legal in Canada since 1907, when we joined the Treaty of the Metre, to which most nations belong today, including the United States. That country, like Canada, already recognizes metric standards in numerous fields. But recognition is a long way from full utilization.

Canada has an added problem in changing its system of measurements. We must not be too far ahead of the United States in converting — but on the other hand, we cannot lag behind. So much of our trade, our machines and our everyday standards involve the United States that the two nations will have to time the switch-over very closely.

There is almost no choice of remaining on our traditional measurement system. To do so would mean almost complete isolation in the years to come. In particular it would mean higher costs to adapt our export products to the metric system of overseas purchasers and increasingly bothersome adjustments. Already in Canada, hospitals, the pharmaceutical business and scientific laboratories use metric measurements. The optical, photographic and electronic industries have largely adopted the system. And Canada has long made use of both the ampere and the candela, which are metric standards for measuring electric current and luminescence. The metre, the kilogram and the centigrade temperature scale are partly in use, in industry and elsewhere.

Conversion extended over a period of years would permit use of the new system as machinery and tools wore out and had to be replaced. There are several stages in the process of change. Legalization has already been achieved. The adaptation phase finds both systems in parallel use. Then comes conversion, during which the metric system becomes the primary means of measurement, with quantities converted to round numbers in that system rather than being merely the metric equivalent of the inch-pound standard.

For example, in the adaptation phase, five-pound bags of flour would also be labelled 2.27 kilograms, but in the conversion phase the five-pound bag would be replaced by a two-kilogram bag. The final stage would be compulsory usage, with only metric measurements being accepted except in very special cases.

Vast alterations will be required in industry, and millions of dollars-worth of instruments and machinery will have to be converted. Computer programs will have to be re-written in many cases, and it is obvious that the longer we wait the more complex and costly the switch-over will be. Definite steps should be taken before the end of this decade, or we shall lose out in foreign trade and domestic convenience.

Problems in Bonn

THE CURRENT SITUATION IN West Germany is made more delicate by the emergence of Erich Honecker as Communist Party boss in East Germany. Mr. Honecker is not impressed with Chancellor Willy Brandt's moves to improve relations between the two Germanys and has referred to Bonn's efforts in this regard as "prattle."

Chancellor Brandt's policy towards Eastern Europe, his "Ostpolitik," is in jeopardy. The non-aggression treaties with the Soviet Union and Poland have not been ratified, possibly because of the Soviet stance on Berlin, and certain Communist parties in Eastern Europe are beginning to censure Bonn for its delay.

Mr. Brandt has put much of his reputation on the line with his Ostpolitik and it seems that the coalition between his Social Democrats and the Free Democrats is held together principally because the Free Democrats are in no position to leave the coalition — a grouping which has a majority of six in the Bundestag.

Various opposition figures are beginning to emerge who might some day challenge the Chancellor, notably Gerhard Schroeder, who served as Foreign Minister and Defence Minister under the previous Christian Democratic regimes. The possibility of Mr. Schroeder becoming Chancellor is lessened however by his age, 61, and by the tenuous state of his health.

Chancellor Brandt has a chance of thawing some of the ice that separates East from West Germany but it will not be an easy task. Some observers believe that with the formidable Mr. Ulbricht now out of the East German picture, Mr. Honecker may find it possible to ease somewhat the iron hand that has gripped the Communist section of Germany — with benefit to both sides. Undoubtedly Willy Brandt will exploit any opportunity that arises.

Strength Above and Below, Not On

AT LEAST DATING BACK TO the Punic Wars, historians have emphasized the advantages enjoyed by the forces whose fleets dominated the Mediterranean—once the centre of the known world. More recently analysts have shown their concern over the growing presence of Russia in that sea. Now comes the statement of Admiral Horacio Rivero, USN, chief of all NATO forces in southern Europe, that despite the increase in number and activity of Soviet vessels there, the "combat effectiveness" of allied naval forces is three to four times that of the Soviet fleet.

Admiral Rivero and other NATO officials contend that "combat strength" is not told in numbers of vessels but in quality, supplies, training and morale of crews and, more importantly, in weaponry, air support and submarine support. NATO has the aircraft carriers to provide the air support, their argument runs, and the effectiveness of the most devastating submarines is restricted by the conventional disinclination to bring into play the nuclear armaments which would escalate a small fight into a big war.

So the rival interests maintain their fleets to impress the Mediterranean countries and to watch each other. But unless the rival powers are prepared for the big nuclear conflict, the fleets are more diplomatically impressive than they may be effective in battle. What's over the sea and under it is changing history in the Mediterranean.

Do you know that there is a new anti-litter secret society? It is so secret that the founder does not know how many members there are or if there are others besides himself. He is pretty sure however that he is not alone.

This society is founded on the principles that: a. litter is a bad thing and a form of pollution; b. slobs will be slobs and there is no point in trying to reform them by preaching; c. the only way to reduce litter is to pick it up when you see it (not always, as that would be a steady job, but from time to time as often as possible without making a martyr of yourself); d. whenever you go on a picnic or whatever, you must pick up not only your own litter but a little more . . . yes a bit of the other fellow's litter!

Now in these days of anti-litter campaign, I urge all grownups, children and oldsters to join the SALC (Secret Anti-litter Club). This is done as follows: Take a shopping bag or other suitable container then go for a walk (or a drive if you are lame). Wherever you see one of these colorful plastic candy or chips wrappers, beer cans, soft drink bottles whole or in bits, wax paper or other offensive object you pick it up and . . . you get the idea. Beaches are good hunting grounds specially after weekends. Udont Nohoo.

FROM OTTAWA

By MAURICE WESTERN

Deportable to Infancy's Unknown Home

Western

THERE seems to be a curse on Canadian immigration law. Periodically, it is re-examined and revised purged, we are led to believe, of the old barbarian content. But enlightenment goes only so far; at some point prudence sets in and statutory savagery survives the parliamentary onslaught. One result is that members often suffer less from the burdens thrust upon them by the great public issues of the day than from the agonizing problems brought to their doors by desperate constituents.

Here is a case currently engaging the attention of Mac McCutcheon, the Conservative member for Lambton-Kent in southwestern Ontario.

A boy aged 19 with two companions was charged last year with a narcotics offence. Released on bail, he attended Lambton College, securing a B-plus average in his year-end examinations. The college was aware of the charge but was also, apparently, of the view that the experience had been salutary. It was in any case willing to accept him back as a student.

He was convicted and sentenced to 15 months. But the sentence, whether wise or unwise, is not the issue. The same thing could have happened to any other boy in our permissive society.

What followed, however, could not have happened to most other boys; even to those who shared the same environment, went to the same schools and enjoyed or suffered the same life experiences.

Scottish Origin

This boy was different because he came to Canada from Scotland at the age of five years. He was in greater jeopardy under our law because he could not have obtained Canadian citizenship.

According to our statute, an immigration officer may submit a written report to the director concerning any person other than a Canadian citizen who is convicted of an offence under Secs. 3, 4, 5 or 6 of the Narcotics Control Act. The second part of Section 18 provides that anyone found upon due inquiry by a special inquiry officer to be such a person is subject to deportation.

The boy, now serving time at Bordeaux, has received notice that such an inquiry is to be held. He has the right to counsel at his own expense. It does not appear from the statute that the inquiry officer has much discretion, the conviction being a matter of record. Note the working: "The special inquiry officer shall, upon rendering his decision, make an order for the deportation of such person."

It is a basic principle of our law that immigration is a privilege and not a right. In the case of adults it is doubtless true that they know (or should ascertain) the conditions of entry. If they break our law, there is no essential unfairness in deporting them to their homelands.

Innocent Ignorance

No immigrant at the age of five knows anything about such matters. Nor is he likely to be conscious of them as he grows older. Nothing in his experience will suggest that he is a different being, legally, to the boys around him. The schools do not make such distinctions. If they did they would have to answer nowadays to an angry public.

When he gets into trouble, however a sort of trouble unhappily common nowadays it turns out that he is not like other boys. He made the mistake of spending his first five years in Scotland. Had he spent them in Russia, his legal position would not be much different; it might be better because there is some reluctance to despatch people, accustomed to political freedom, to Mr. Brezhnev's domain.

So off with him to the "homeland." What homeland? His only real homeland is Canada. At best a person can have but fleeting memories of his infant years; even these being suspect since we may take for memory what is in reality an impression picked up later. In effect, then, he is to be banished to a strange and unknown country.

From other standpoints, the thing is ridiculous. It may be (who knows?) that the fault is with the parents. But they are not in jeopardy. They are not deportable. He, apparently, is.

Or assume, for the sake of argument, that the boy is beyond redemption. Canadian society can do nothing for him. Let the Scots salvage him if they can. But then he is not the product of Scottish society. It was not the Scots who schooled and shaped him. The twig may be bent a bit by the age of five but not very much. He is a Canadian problem and under our law, as it stands, the government can promote harmony in international relations by unloading him on the Scots.

What a law! The boy of five is placed in the same jeopardy until he is old enough to acquire citizenship as the adults who brought him here.

But there is discretion, exercisable by the minister. The act says: "Subject to any order or direction by the minister, the director shall, upon receipt of a written report and where he considers that an inquiry is warranted, cause an inquiry to be held." Thus the inquiry which has been ordered was not automatic. Someone, at some point in the fashioning of the present act, must have suggested that the department could, with comparative safety, take a few steps beyond the general philosophy of Attila the Hun.

Nevertheless, an inquiry, which may well lead to deportation proceedings, was ordered. The father having incurred $700 in legal fees to defend the son, must now meet initial costs of $300 if counsel is to proceed with the fight against deportation.

This is clearly legal. It is also, in my opinion, uncivilized, reprehensible and outrageous. If a child grows up in this country from the age of five, he should be subject to the same justice as any other person, but he ought not to be deportable. There should be no question of an inquiry with these potential consequences. The law should be amended to ensure that children coming to this country do not live in such jeopardy.

Meanwhile, there is further discretion in the minister and Otto Lang should put a stop to the proceedings. Now.

A CHILLING LOOK

By TOM WICKER

Speeding Down the Freeway to Mediocrity

Wicker

THE AIRPORT is halfway between Raleigh and Durham. The former is North Carolina's capital and north-south traffic used to run right past the old State House Building that distinguished the city. Durham, not too many years ago, was easily recognizable as a cigarette manufacturing centre. Now the political and social and economic change that has come to the South makes the two cities seem, to the casual traveler, all but interchangeable. What's more, to one who has been roaming the South in recent weeks, either could about as easily be Montgomery, Ala., or Little Rock. And while the brand names might be different elsewhere in the country and the drawling voices of the South are still distinctive, the urban scene here is getting to be sadly like Indianapolis, Sacramento or Des Moines.

Spurred on by growing traffic and federal grants, the cities of America for instance have spawned a pervasive new architecture Airport Modern that is now as commonplace as the Railroad Gothic of a half-century ago. Glass, steel, concrete, plastic, pre-fab panels the materials of the new architecture are as severe and chilling as the sharp-edged design that gives most air terminals an atmosphere of harsh efficiency and rootless speed, even as the traveller takes his interminable heel-cracking walk to or from the farthest gate.

Side by side, past the trip insurance and check-in counters, Hertz and Avis carry on their endless, meaningless war over whether 'tis better to be No. 1 or No. 2. Other than for the color of the miniskirts filling out the form, it's hard for the customer to tell the difference, as he hands over his driver's license and credit card (which would it be today American Express, Diner's, Carte Blanche, Bank Americard, Air Travel? No. 1 and No. 2 eagerly take them all).

Even if he goes all the way to No. 3, the traveller still can't tell the difference certainly not by the power-steered, power-braked, air conditioned, gas-guzzling behemoth into which he is ultimately strapped. Any red-blooded American boy used to be able to tell at a glance a Ford, a Chevrolet or a Plymouth, let alone anything as grand as a Chrysler, a Caddy or a Lincoln; but now an auto renter needs a catalog and a guide in order to tell whether he's at the collapsible, Nader-style wheel of a Catalina, a Cougar, a Charger, a Mustang, a Malibu, a Pinta, a Nina or a Santa Maria. At the 20 per cent corporate discount, who even cares?

Gaudiest Monument

It is a quick trip in and out? Then the traveller registers at a nearby motel, the gaudiest monument of Airport Modern, where in the Toreador Lounge two impaled flaccid olives are automatically included when the tired blonde in the bunny costume brings the Martini with a twist. And in the Country Squire Restaurant, off the lobby, a hamburger steak is inevitably a charcoal-broiled hickory-smoked chopped sirloin smothered in mushrooms. Howard Johnson's, Holiday Inn, Sheraton, Hyatt House, Ramada, Downtowners, Albert Pick, Statler Hilton remember to dial 8 for long distance and that the lifeguard is never on duty after 6 p.m.

Eating roadside food in America used to be a gamble with loaded dice; heartburn was certain if ptomaine was only possible. Now, progress has taken danger out of the game and the ubiquitous fast-food industry guarantees the same lack of taste and nourishment in the crinkled french fries and quarter pound beefburger you get in Nashville, Charlotte, Harrisburg or Butte. Shay's Pizza, Hot Shops, MacDonald's, Colonel Sanders, Honey's Big Boy, Dunkin Donuts the ketchup always comes in plastic tubes and there is no such thing as a small coke, but the roast beef sandwich is the greatest at Arby's or the Roy Rogers.

Standard Track

It is easy, nowadays, to get downtown from any airport just guide your rented Charger onto the beltway, the Interstate, the freeway, the Boulevard, and whether it is the outer loop, the inner link, or the thruway, after breathtaking adventures you will be spewed out into a traffic jam just past the shopping centre and across the street from the mobile home dealership.

Downtown itself is depressing everywhere. In the old hotel, the bellboy's red jacket is likely to be frayed and the elevator may jerk alarmingly; the Paramount and the Roxy are showing skin flicks and the gaudy tile of the storefronts cannot conceal the age and decay of the buildings underneath. Somebody has put up a pre-stressed skyscraper in the middle of town, trying to stave off the trend of the shopping centre, but the Interstate is cutting a raw swath through the old warehouse district.

Exceptions

You can still get splendid seafood at the Elite Cafe in Mongomery. The Printer's Alley nightclubs and the Grand Ole Opry are flourishing in Nashville and south of Broad in Charleston the beautiful old houses still stand serenely under moss-hung trees. But these familiar touches are the exceptions in the new, prosperous, progressive homogenous South, with its concrete arteries and shrieking jets and piercing neon; and the South itself seems every year more nearly an interchangeable part of the vast, grim sameness of a nation that has discovered in mobility that no one need ever leave home because everything and every place can be made to look, taste, feel and sound like every other thing and place.

So maybe Airport Modern was the American dream all along; what else have we been so nearly able to spread to every part of the country?

Looking Back

From the Times of May 18, 1911:

Starting today and for the remainder of the week, J. Chas. Bates and his company of comedians will present the roaring farce comedy in two acts, "The King of the Philippines." The plot of the play is very laughable. John Graham tells his son and daughter that he is going on a trip to the Philippines, but in reality he only goes as far as California, where he spends his vacation having a good time in general. When he arrives home he is compelled to invent stories about his trip to the islands.

A Girl's Poem Stirs Nation

By COLIN LEGUM

A poem by a 16-year-old South African schoolgirl has made her an internationally controversial figure.

Antjie Krog's poem was first published in her school magazine last year. It started a tremendous row in South Africa and now the controversy has become wider because of the decision of the exiled African National Congress — which spearheads a guerrilla struggle from its headquarters in Tanzania — to reproduce her poem for international distribution.

Antjie is the daughter of a well-known South African writer, Dot Serfontein. She and her husband are pillars of the Afrikaner National Party — South Africa's ruling party — in the rural town of Kroonstad in the most Afrikaans of all the country's provinces, the Orange Free State.

◆

The voters of Kroonstad traditionally give solid support to racial policies of apartheid and to the Dutch Reformed Church; they are strongly conservative and conventional. So they were shocked not only to read Antjie's poem but to see it selected by her headmaster for publication in the school magazine.

Translated into English the poem reads:

Look, I am building myself a land where skin means nothing, just your understanding.
Where no goat face in Parliament shouts to keep verkramp things permanent.
Where I can love you and lie next to you in the grass without saying "yes" in church.
Where we can play the guitar at night and sing and bring jasmines for each other.
Where I don't have to feed you poison if a strange dove calls in my ear.
Where no divorce court can dim my children's eyes, where white and black, hand in hand, will bring peace and love to my beautiful land.

The reference to "goat face" in Parliament is to the goatee-bearded Dr. Albert Hertzog, the leader of the verkrampte (rigid, narrow) Herstigte Nasionale Party, the most extremist of the Afrikaner parties.

The poem offended white South African susceptibilites on a number of grounds: by advocating the idea of free love; by hitting at church weddings; and, above all, by the longings it shows for a society in which the color of the skin would be irrelevant — and where white and black hands might reach out to each other.

Antjie, an extremely attractive and popular girl in her community, became the centre of vicious attacks, both publicly and from local secret societies. Her headmaster was vigorously assailed for not suppressing her poem.

The result of the controversy was that her poem was printed and reprinted in the national press so that its message was carried all over the country.

Antjie herself has steadfastly refused to say anything in her own defence. She has simply gone ahead writing more poems, and now plans to publish a volume of them.

Vorster

But her mother — an articulate writer and an active politician in support of the Prime Minister, Mr. Vorster — has been at great pains to explain her daughter's actions. She has sought to defend her own strong convictions about apartheid and the morality of the rigidly Calvinistic Dutch Reformed Church, while at the same time justifying her daughter's attitudes.

"I am afraid that (the poem) can be used in many places to the disadvantage of our own country because it contains certain elements of life which already constitute the practice of youth in many countries. There is everywhere among our young people a shameless repudiation of long-held values — and sometimes not without reason. There is racial friction which carries within it the germ of war, a rebelliousness and spirit of protest."

But, she adds, if parents want to help their sensitive children to re-establish stable values, they should not be afraid to go to the deepest levels in exploring the problems they confront.

"The poet and the writer," she adds, "is a person who is hypersensitive to the influences around him; how can you expect from such people that they should continue to live in pure innocence in the face of the sinfulness which exists in the modern world?"

Antjie Krog is a new phenomenon among younger Afrikaners who, in increasing numbers, are beginning to react against the established racial attitudes and morality of South Africa.

Although still relatively few in number, they are the harbingers of changed ideas among the younger Afrikaners. These changes, when they occur, do so mainly at the universities — and especially in recent years at Stellenbosch University, traditionally the nursery of Afrikaner nationalism. What is unusual about Antjie Krog is that she has broken from the conventional thinking while still at high school, not in a sophisticated urban setting, but in the heart of the "platteland," the rural outback of the apartheid Republic.

The Doubtful Heroin Cure

By WILLIAM RASPBERRY

It was genuine misjudgment half a century ago when we hailed heroin as the miracle drug that would end the curse of morphine addiction. The fruits of that blunder constitute the heart of the current narcotics crisis.

Now methadone is being hailed as the miracle drug that will cure the curse of heroin addition. We're not entitled to make the same blunder again.

But we're making it anyhow, although it cannot fairly be called a blunder, this time we know — or ought to know — what we're doing.

We know things about methadone that we didn't know about heroin: that it is addictive, euphoric and dangerous.

Back in the 1920s, when the government was setting up heroin centres, the doctors really thought they were helping addicts to cure their addiction.

Many who now run methadone clinics — particularly those that rely on methadone maintenance — don't kid themselves that they are curing addiction. The candid ones will admit that methadone is not so much a means for treating addicts as a way of fighting crime.

The logic of methadone as a crime deterrent is clear enough. Since precious few addicts can earn enough through legitimate work to supply their habits, they can't afford legitimate work.

Just as Sick

Because methadone, properly administered, can break dependency on heroin, and since methadone can be had cheaply or, in some cases, without cost to the user, the addict no longer has to resort to crime.

Once again he can afford to take a job that provides him only with enough money to eat, buy a few clothes and pay his rent.

But the guy who was sick on heroin is just as sick on methadone. The streets may be a little safer, but the addict is scarcely better off.

Methadone, thus, is not a cure in any meaningful sense of the word, but a behavior-modifying drug. And it raises the same kind of moral issues.

Two uses of methadone seem fairly legitimate: as an aid to detoxification (tapering off with smaller doses) and as a way to render harmless those addicts for whom cure seems unlikely.

Methadone detoxification appears to work reasonably well (perhaps a little better than "cold turkey") for addicts who have got themselves together mentally and who need only to break their physical dependency.

But for this group of addicts (probably a tiny minority of addicts) almost anything will work.

It is the other, larger group that the experts have in mind when they tell you that most heroin addiction is 5 per cent physical and 95 per cent psychological. If they are right, methadone could be expected to treat only 5 per cent of the problem. On that basis, it's insane to talk about methadone as a cure.

There may be some long-term addicts who will never be drug free. For them, methadone may be the lesser evil. But we ought not kid ourselves that we are doing anything except writing them off.

Make Youth Docile

To this nonexpert, it seems criminal to take a 19- or 20-year-old addict, whose addiction is largely psychological, and deliberately string him out on methadone. That is at least as bad as "curing" morphine addiction with heroin — except that methadone is cheaper.

It may be a good deal worse. It is altogether conceivable that methadone maintainance will become a device for rendering our angry young people docile and harmless to society at large. There are those who believe it has happened already.

But even without imputing such sinister motives to those who run the drug programs it is fair to say that extensive use of methadone maintenance is bound to block any real effort to get at the psychological hangups that drive young people to drugs in the first place.

For methadone not only blocks the effects of heroin in the addict; it blocks the effects of drug addiction on society, rendering addiction a merely personal problem.

And when that happens, trust us to turn our attention elsewhere.

Pornography Diminishes Man

By NORMAN COUSINS
Saturday Review

On one of the busiest thoroughfares in the United States — New York City's Forty-second Street — the final step beyond total nudity in entertainment has been taken.

For the price of a movie ticket, customers can see in full color and on a large screen all the sexual variations of which human anatomy and ingenuity are capable.

For those who feel the screen offerings are too pallid, any number of halls or auditoriums on the same street offer live performances. Reports from other cities indicate that New York is far from being unique in providing this form of entertainment.

Defenders of the new trend argue that questions of morality are relative and that any adult should be allowed to see or do whatever his curiosity or needs demand. They contend there is no evidence to show that sex exhibitions are dangerously provocative or that they lead to random and irresponsible sexual behavior.

* * *

This misses the point. It is possible to oppose censorship but still be severely critical of sex exhibitions — not because they lead to promiscuity or irresponsibility but because they lead to desensitization.

The problem is not that they arouse lust but that they tend to produce impotence. By detaching sex from love, they separate sex from its basic sustaining power. In making sex mechanical, they contribute to the malfunctioning of the machine. By annihilating privacy, they rob sex of delight.

Feelings are not merely bypassed; they are obliterated. The danger is not that the exploitation of sex may create sex fiends, but that it may spawn eunuchs.

What is even worse, an infallible formula has apparently been found for making sex boring. People who insist on seeing everything and doing anything run the risk of feeling nothing.

It is a serious error to suppose that the depersonalization of sex is unrelated to other things that are happening to the society.

The propensity for violence, whether between individuals or nations; the decline of respect for life, whether as manifested by children's games and playthings or the foreign policies and weapons of government; the casualness toward human hurt, as glamorized on 20 million television screens or as demonstrated at My Lai and in the search-and-destroy military policy in Vietnam; the craving for heightened experience, whether through pills or shots or smoke — all these are symptomatic of desensitization.

The highest expression of civilization is not its art but the supreme tenderness that people are strong enough to feel and show toward one another.

Art proceeds out of an exquisite awareness of life. The creative spirit and the compassionate spirit are not things apart but kindred manifestations of response to life. If our civilization is breaking down, as it appears to be, it is not because we lack the brainpower to meet its demands but because our feelings are being dulled.

* * *

The first aim of education should not be to prepare young people for careers but to enable them to develop respect for life. Related lessons would be concerned with the reality of human sensitivity and the need to make it even finer and more responsive; the naturalness of loving and the circumstances that enhance it or enfeeble it; the right to privacy as an essential condition of life; and the need to avoid the callousness that leads to brutalization.

Finally, there is the need to endow government with the kind of sensitivity that makes life and all it's wondrous possibilities government's most insistent concern.

A Fun Pedant Is Hard to Find . . .

By JUDITH MARTIN
The Washington Post

One day, many years ago, in Berkeley, Calif., a student who knew what he wanted to say but didn't know how to say it (some say that is logically impossible; others say he wasn't even a student) stalled by saying, "Oh, you know."

●

The next thing you knew, his lab partner had caught the you-knows, and she gave it to a professor who gave it to a lady in administration, and then the entire university was going around saying "you know" after every phrase. Now, as you know, it's all over the world.

It's all very well to say that you won't associate with the kind of people who spread these things, but you know as well as I do that there is no one left who can be considered safe. A friend of mine suggested that a certain high government official's rumored indiscretion was probably with "some little thing who uses the nominative for the accusative case," and I only hope I don't get into a situation where I have to shake that official's hand.

"You know" is a particularly resistant strain for which there doesn't seem to be a cure. You can try looking squarely at offenders and remarking, "No, I don't know." This at least serves the purpose of antagonizing them so that they cut off the conversation, which, under the circumstances, probably wasn't going anywhere, anyway.

But it's getting harder and harder to be a good pedant, almost as hard as it is to work for a newspaper and not begin sentences with conjunctions. When I was in college, I tried to set some standards for my life. I resolved never to be friends with those who used "fun" as an adjective. I don't even bother trying to go to college reunions any more.

My list also has on it people who use "loan" for "lend," "hopefully" for "it is hoped," "less" for "fewer" and "enthused" for "enthusiastic."

●

As I add to it and, in the normal passing of time, grow more crotchety, conversation becomes more difficult. It's the same with opinions. My husband and I found that we were unable to sit down with bigots, then warmongers and now sexists.

"Isn't it wonderful?" he remarked recently. "We're so liberal we don't like anybody, anymore."

Pedantry is generally no sign of general ability to use the language well. All you have to do is to grab one grammatical werewolf and run with it. The second worst pedant I know once gave a speech about India in which he referred to "two football stadia" which had been built, and then went on to say that "the price of cows had literally skyrocketed." (Hey-didle-diddle to you, too.)

Catching someone in an error of usage is the most satisfactory achievement there is, outside of catching the bank in an error in one's favor, and it would be a shame to limit it to perfect people. (There are seven errors in this column. See if you can catch them. See if the editor can catch them first.)

●

My correspondents include a Benedictine monk, who founded the Hyphen and Syphon Club, the rule of which is, "Every time you have to shoot a hyphen into that dense morass, you get a free drink," and a New York lawyer who warned me, "Keep up the good fight, watch out for cohort, don't use normalcy (the word is normality, and people were laughing at Harding not for his conservatism but for his illiteracy), don't pronounce falcon with a short A, remember that criteria and media are plural and keep your powder dry."

I didn't bring on this advice by committing any of these errors, you understand. I was just sitting there, knitting a subjunctive and minding my own business.

But that's what true pedantry is. Painting the lily, as those of us who know that it isn't gilding the lily, say.

. . . You Know?

By RUSSELL BAKER

All-purpose American conversations for 1971's "Now" people:

"Like man!"
"Wow!"
"I'm really into revolution, you dig?"
"Outasight!"
"Like ego tripping's not my bag, man, but—."
"Ecolike man!"
"Wow!"

"I wouldn't mind my son getting drafted into the Army, mind you, if it weren't for — well, you know."

"You mean the heroin? But not everybody who gets drafted into the Army gets on heroin."

"I know, but there are other things as bad as heroin that a young man could learn in this Army."

"Still—."

"But suppose he ends up killing old women and children?"

"Not likely, unless they send him to Vietnam."

"I still don't like it."

"Why not, then?"

"It's almost as bad as sending your son off to live in New York."

"That's silly. In the Army the air's better."

"I don't know what it is, but I tell you, every time I see President Nixon on television or in the newspapers, I just feel wonderful all over."

"Are you going to pass that joint around or are you going to keep it all to yourself?"

"It's the parents' fault. If it weren't for parents everybody would wear a necktie and show pink scalp above the ears."

"I think it's that Dr. Spock. Did you hear what Spiro . . .?"

"It's the Communists, and these television commentators, and that fellow Fulbright, and the school system of this country, the late Martin Luther King, the Supreme Court, skin flicks, demonstrations, Ping-Pong and the decline of capial punishment."

"More capital punishment for everyone, I say!"

"Kill!"
"Kill!"
"Kill!"
"Kill!"

"If you don't make a move, I won't hurt you."

"What's the matter? Don't you respect me?"

"Ah, my innocent children. You must realize that you cannot have the blessings of the free enterprise system without accepting dehumanizing architecture, brutalizing mechanization, subhuman regimentation by corporate and state hierarchies, degrading environmental levels of filth, humilitating stockpiles of surplus human beings discarded for lack of skills or for old age, depressing masses of maimed soldiery . . ."

"What blessings?"

"Mary, there is something I've been meaning to ask you for a long time. I don't quite know how to say it, but I wonder, Mary, if—."

"Yes, John. What is it?"

"Mary, I want you to . . . will you . . .?"

"Speak out, John. This is the age of permissiveness, you know."

"Will you marry me, Mary?"

"Oh, John, I'd love to, but I can't marry you. I just can't."

"But why not, Mary? Give me just one good reason why not."

"Poor John, you know as well as I do. If we got married all the other kids in the dorm would accuse us of middle-class prudery, and we'd never be able to go to another riot together without everybody laughing at us."

Mr. Glen Kilby, Vancouver, B.C.

"Number one for me is durability"

"The car's running all day. Stop, start, you know. I go someplace and make an inspection, come out and jump in the car and go somewhere else, so it's stopping and starting, which is the hardest type of driving on an automobile. I don't think I'll have trouble with the Pinto and like I said, I expect to put 100,000 miles on it.

"I like the size of it. The small, compact size; the handling; the parking is very good; the mileage is good. My wife feels good in it. Kind of safe and secure, because you're lower to the road."

Woman, 23, Charged In Fatality

DUNCAN — A 23-year-old Duncan woman has been charged with criminal negligence causing death after a car accident on April 15 in which 18-year-old Wayne Cote, also of Duncan, was killed.

Karen McLarty, Old Koksilah Road, was remanded to June 15 for preliminary hearing when she appeared in court Monday.

Injured in the accident were Gordon Cline, 18, and Jarl Slatta, both of Duncan.

HEARING POSTPONED FOR TEACHER

DUNCAN — The court hearing for Cowichan teacher Louis Trapler, charged with assaulting a student, has been postponed a second time.

Provincial court Judge Lance Herd has set the new date for June 21.

Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Cook of Westholme pressed the charges after an incident Jan. 26 at Mount Prevost Junior Secondary in which Trapler allegedly struck and injured their 13-year-old son, Joseph.

Trapler has been dismissed by the school.

FIRE FUSS FLARES

'What Are They Talking About?'

North Saanich council acknowledged on Monday the first indication "on paper" of Sidney's intentions to operate its own fire department.

Mayor Jim Cumming said that council will ask for an explanation of a letter from Sidney council in which that body approves the 1971 joint fire budget but emphasizes that there will be a change-over to independent operation on July 1, 1971.

"It would now be legitimate to inquire from Sidney what, in fact, they are talking about," stated Cumming.

DRAFT RESOLUTION

On April 5, North Saanich received a copy of a draft resolution in which Sidney proposed to terminate on June 30, 1971, fire and ambulance agreements made between Sidney and North Saanich.

The draft copy was filed without comment.

Under a fire wardens' committee special powers bylaw dated 1969 Sidney has resolved to delegate administration and operation of the volunteer fire department to the fire wardens' committee. This is a five-man body composed of three sidney council members and two firemen.

An amendment to the special powers bylaw has now been given third reading by Sidney council. Fire wardens' committee chairman, Ald. Hugh Hollingworth, has emphasized that the department will continue to provide fire and ambulance protection to North Saanich.

'REALM OF FANTASY'

On Monday Ald. Nell Horth asked "How could Sidney pay for the fire department take-over when everything is in North Saanich's name?"

"We are in the realm of fantasy," commented Cumming, agreeing with Ald. George Cumpston, who stated that the law does not allow a minority shareholder to take over.

Meanwhile, the North Saanich associate firefighting unit in Deep Cove is now organized with Doug Jack as assistant chief, K. R. Roberts as training officer, Ron Evans as senior captain and George Hartshorne, junior captain.

Ald George Aylard said that these positions are temporary appointments until the fire protection situation is clarified.

Tenders Close Friday

TOFINO — Closing date for filing of tenders for the construction of a new Tofino elementary school here has been set for Friday.

Upon completion the school will phase out Christie Residential School on Meares Island, with at least 100 students from that school joining other area children at the new building.

Plans are that children from Opitsate Reserve will be brought by speedboat to Tofino daily. The 100 Indian children from Christie school will be housed at the new Indian hostel at Mackenzie's Beach, which is nearing completion.

Clearing and blasting the grounds in preparation for construction of the new Tofino school has been going on for some time.

Banquet Set For Elderly Indians

DUNCAN — Members of the Cowichan Indian Band who are over 73 will be honored at a pioneer-centenarian banquet at 1 p.m. June 2 at the United Church hall here.

The band's centennial committee will present medallions and gifts to two centenarians, 101-year-old Josephine Lemo and 107-year-old August Jack, and 15 others.

Park Upgrading To Cost $8,000

North Saanich will spend $8,000 in centennial funds to improve Wains Road park and playing fields.

Ald. Doug Boon said that provincial approval of the project has now been received. Plans include permanent baseball and soccer facilities, playground equipment and rest rooms.

A YOUNG MAN WITH A PROBLEM

The Rug Is Shifting Under Cowichan Schools

HAYWOOD

By DONNA CLEMENTS

DUNCAN — David Haywood is a young man barely 10 years out of high school who is trying to hold an entire school district together.

Haywood, 29, who was elected to the board when he was 26 and who says he is probably the youngest school board chairman in British Columbia, is trying to stop Cowichan school district from descending into shifting chaos.

The main problem: 200 new students are coming into the district each year and the district has no funds to provide classroom space for them.

The district has one chance for a temporary solution on May 29 when ratepayers vote on a $577,800 building referendum for essential classrooms.

If the referendum is approved, which would be the first time in three tries, 12 elementary and five secondary classrooms will be built to spring loose portables now being used at some schools for use elsewhere in the school district.

If it is defeated, "any steps we take will only be stop-gap," he said.

In this event, the alternatives the school board would face this September would be:

- More shift systems which include losing 20 per cent of instructional time as well as elimination of extra-curricular clubs and sports events.
- Purchase of more portable classrooms, which does not require the consent of taxpayers. The district now uses 18 portables.
- Reduction of special education and kindergarten programs.

Haywood said Quamichan Junior Secondary will definitely go on shift in September, as will some elementary schools, until construction of classrooms can be completed by Christmas.

Currently only Alexander Elementary is on the shift system.

"It is inevitable that this area will become highly populated considering we are living in the banana belt of Canada," Haywood said.

"With the organized controlled development of schools, which the board has planned, and the increase of assessment, with the new homes and businesses that come with the increased population, there should be no mill rate increase.

"An example is that in 1971's budget there is a 5.8 per cent increase in the district's assessment and, although there is an increase in the budget, there is a decrease of one-half a mill in the school district's costs.

"Excluding the Malaspina Regional College costs we have to pay, which is $165,000 this year, we are nearly one full mill below the provincial average in educational costs."

This will be the third time in just over a year that the coming building referendum will have been presented to taxpayers.

In April, 1970, a referendum for $213,000 was defeated. A December referendum for $602,000 was narrowly defeated by three per cent.

Of the 14 referendums put before ratepayers since 1947 the past two are the only ones that have ever been turned down.

★ ★ ★

Haywood attributes this to a combination of apathy amongst taxpayers, people on fixed incomes voting against it, and people with "gripes" against the educational system.

Haywood, employment supervisor at Crofton Pulp and Paper Ltd., father of a four-year-old boy, has lived in Duncan for the past four years. He is serving his third year on the school board, two of which he has been chairman.

"I first wanted to run because of a strong interest in education, both from my job point of view and involvement in community affairs," he said.

"I would certainly encourage people to look to trusteeship on a school board for the experience and a better understanding of education and how the government operates in this regard and how the tax money is spent.

"I would strongly recommend the position for any man or woman. It is well worth the experience."

★ ★ ★

Haywood said he considers the scope of the duties of a trustee tremendous in that he must involve himself in the hiring and employment of teachers, tradesmen, clerical and maintenance staff as well as financing, construction and educational standards of the district.

Of the 350 people employed in Cowichan school district, which involves 27 schools within a 200 square mile area from the Malahat to the Chemainus River, 280 are teachers.

Six in Race For Sidney Council Seat

A last-minute nomination was filed Monday by Carl C. Anderson, 2031 Courser, for the aldermanic vacancy on Sidney council.

This makes a total of six running in the May 29 by-election to fill the seat left vacant by the resignation of Ald. Herb Perry.

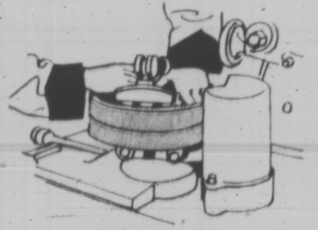
Brake Reline
$24.88*
Disc brakes and/or torsion bars extra

"When we reline your brakes, we do a lot more than reline your brakes!"

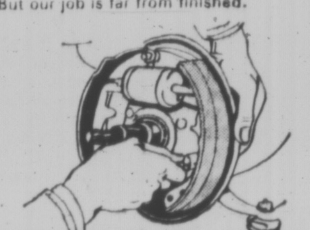
"Even if all we did was replace your worn brake linings, this would be a great bargain. We use only the finest quality bonded linings. They're guaranteed for 30,000 miles, assuming the rest of the braking system is in good condition. So you get good value for your money.

"But we go a lot farther than that. Because as Riding System specialists, it's our responsibility to make sure that every car that leaves our service center is in safe operating condition.

"We start by 'arcing' your new linings on our precision grinder. This helps to ensure that they will make good contact with the drums for safe braking. We also inspect your brake drums to be sure they are true, to make contact over the full surface of the brake linings.

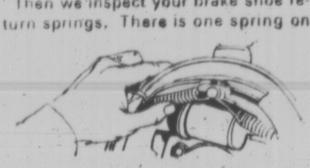


"Then we install the new brake linings. But our job is far from finished.

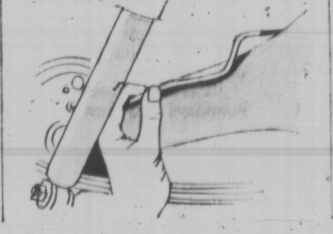


"We examine your wheel cylinders and your master cylinder for leaks. If you've got problems, we'll let you know.

"Then we inspect your brake shoe return springs. There is one spring on each wheel. If the spring tension is uneven, your car will pull to one side when you brake. So it's important to know about their condition.



"The next step is to remove your inner and outer front wheel bearings. We clean them carefully. Inspect them for flaws. And then re-pack them with a top-quality grease. This could save you money. Because wheel bearings can be badly damaged if the original grease has caked and dried.



"We inspect your brake fluid lines for leaks and weak points. Your lines may be okay for normal braking. But if there is a weak spot, the lines could burst with the surge of fluid in a panic stop.

"The final step is to add Super Heavy-Duty brake fluid. Then we take your car out on the road to make sure you'll have safe, smooth braking.

"As you can see, $24.88 goes a long way at Firestone. We install top quality linings in all four wheels. We clean and re-pack your front wheel bearings. And we check the total braking system for safe operation. And that's a great bargain in anybody's language."

*This offer includes brake linings, brake fluid, grease, and services described in this advertisement. If other parts and services are required, you will be advised before hand of additional costs.

PLASTIC GLASS TO CUT COSTS?

Plastic glass or even "rubber rocks" were tossed around Monday night as solutions to extensive window breaking at Victoria schools.

Trustee Dr. Carron Jameson during discussion of a report that the Greater Victoria school board spent $13,900 since January on broken windows, said that although plastic windows were 30 per cent more expensive in price they might be cheaper to install over the long run because they would not have to be replaced.

Trustee Peter Bunn called the expenditure "pretty devastating", adding that part of the reason for the high costs was the $9 to $12.50 per hour charged by glaziers contracted by the school board to handle extra loads in busy periods.

Bunn said there were glaziers on the maintenance staff but that sometimes independent glaziers had to be called in.

Trustee Walter Donald suggested that temporary help might be a partial solution but S. H. Dietze noted that glaziers were "a rare breed" and that special equipment is often required to install windows.

BCTF Deductions Will Continue

Greater Victoria School Board decided Monday night to continue deducting fees from teachers' pay cheques to go to the B.C. Teachers' Federation — but with a rider.

The BCTF must pay the costs of deducting their fees from the cheques.

Trustee Peter Bunn, who proposed the motion to stop deducting fees, said he felt the "grossly irresponsible action" of the teachers' strike makes it impossible for a school board to collect teachers' dues that may be used to promote strikes against the very taxpayers who pay their salaries."

Bunn was referring to a one-day strike by Victoria teachers earlier this year in support of higher pension increases for retired teachers.

Trustee Walter Donald said it was not the board's business to know who belongs or doesn't belong to the teachers' federation. He said he is against any person being forced to contribute to any organization.

To continue to deduct BCTF fees, he said, would for some teachers be "endorsation by default."

Dr. Donald Shorting said he wanted the deductions discontinued. "We shouldn't lower ourselves to become involved in their petty games of one-upmanship," he said.

Dr. Philip Ney noted that the medical profession had two separate bodies, one to deal with licensing and one for bargaining and suggested that teachers should have the same scheme.

PUNITIVE

Dr. H. A. W. Knight said that education is a "co-operative effort" and that the motion to discontinue deductions for the BCTF "can only be interpreted as punitive."

He said it was necessary for the various groups in education to continue co-operating.

Dr. Victoria Rogers said the problem could be seen as simply a democratic right: whether or not to join the organization and therefore whether or not to pay the fees. He also referred to the medical profession, saying that doctors pay their fees on their own if they want to join their association.

Rogers said there was "no suggestion of lack of co-operation with the BCTF." He said it is the right of every individual to pay his fees in private if he wished.

At this point, Dr. Carron Jameson introduced an amendment to Bunn's motion which stipulated that the BCTF would have their fees deducted only if they paid the costs of the deductions from teachers' cheques.

BABYING

Buss said: "Talk about babying! It seems incredible to me that teachers cannot do it (deduct fees) for themselves. It's a matter of principle, not the cost."

School board chairman Allan McKinnon said he was sorry that other board members appeared to feel that the school board and teachers' unions were irreconciliable enemies. He said this was a false premise and that "a more progressive approach is needed."

The board shortly afterward voted to continue deductions, with the BCTF paying the costs.

Susie Q Succeeds

ANGELS CAMP, Calif. (AP) — A long-legged frog called Susie Q is the 1971 international grand finals winner at the Calaveras County international frog-jumping championship. Susie Q won $300 first prize money with three hops totalling 17 feet 9¾ inches for her owner and trainer, Bill Moniz, Gustine, Calif. Moniz, 61, has built a miniature hotel for the frogs he raises as a hobby. He conditioned Susie Q with a diet of flies, hamburger and bread crumbs.

School Trustees Put Strap on the Rack

A proposal to do away with that ancient dread of every schoolboy, the strap, was again heard by Greater Victoria School Board members at their meeting Monday night.

Trustee Walter Donald proposed that the B.C. School Trustees' Association undertake studies to find an alternative to corporal punishment and that corporal punishment be made unlawful in B.C.

Donald proposed that the BCSTA consider the idea at its convention in July. The board's education committee will consider the proposal at its next meeting.

He said that in this age of violence, with Canadian cabinet ministers, U.S. presidents and university students being murdered, unnecessary violence should be kept to a minimum.

WRONG IDEA

He said that when a child is strapped he could come away with the idea that "when you don't like someone doing something, hit them and they will stop."

Trustee Dr. Philip New, a child psychiatrist, said that other methods are more effective than corporal punishment. Corporal punishment has dangerous side-effects for the child, he said.

"A child who is strapped will get angry," he said. "It's one of those automatic effects of human behavior.

He said strapping can often become a means for release of frustrations for the teacher. "Perhaps it would be more beneficial to install a punching bag in the teachers' lounge than to hang a strap in the classroom."

CUTTING OF HANDS

He said the strapping ritual can be likened to the ancient practice of cutting off the hands of a thief, as if it were the hands and not the person responsible for the misdeed.

Dr. Victor Rogers disagreed with Donald's proposal, saying he was against violence but was "not in favor of forcing teachers to give it up."

"If teachers are struggling to be mature, we must persuade them to use better ways," he said. "We can't force them."

Other ideas were in the form of notices of motions, which will come before the board at a later date.

Donald suggested that a study be made to determine the degree of effectiveness achieved by the school district's sex education program.

It was also suggested that a scheme be devised whereby teachers would be paid on the basis of their experience and qualifications alone, and not the level of instruction they were giving.

FREAKS BEAT PIGS, WIN KEG OF BEER

CARBONDALE, Ill. (AP) — The Freaks beat the Pigs 35-5 Saturday in a sofball game billed to smooth relations between the police and students at Southern Illinois University.

The Freaks, composed of members of the University's Peace Committee, received a full keg of beer and a trophy — an empty red, white and blue beer keg shaped in the form of a pig.

Residents May Build Plant

MEADOW LAKE, Sask. (CP) — A group of residents of this northwestern Saskatchewan community are considering pooling money to construct a $200,000 cheese-processing plant.

Construction of the plant, which would employ 10 to 12 persons, may begin this summer says Wayne Temple, a spokesman for the group.

Milk from a herd of 150 cows would be piped from barns into the processing area, says Temple. Another pipeline would carry whey, the watery part of the milk left over from the cheese-making process, to a hog barn to supplement pig feed.

The raising of hogs would be secondary, Temple says, but would help pay for the operation. It has been estimated that the whey would make up half of the hog feed.

Manure from both cow and hog barns would be broken down, mixed and marketed as fertilizer.

Temple says the residents intend to form a limited company, but another meeting is to be held before plans are made final.

Meadow Lake, about 150 miles northeast of Prince Albert, is situated in a special designated area which makes industries locating there eligible for federal incentive grants.

Cominco Hikes Price

VANCOUVER (CP) — Cominco Ltd. has increased its price for zinc in Canada by half a cent to 16 cents per pound from 15.5 cents per pound for prime western grade.

Other grades were increased by the same amount.

Giant Airships Suggested In Moving Oil From Arctic

CALGARY (CP) — Use of giant dirigibles is one of the novel ways being considered to transport oil and natural gas to market from remote locations such as the Arctic islands.

"A fleet of airships capable of transporting gaseous, liquid, drybulk and general cargo could conceivably be routed and scheduled on a worldwide basis with the objectives of avoiding bad weather, taking advantage of favorable winds and meeting current demands for transportation service," says Miles H. Sonstegaard.

Sonstegaard, a transportation-petroleum consultant from Fayetteville, Ark., suggests a 6,610-foot airship 2,203 feet in diameter to transport natural gas.

Writing in the 1971 issue of The Landman, published by the American Association of Petroleum Landmen in Fort Worth, Tex., he said the economics of such a project make its consideration worthwhile.

Two British transportation firms, including Manchester Lines, are considering use of the ligher-than-air ships to transport petroleum from North Sea locations.

SHIPS NOW SAFE

A series of explosions blasted dirigibles out of the air transportation picture in the 1930s but experts now feel explosions could be minimized by the use of inert helium rather than the explosive hydrogen used 40 years ago.

With 16 rigs now drilling for oil in the Northwest Territories and the Arctic islands, transportation studies have been intensified.

Strain said Panarctic is also studying plans to fly the oil out. The firm, 45 per cent owned by the federal government, has hired a consultant in the field of transportation economics.

Boeing Aircraft Co. is considering a study on moving Alaskan and Arctic crude by airplane and Dan McIvor of Pacific Western Airlines also says he sees a great possibility in moving oil by air.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG — Trading was exceptionally light on the grain exchange today with prices on an easier pattern.

Flax and rapeseed, which were down as much as three cents, had fairly heavy hedge offerings, which were moderately taken by exporters on a scale-down pattern.

Oats and barley were fairly steady with some commercial buying. Rye had fractionally lower prices on commission house liquidation and some inter-month spreading.

Volume of trade Monday included 611,000 bushels of flax, 812,000 of rapeseed and 680,000 of rye.

HAIG-BROWN OPPOSES MORAN DAM

NANAIMO (CP) — The 51 students in the first graduating class at Malaspina Regional College here were told Sunday the proposed Moran Dam on the Fraser River would damage salmon runs and affect the productivity of the Fraser River estuary and the ecology of the Strait of Georgia.

Roderick Haig-Brown, a conservationist and chancellor of the University of Victoria, said in the convocation address that the proposed dam would provide flood control and hydro, but these can be obtained in other ways.

MLW Wins Big Order

OTTAWA (CP) — A Yugoslavian railway has signed a letter of intent to lease-purchase 20 diesel locomotives from MLW Industries Ltd. of Montreal for $8 million, says Industry Minister Jean-Luc Pepin.

"This is the first time we have had a lease-purchase agreement of this nature with Yugoslavia," the minister said in a statement.

"Under the contract, title to the locomotives will stay with MLW Worthington Ltd., parent company of MLW Industries Ltd., until payment is complete. At that time, title will be transferred to ZTP Belgrade Railways."

Pepin said MLW Industries is one of Canada's more active exporters. The company was building 35 locomotives for East African Railways, 54 for Nigerian State Railways and six for Jamaican Railways.

Delta Hotels Refinanced

VANCOUVER (CP) — An extraordinary meeting of Delta Hotels Ltd. shareholders Monday approved a $7 million refinancing program.

Company president William Pattison said under the plan Delta will issue convertible preferred A and B shares. The B shares will be held by a number of companies and individuals who will control the company but will not be permitted to trade their shares for a period of time.

Delta shareholders, in turn, will be permitted to purchase one Class A convertible preferred share at $1 each for each common Delta share held.

The controlling group will purchase 1,250,000 convertible preferred B. shares at $1 each.

The remaining $5.75 million will be raised by the Great-West Life Assurance Co., Robert Simpson Co. Ltd. and the Royal Bank of Canada.

Pattison said the mortgage loan with Great-West will have an annual interest rate of 10¼ per cent.

A record date for the purchase of preferred A shares will be announced shortly, he said.

Pattison said Delta expects its net 1971 earnings to be about $300,000 compared with $233,000 in 1970.

Net earnings for the first quarter of this year amounted to $10,790 compared with a loss of $19,209 for the comparable 1970 period.

Before the meeting, Pattison said that Delta Hotels, which operate a number of hotels throughout B.C., needed the new financing plan to overcome "financial problems—that have beset the company for some time."

Delta Hotels shares were quoted at $3 on the Vancouver Stock Exchange Monday.

Ambassador To Visit Fair

Swedish Ambassador Ake Malmaeus will visit British Columbia June 1 and 2 for the opening of the fifth B.C. International Trade Fair in Vancouver June 2-12.

His visit will be confined to Vancouver and his plans are to return to Ottawa the afternoon of June 2.

Malmaeus took up his Canadian posting in September, 1969, after assignments in Portugal, France, San Francisco, Washington, Turkey and Stockholm. He is married to a former Winnipegger, Mary Elizabeth McIntyre, whom he met in Paris in 1937.

The Swedish pavilion will consist of 20 exhibits featuring heavy industrial goods and consumer products, notably those for recreation and the outdoors.

Real Estate 'Buyers' Market'

TORONTO (CP) — The Mortgage Insurance Co. of Canada says the Canadian real estate market "is still a buyer's market," but notes that the market is more stable than it has been in past months.

Real estate markets were particularly strong in Edmonton, Calgary, Saskatoon, Vancouver, British Columbia's Okanagan Valley area and Ottawa, Kingston and Sudbury, Ont., the company said in its monthly newsletter.

Real estate was "slow but improving" in Oshawa, Ont., but St. John's Nfld., remained quiet.

BUSINESS AND FINANCE

Chapparal

Field work has started on a 50-claim group with significant copper showing, located 20 miles south of Dease Lake, reports Chapparal Mines Ltd.

Mapping, bulldozer trenching, soil sampling and geophysical survey work to locate drill targets is the program scheduled for the summer. The company said there is strong similarity to Lytton Minerals property two miles east, which has been drilled to establish more than 15 million tons of good grade copper.

Petrofina

Petrofina Canada Ltd. and its subsidiaries report net income of $4.17 million (41.9 cents a share) in the quarter ended March 31, up from $3.75 million or 37.7 cents in the comparable 1970 period.

The figures for 1970 have been restated to include the operations of Finacentres Ltd. and Fina Metal Ltd. which became wholly-owned subsidiaries last year.

Burrard

Burrard Dry Dock Co. Ltd. reports net income of $122,000, or 12 cents per share, for the three months ended March 31, down from $548,000 (55 cents) in the first quarter 1970.

Sales totalled $7.95 million compared to $9.98 million, while operating costs and expenses were $7.78 million, down from $8.56 million in the first quarter of 1970.

Clarence Wallace, president, said the reductions in sales volume and earnings reflect conditions affecting shipyards on the west coast, which to date has not benefitted by federal subsidy offered to foreign shipowners.

W. Pacific

Western Pacific Products and Crude Oil Pipelines Ltd. net earnings of $634,380, or 9.5 cents per share, during the first quarter of 1971, up 24 per cent over earnings of $511,552 (7.6 cents) in the period last year.

Higher earnings were attributed to lower operating costs and reduced interest, coupled with a slightly higher tariff during the current period.

Neill-Hildon

The Hildon Corp., operates in the U.S. and Canada as specialist distributors of precision measuring equipment and as agents for a number of British tool manufacturers, including the James Neill subsidiary, Moore and Wright (Sheffield).

James Neill has its own subsidiaries in Canada and the U.S. The purchase of Hildon now brings under James Neill's direct control the distribution of all group products in North America, which are currently valued at about $3.6 million a year.

Wardair

Wardair Canada Ltd. incurred a net loss of $996,960 for 1970. No figures for the previous year were contained in the annual report.

The company attributed the 1970 loss to depressed yield from international charter traffic and extensive non-revenue flight hours.

Operating revenue for the fiscal year was $16.4 million with the company showing retained earnings of $1.6 million at the year's end.

The company's gross revenue increased 26 per cent in 1970 from the previous year.

Gr. Pacific

Grat Pacific Industries Ltd. first quarter earnings amounted to $45,378 or four cents a share, down from $124,862 (12 cents) for the first three months of 1970.

The Vancouver-based firm is engaged in manufacture and leasing of factory-built modular products for industrial, administrative and educational purposes, diversified leasing and accommodation.

Van. Isle Gas

Record gas sales of 139.26 million cubic feet, up 6 per cent or 7.8 million feet, are reported for 1970 by Vancouver Island Gas Co. Ltd., which distributes gas in Nanaimo.

Revenue was $287,465 vs. $273,679 in 1969, but total income was offset by a $48,000 decline in sales of merchandise, parts and fittings.

Net earnings were not compared, but in 1970 amounted to $52,145 (two cents a share)). In 1969 no income taxes were paid, but last year $17,000 was allotted to tax, reducing operating cash flow from $107,000 to $83,900. The company is owned 92 per cent by Fort St. John Petroleums, which is 50 per cent owned by Canadian Hydrocarbons Ltd.

United Prov.

Revenue was $1.39 million down from $2.57 million.

President K. R. Browes called the fiscal year a "most difficult and disappointing period" and said "the company had to endure a very costly four-month construction strike and extremely bad economic conditions."

Husky

A quarterly record for sales and operating revenue was set in the period ended March 31 by Husky Oil Ltd. and its subsidiaries.

Gross income of $39.44 million compared with $35.22 million the previous year, or 12 per cent improvement, leading to net earnings of $725,000 (six cents a share) vs. $249,000 (one cent) a year ago.

In the interim, Husky acquired 55 per cent of Empire State Oil Co., which accounted for part of the improvement in sales.

Bow Valley

Seven new permits covering Arctic island exploration work have been received by Bow Valley Industries Ltd., cancelling a provision contained in six and nine-month interim reports for $809,308 extraordinary loss.

Fourth quarter and 12-month reports will reflect this favorable development, the company said.

Bow Valley has exercised an option with its drilling participants to reverse an exchange of interests dated Jan. 12, 1971, restoring the company to its prior position in working, royalty and net profit for Arctic Island, Beaufort Sea and North Sea undertakings.

Britain Key Factor For Plywood

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Council of Forest Industries of British Columbia announced Monday an agreement which would permit B.C. plywood into continental European markets duty-free for the first time if the United Kingdom joins the European Common Market.

Council president G. L. Draeseke told a news conference the agreement opens up new future market opportunities in the common market countries and maintains the important British market.

The opportunity is, he said, that continental countries which do not now use frame construction for houses — in which B.C. softwood plywood is an important element — might turn to it for lowered housing costs, using B.C.-produced materials above and beyond their own production.

* * *

European countries produce mainly hardwood plywood which has uses other than in housing construction. B.C. exports of softwood plywood to the U.K. in 1970 were valued at $24.7 million.

B.C. plywoods now have a five-per-cent duty into the U.K. and a 13-per-cent duty into Europe. The new agreement means that plywood would no longer pay the 13 per-cent duty but that "zero duty tariff quotas will be opened" for it, Draeseke said.

The agreement says the size of the quotas "will be decided annually when it has been established that all the possibilities of supply from producers within the enlarged common market community will be exhausted in the current year."

'New Round Of Inflation'

By AB KENT

Another round of inflation, aided by government overspending, is in the offing for Canadians, says G. Arnold Hart, chairman and chief executive officer of the Bank of Montreal.

Interviewed in Victoria, where the bank's executive and board of directors had Premier Bennett to lunch Monday to mark the B.C. entry to Confederation 100 years ago, Hart said government is ignoring advice from the private sector in attempting to cure economic problems.

He and president Leonard Walker said people in the financial business across the country see another bout of inflation in the offing while unemployment from the last "cure" remains rife.

NOT A REMEDY

But new controls on costs and incomes are no remedy: "wage and price controls would be the last battery in the arsenal" of anti-inflation measures, and are "awfully hard to administer."

"Any number of people have been urging a tax cut, but h (Finance Minister Benson doesn't seem to gt the message. It's private enterprise that develops the economy," Hart said.

The bank chairman said government should do more medium and long-term planning of programs and expenditures to spread spending more evenly, and perhaps some of what is being spent now should be given up.

Universal medicare is "a great worry," Hart said. "It's fine if you can afford it, and for those who need it, but there should be some kind of deterrent — the hospitals and directors can't cope with the load."

He expressed some alarm that this year's medicare bill will be around $440 million and next year's estimate is $550 million.

Asked if more people in business, finance and industry should be advising the government, along the line of the American system of government, Hart said that was "one thing in favor of the American system. They do reach uot and take men from industry. It's being tried in Quebec and I'd like to see it done federally, too.

"There doesn't seem to be the rapport there used to be. They listen, but you come away with the feeling they are not going to do anything."

At a luncheon honoring the premier and Lieutenant-Governor Nicholson, Hart, on behalf of the bank, gave Bennett an inscribed silver gavel bearing the crests of the province and the Bank of Montreal.

OLDEST PENSIONER

Chairman G. Arnold Hart, president J. Leonard Walker and senior B.C. vice-president A. John Ellis took delight in introducing their guests to Thompson, who retired from the bank in 1932 after 47 years' service, mostly around Montreal.

"I joined the bank in 1885 as a junior. We used to deliver the drafts, but they have messengers for that now," Thompson remarked.

He subsequently did virtually every other job the bank offered and no doubt today holds the record for longest, uninterrupted pension benefits.

How does he make out on a 39-year-old pension?

"The bank has been wonderful," Thompson said. "They have increased the amount regularly."

At the end of next month Thompson will be 102.

Residents May Build Plant

MEADOW LAKE, Sask. (CP) — A group of residents of this northwestern Saskatchewan community are considering pooling money to construct a $200,000 cheese-processing plant.

Construction of the plant, which would employ 10 to 12 persons, may begin this summer says Wayne Temple, a spokesman for the group.

Milk from a herd of 150 cows would be piped from barns into the processing area, says Temple. Another pipeline would carry whey, the watery part of the milk left over from the cheese-making process, to a hog barn to supplement pig feed.

The raising of hogs would be secondary, Temple says, but would help pay for the operation. It has been estimated that the whey would make up half of the hog feed.

Manure from both cow and hog barns would be broken down, mixed and marketed as fertilizer.

Temple says the residents intend to form a limited company, but another meeting is to be held before plans are made final.

Meadow Lake, about 150 miles northeast of Prince Albert, is situated in a special designated area which makes industries locating there eligible for federal incentive grants.

Cominco Hikes Price

VANCOUVER (CP) — Cominco Ltd. has increased its price for zinc in Canada by half a cent to 16 cents per pound from 15.5 cents per pound for prime western grade.

Other grades were increased by the same amount.

Giant Airships Suggested In Moving Oil From Arctic

CALGARY (CP) — Use of giant dirigibles is one of the novel ways being considered to transport oil and natural gas to market from remote locations such as the Arctic islands.

"A fleet of airships capable of transporting gaseous, liquid, drybulk and general cargo could conceivably be routed and scheduled on a worldwide basis with the objectives of avoiding bad weather, taking advantage of favorable winds and meeting current demands for transportation service," says Miles H. Sonstegaard.

Sonstegaard, a transportation-petroleum consultant from Fayetteville, Ark., suggests a 6,610-foot airship 2,203 feet in diameter to transport natural gas.

Writing in the 1971 issue of The Landman, published by the American Association of Petroleum Landmen in Fort Worth, Tex., he said the economics of such a project make its consideration worthwhile.

Two British transportation firms, including Manchester Lines, are considering use of the ligher-than-air ships to transport petroleum from North Sea locations.

SHIPS NOW SAFE

A series of explosions blasted dirigibles out of the air transportation picture in the 1930s but experts now feel explosions could be minimized by the use of inert helium rather than the explosive hydrogen used 40 years ago.

With 16 rigs now drilling for oil in the Northwest Territories and the Arctic islands, transportation studies have been intensified.

Strain said Panarctic is also studying plans to fly the oil out. The firm, 45 per cent owned by the federal government, has hired a consultant in the field of transportation economics.

Boeing Aircraft Co. is considering a study on moving Alaskan and Arctic crude by airplane and Dan McIvor of Pacific Western Airlines also says he sees a great possibility in moving oil by air.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

Flax and rapeseed, which were down as much as three cents, had fairly heavy hedge offerings, which were moderately taken by exporters on a scale-down pattern.

Oats and barley were fairly steady with some commercial buying. Rye had fractionally lower prices on commission house liquidation and some inter-month spreading.

Volume of trade Monday included 611,000 bushels of flax, 812,000 of rapeseed and 680,000 of rye.

MLW Wins Big Order

OTTAWA (CP) — A Yugoslavian railway has signed a letter of intent to lease-purchase 20 diesel locomotives from MLW Industries Ltd. of Montreal for $8 million, says Industry Minister Jean-Luc Pepin.

"This is the first time we have had a lease-purchase agreement of this nature with Yugoslavia," the minister said in a statement.

"Under the contract, title to the locomotives will stay with MLW Worthington Ltd., parent company of MLW Industries Ltd., until payment is complete. At that time, title will be transferred to ZTP Belgrade Railways."

Pepin said MLW Industries is one of Canada's more active exporters. The company was building 35 locomotives for East African Railways, 54 for Nigerian State Railways and six for Jamaican Railways.

HAIG-BROWN OPPOSES MORAN DAM

NANAIMO (CP) — The 51 students in the first graduating class at Malaspina Regional College here were told Sunday the proposed Moran Dam on the Fraser River would damage salmon runs and affect the productivity of the Fraser River estuary and the ecology of the Strait of Georgia.

Roderick Haig-Brown, a conservationist and chancellor of the University of Victoria, said in the convocation address that the proposed dam would provide flood control and hydro, but these can be obtained in other ways.

Delta Hotels Refinanced

VANCOUVER (CP) — An extraordinary meeting of Delta Hotels Ltd. shareholders Monday approved a $7 million refinancing program.

Company president William Pattison said under the plan Delta will issue convertible preferred A and B shares. The B shares will be held by a number of companies and individuals who will control the company but will not be permitted to trade their shares for a period of time.

Delta shareholders, in turn, will be permitted to purchase one Class A convertible preferred share at $1 each for each common Delta share held.

The controlling group will purchase 1,250,000 convertible preferred B shares at $1 each.

The remaining $5.75 million will be raised by the Great-West Life Assurance Co., Robert Simpson Co. Ltd. and the Royal Bank of Canada.

Pattison said the mortgage loan with Great-West will have an annual interest rate of 10¼ per cent.

A record date for the purchase of preferred A shares will be announced shortly, he said.

Pattison said Delta expects its net 1971 earnings to be about $300,000 compared with $233,000 in 1970.

Net earnings for the first quarter of this year amounted to $10,790 compared with a loss of $19,209 for the comparable 1970 period.

Before the meeting, Pattison said that Delta Hotels, which operate a number of hotels throughout B.C., needed the new financing plan to overcome "financial problems that have beset the company for some time."

Ambassador To Visit Fair

Swedish Ambassador Ake Malmaeus will visit British Columbia June 1 and 2 for the opening of the fifth B.C. International Trade Fair in Vancouver June 2-12.

His visit will be confined to Vancouver and his plans are to return to Ottawa the afternoon of June 2.

Malmaeus took up his Canadian posting in September, 1969, after assignments in Portugal, France, San Francisco, Washington, Turkey and Stockholm. He is married to a former Winnipegger, Mary Elizabeth McIntyre, whom he met in Paris in 1937.

The Swedish pavilion will consist of 20 exhibits featuring heavy industrial goods and consumer products, notably those for recreation and the outdoors.

Real Estate 'Buyers' Market'

TORONTO (CP) — The Mortgage Insurance Co. of Canada says the Canadian real estate market "is still a buyer's market," but notes that the market is more stable than it has been in past months.

Real estate markets were particularly strong in Edmonton, Calgary, Saskatoon, Vancouver, British Columbia's Okanagan Valley area and Ottawa, Kingston and Sudbury, Ont., the company said in its monthly newsletter.

Real estate was "slow but improving" in Oshawa, Ont., but St. John's Nfld., remained quiet.

BUSINESS AND FINANCE

Chapparal

Field work has started on a 50-claim group with significant copper showing, located 20 miles south of Dease Lake, reports Chapparal Mines Ltd.

Mapping, bulldozer trenching, soil sampling and geophysical survey work to locate drill targets is the program scheduled for the summer. The company said there is strong similarity to Lytton Minerals property two miles east, which has been drilled to establish more than 15 million tons of good grade copper.

Petrofina

Petrofina Canada Ltd. and its subsidiaries report net income of $4.17 million (41.9 cents a share) in the quarter ended March 31, up from $3.75 million or 37.7 cents in the comparable 1970 period.

The figures for 1970 have been restated to include the operations of Finacentres Ltd. and Fina Metal Ltd. which became wholly-owned subsidiaries last year.

Burrard

Burrard Dry Dock Co. Ltd. reports net income of $122,000, or 12 cents per share, for the three months ended March 31, down from $548,000 (55 cents) in the first quarter 1970.

Sales totalled $7.95 million compared to $9.98 million, while operating costs and expenses were $7.78 million, down from $8.56 million in the first quarter of 1970.

Clarence Wallace, president, said the reductions in sales volume and earnings reflect conditions affecting shipyards on the west coast, which to date has not benefitted by federal subsidy offered to foreign shipowners.

W. Pacific

Western Pacific Products and Crude Oil Pipelines Ltd. net earnings of $634,380, or 9.5 cents per share, during the first quarter of 1971, up 24 per cent over earnings of $511,552 (7.6 cents) in the period last year.

Higher earnings were attributed to lower operating costs and reduced interest, coupled with a slightly higher tariff during the current period.

Neill-Hildon

The Hildon Corp., operates in the U.S. and Canada as specialist distributurs of precision measuring equipment and as agents for a number of British tool manufacturers, including the James Neill subsidiary, Moore and Wright (Sheffield).

James Neill has its own subsidiaries in Canada and the U.S. The purchase of Hildon now brings under James Neill's direct control the distribution of all group products in North America, which are currently valued at about $3.6 million a year.

Wardair

Wardair Canada Ltd. incurred a net loss of $996,960 for 1970. No figures for the previous year were contained in the annual report.

The company attributed the 1970 loss to depressed yield from international charter traffic and extensive non-revenue flight hours.

Operating revenue for the fiscal year was $16.4 million with the company showing retained earnings of $1.6 million at the year's end.

The company's gross revenue increased 26 per cent in 1970 from the previous year.

Gr. Pacific

Grat Pacific Industries Ltd. first quarter earnings amounted to $45,378 or four cents a share, down from $124,862 (12 cents) for the first three months of 1970.

The Vancouver-based firm is engaged in manufacture and leasing of factory-built modular products for industrial, administrative and educational purposes, diversified leasing and accommodation.

Van. Isle Gas

Record gas sales of 139.26 million cubic feet, up 6 per cent or 7.8 million feet, are reported for 1970 by Vancouver Island Gas Co. Ltd., which distributes gas in Nanaimo.

Revenue was $287,465 vs. $273,679 in 1969, but total income was offset by a $48,000 decline in sales of merchandise, parts and fittings.

Net earnings were not compared, but in 1970 amounted to $52,145 (two cents a share)). In 1969 no income taxes were paid, but last year $17,000 was allotted to tax, reducing operating cash flow from $107,000 to $83,900. The company is owned 92 per cent by Fort St. John Petroleums, which is 50 per cent owned by Canadian Hydrocarbons Ltd.

United Prov.

Revenue was $1.39 million down from $2.57 million.

President K. R. Browes called the fiscal year a "most difficult and disappointing period" and said "the company had to endure a very costly four-month construction strike and extremely bad economic conditions."

Husky

A quarterly record for sales and operating revenue was set in the period ended March 31 by Husky Oil Ltd. and its subsidiaries.

Gross income of $39.44 million compared with $35.22 million the previous year, or 12 per cent improvement, leading to net earnings of $725,000 (six cents a share) vs. $249,000 (one cent) a year ago.

In the interim, Husky acquired 55 per cent of Empire State Oil Co., which accounted for part of the improvement in sales.

Bow Valley

Seven new permits covering Arctic island exploration work have been received by Bow Valley Industries Ltd., cancelling a provision contained in six and nine-month interim reports for $809,308 extraordinary loss.

Fourth quarter and 12-month reports will reflect this favorable development, the company said.

Bow Valley has exercised an option with its drilling participants to reverse an exchange of interests dated Jan. 12, 1971, restoring the company to its prior position in working, royalty and net profit for Arctic Island, Beaufort Sea and North Sea undertakings.

Britain Key Factor For Plywood

VANCOUVER (CP)— The Council of Forest Industries of British Columbia announced Monday an agreement which would permit B.C. plywood into continental European markets duty-free for the first time if the United Kingdom joins the European Common Market.

Council president G. L. Draeseke told a news conference the agreement opens up new future market opportunities in the common market countries and maintains the important British market.

The opportunity is, he said, that continental countries which do not now use frame construction for houses — in which B.C. softwood plywood is an important element — might turn to it for lowered housing costs, using B.C.-produced materials above and beyond their own production.

* * *

European countries produce mainly hardwood plywood which has uses other than in housing construction. B.C. exports of softwood plywood to the U.K. in 1970 were valued at $24.7 million.

B.C. plywoods now have a five-per-cent duty into the U.K. and a 13-per-cent duty into Europe. The new agreement means that plywood would no longer pay the 13 per-cent duty but that "zero duty tariff quotas will be opened" for it, Draeseke said.

The agreement says the size of the quotas "will be decided annually when it has been established that all the possibilities of supply from producers within the enlarged common market community will be exhausted in the current year."

'New Round Of Inflation'

By AB KENT

Another round of inflation, aided by government overspending, is in the offing for Canadians, says G. Arnold Hart, chairman and chief executive officer of the Bank of Montreal.

Interviewed in Victoria, where the bank's executive and board of directors had Premier Bennett to lunch Monday to mark the B.C. entry to Confederation 100 years ago, Hart said government is ignoring advice from the private sector in attempting to cure economic problems.

He and president Leonard Walker said people in the financial business across the country see another bout of inflation in the offing while unemployment from the last "cure" remains rife.

NOT A REMEDY

But new controls on costs and incomes are no remedy: "wage and price controls would be the last battery in the arsenal" of anti-inflation measures, and are "awfully hard to administer."

"Any number of people have been urging a tax cut, but h (Finance Minister Benson doesn't seem to gt the message. It's private enterprise that develops the economy," Hart said.

The bank chairman said government should do more medium and long-term planning of programs and expenditures to spread spending more evenly, and perhaps some of what is being spent now should be given up.

Universal medicare is "a great worry," Hart said. "It's fine if you can afford it, and for those who need it, but there should be some kind of deterrent — the hospitals and directors can't cope with the load."

He expressed some alarm that this year's medicare bill will be around $440 million and next year's estimate is $550 million.

Asked if more people in business, finance and industry should be advising the government, along the line of the American system of government, Hart said that was "one thing in favor of the American system. They do reach uot and take men from industry. It's being tried in Quebec and I'd like to see it done federally, too.

"There doesn't seem to be the rapport there used to be. They listen, but you come away with the feeling they are not going to do anything."

At a luncheon honoring the premier and Lieutenant-Governor Nicholson, Hart, on behalf of the bank, gave Bennett an inscribed silver gavel bearing the crests of the province and the Bank of Montreal.

OLDEST PENSIONER

Chairman G. Arnold Hart, president J. Leonard Walker and senior B.C. vice-president A. John Ellis took delight in introducing their guests to Thompson, who retired from the bank in 1932 after 47 years' service, mostly around Montreal.

"I joined the bank in 1885, as a junior. We used to deliver the drafts, but they have messengers for that now," Thompson remarked.

He subsequently did virtually every other job the bank offered and no doubt today holds the record for longest, uninterrupted pension benefits.

How does he make out on a 39-year-old pension?

"The bank has been wonderful," Thompson said. "They have increased the amount regularly."

At the end of next month Thompson will be 102.

FOUL BAY ROAD WILL KEEP NAME

A proposal by C. A. Anderson, of 2552 Chelsea, to rename Foul Bay Road after the Queen was turned down by Oak Bay and Saanich councils Monday night.

Anderson feels that "Foul Bay" is "rather distasteful sounding" and that either Queen Elizabeth Way or Queen Elizabeth Road would be more pleasing.

He is supported by another resident, Charles Nelles, 1999 Lansdowne, who describes Foul Bay as "an absurdity — we're two miles from Foul Bay."

UNANIMOUS

Saanich council voted unanimously to retain the street's name after Ald. Leslie Passmore said the historic name should not be changed.

Oak Bay council also voted, unanimously to retain the name unless there was an overwhelming demand by residents for a change.

Ald. Brian Smith said that Foul Bay Road had a history to it and suggested that perhaps a scholarship could be raised instead to mark the recent royal visit.

Ald John Goult noted that Foul referred to the type of anchorage in the bay and said the historic description should not be lost.

Ald. Shirley Dowell suggested that perhaps Oak Bay's proposed major recreation centre could be named after the Queen.

Foul Bay also goes through a portion of Victoria. Last Thursday Mayor Courtney Haddock had also expressed opposition to any change of name.

Pared-Down Pavilion Go-Ahead Given

Oak Bay council voted Monday to go ahead with pared-down plans for the Henderson Park Pavilion but won't build tennis courts in the park this year because of the lack of funds.

The whittled-down design for the pavilion was necessary because the lowest bid was $247,000; $66,000 more than estimated.

The deletion of the tennis courts means a saving of $23,000.

Items cut included $3,365 for concrete walks, a switch from steel to wooden door frames except in heavily-travelled areas, a porcelain drinking fountain instead of steel, and several mechanical items.

Also to save costs municipal workers will install such items as a water main, asphalt paving, concrete curbs and gutters, exterior catch basins and a sanitary line from Cedar Hill Road to the building.

Some items were added. These were $3,800 for underground wiring, $3,000 for a referees' room and first-aid room, and $550 for aluminum flashing on the roof.

In other business council:

- Approved expenditure of $5,491 for installation of storage space, five offices and a staircase in the basement of the new branch library.
- Agreed to have a sod-turning ceremony at the library site Friday at 2:30 p.m.
- Accepted a tender for $11,567 for kitchen equipment in the new senior citizens' centre.
- Referred a request from Oak Bay's recreation commission that a day-camp be run this summer to the parks and recreation committee. Ald. Shirley Dowell suggested that such a program might duplicate the Y camp.

"About a third of the children attending the Y camps are from Oak Bay," she said.

SNORER RATES SOLITUDE FOR OUTING

BARNSLEY, England (UPI) — The outing committee of the East Dene Working Men's Club has decided that Kaej Taylor must have a special room when the club goes to Margate this year — or not go at all.

The problem is that Taylor is a loud snorer — so loud, in fact, that he says he sometimes wakes himself up. Last year many club members complained they could not sleep because of all the racket.

Taylor says he does not mind having a special room. "I realize I am one of the world's worst snorers," he said.

YARMOUTH, Maine — Wesley Storer, 22, was never in the U.S. army and he had no combat training. But when his younger brother Glenn came home from Vietnam disillusioned with the war, Wesley decided to take his place on the front line. "We're not sure what happened or how it happened," the boys' father, Carleton Storer, said. "But Wesley decided that since he was not likely to be drafted, he ought to share Glen's service." So Wesley put on his brother's uniform and went to Vietnam in April in his place. The hoax was discovered when someone in his battalion reported a civilian in their midst.

KOBE, Japan — Employees of a small Japanese company not only save money by not smoking on the job, their boss pays them higher wages. Chuichi Yoshioka, 64, head of Yoshioka Kogyo, says he has been paying bonuses of $36 to $40 a month for three years to workers who do not smoke on the jb. The bonuses now go to all his 45 employees. Smoking one cigarette takes about five minutes, Yoshioka says and an average smoker spends 1,000 minutes a month smoking. The bonus is for an additional 1,000 minutes on the job in the factory, which makes instruments and tools.

VANCOUVER — John Melville McEwen, 60, of West Vancouver followed in his sons' footsteps Monday by joining them in the practice of law as he was formally admitted into the Law Scoeity of B.C. McEwen ran his own agricultural feed business in Burnaby for nearly 20 years, keeping it going all through law school until he graduated and began articling in April, 1970. His sons, Anthony, 30, and David, 27, are in private practice in Vancouver and Abbotsford, but the senior McEwen will join the legal department of B.C. Hydro.

Mexican Students Looking for Homes

Seven Mexican students, ages 11 to 16, need homes with Victoria families from July 6 to Aug. 31.

Llona and Casey O'Gorman of Victoria (phone 477-2615) who are arranging the placing are looking for homes with children the same age as the Mexican students.

Host families provide the visitors with board and room and the students are expected to fit into the household routine and take part in the daily life of the family, said Mrs. O'Gorman.

The purpose of the program is to acquaint young people from Mexico, Central America, Canada and the U.S. with life in each other's countries.

3 CITY STUDENTS

At the same time the seven Mexican students arrive three Victoria students will be on their way to Mexico to make their homes for the summer with families there.

The Victoria students are Lisa Purves and Heather Purves of 4531 Bissenden and Michael Scott-Harston of 2505 Cotswold.

All seven of the Mexican students who are coming to Victoria have some understanding of English and hope to improve their knowledge during their stay, said Mrs. O'Gorman.

The visitors are Monica Rosenblueth, 13, the youngest in a family of four children, and a reading and swimming enthusiast; Victor Payro, 11, who is interested in football, basketball and swimming; Juan Carlos Lavin, 13, who likes football and prefers to live in a suburb or small town; Fernando Esteban, 13, who plays the guitar, likes football and basketball and wants other children to play with; Jose Manuel Velasco, 14, who likes sports, chess and cards and would like to live on a farm; Francisco Javier Peredo, 16, a Boy Scout, interested in camping, sports, collecting stamps and coins, and music; Fernando Sanchez, 16, who plays sports, and likes parties and modern and classical music.

Mrs. O'Gorman said she is making a particular plea for summer homes for the two 16-year-old boys. Older children are usually more difficult to place than the younger ones.

Canadian Club Meet

Delegates from all over Canada will attend the three-day biennial Canadian Clubs' convention June 6 to 8 to the Empress Hotel.

About 100 visiting delegates are expected, said H. A. Powell, of the Men's Canadian Club of Victoria.

Vancouver Sun publisher Stuart Keate will discuss the question Can a British Columbian Find True Love in Canada at the convention dinner June 7 at 7 p.m.

On Wednesday the delegates will be entertained at a reception at 4 p.m. at Government House.

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING SELLS THE MOST

Here's one for ~~the~~ experts!
Firenza
GM's newest and lowest-priced little car.

You know what you want in your next small car.
Our new Firenza has it all!
Front disc brakes!
Power brakes all 'round with discs in front. Standard equipment! Cars costing twice as much as Firenza can't offer that. So drivers of many big cars gladly pay extra for the extra advantages of power disc brakes. If they're good for big cars, think how confident you'll feel in our little car with the improved brake life and fade resistance of disc brakes up front. And the reassurance of having self-adjusting front brakes and corrosion-resistant brake lines and a dual master cylinder brake system with warning light. All at no extra cost!
Lots of power.
How many cars in Firenza's class give you 94 gross horsepower? Or a 1975 c.c. overhead-cam engine that goes beautifully on regular, no-lead or low-lead fuels — and with lower exhaust emissions? Firenza puts all that in your grasp with a sporty four-on-the-floor standard transmission. And has a new three-speed automatic developed for Firenza available as an option.
We proved it!
The new Firenza is one of the most thoroughly tested and proved cars on the market. It earned its Mark of Excellence the hard way at a GM proving ground so tough, so demanding you wouldn't believe. It checked out as a very strong, ready, willing and very able car. A quality car!
Safety & Anti-Theft
It has a comprehensive safety and anti-theft package as standard equipment. Including a GM-developed energy-absorbing steering column with anti-theft column lock and an ignition key warning buzzer.
Standard luxuries.
It has an upper-level ventilation system for quiet, comfortable, windows-up driving. It gives you surprisingly-generous room — most notably, extra legroom in front and extra hip and shoulder room in back. And it's one of the easiest-to-get-into cars for its size, anywhere.
Choice choices.
You can choose from four Firenza models. A couple of two-door sedans, a four-door and a sweet little wagon so stylish people who never considered a wagon before love it as a "car with a 62.3 cubic foot trunk." All models have front disc brakes, 94 horsepower, full-coil suspension, front bucket seats, such rarities in its field as a full-size trunk, the convenience of an automatic choke and the sureness of rack-and-pinion steering. And it's proudly serviced by over 500 Firenza-Pontiac dealers all across Canada.
The Marked car.
Firenza! A new economy import with all the quality and value of the Mark of Excellence — at GM's lowest price!

Hawks Relax With Golf, Favored to Win Cup Tonight

CHICAGO (CP) — Chicago Black Hawks traded in their hockey sticks for golf clubs Monday, but they will return to their familiar tools tonight for the deciding game in the Stanley Cup final.

Coach Billy Reay and many of the Hawks had previously been committed to play golf in a sports celebrities tournament honoring Jack Quinlan, former Chicago baseball broadcaster killed in an auto accident during baseball's spring training five years ago.

But today the Hawks have a team meeting set for noon, a light skate by some of the players—especially those who have seen limited playoff action—then the grand finale.

The seventh game against Montreal Canadiens set for Chicago Stadium at 7:30 p.m. CDT — 5:30 p.m. PDT — will bring the curtain down on the longest-ever National Hockey League season.

The Canadiens forced a deciding game with a 4-3 win Sunday at Montreal Forum to even the series at three games apiece.

No one is prepared to concede a home-ice advantage, but that's the way the series has gone to date. Chicago won the first two games here, Montreal took two at home, and in the two other games the clubs have each taken home-ice wins.

With the seventh and last game here, the oddsmakers have made the West-Division-champion Hawks favorites by about 8 to 5.

Tonight's game between Montreal and Chicago will be telecast on Channels 2, 6, 7 and 12 and broadcast on radio CBU (690) starting at 5:30 p.m.

NHL interest is booming in the United States during the current Montreal-Chicago final and CBS television network, which previously had confined its league coverage to Sunday afternoons, will be carrying tonight's game nationally in the U.S.

In addition, transmissions to independent stations in Boston, Philadelphia, St. Louis and the Minneapolis-St. Paul areas have been confirmed with the possibility that one or two other stations will join the hookup.

"It's fantastic the number of telephone calls we had after Sunday's game to carry the seventh game nationally in the U.S.," an NHL spokesman said Monday.

Centre Stan Mikita summed up the players' feelings Monday with assurances there was no way the puck would bounce in favor of the Canadiens tonight as it did in Montreal Sunday.

"A couple of bad hops (in the third period) beat us. . . . But we can't be worrying about that in the seventh game. If we play the same game in the Stadium, we'll win."

Mikita was referring to bounces that set up the tying and winning goals by the Mahovlich brothers, Frank and Peter respectively.

BILL WALKER

The weekend in review, or let's hear it for Reg Clarkson. He identified himself Sunday as a man of the people. Besides, he reinforced his status as a golfer, maybe a better one than he has been given credit for.

Clarkson Sunday moved into the Times Island Match Play Open golf final. He did it with relish, too, for a humbled majority. For here was a weekender who knocked off a professional. It was Mr. Middle Victoria making his pitch. Norm Boden, a former champion, went one down at the first hole, and was never closer than that thereafter.

The crunch that is supposed to separate the greats from the also-rans came on the 27th hole. Once four up, Clarkson had lost two in a row, the 24th and the 25th. Besides, Boden had just knocked in a 16-foot putt for a par on the 205-yard 27th. Clarkson was faced with one of almost equal length.

There was no hesitation. Just a smooth stroke. "Plop". The ball was in the cup. Boden's temporary advantage was over. Clarkson had survived. He had passed the test. That was the key hole, or as a spectator remarked:

"He won't quit. Boden will have to beat him."

But if Boden thought he had seen the best of Clarkson on that putt, he was in for yet another shocker. On the 32nd Boden had a six-inch putt for a par. Clarkson was about 20 feet away. Surely now Boden could cut the deficit. Not so. Clarkson putted through the debris caused by the storm and into the cup to save the hole. It was Boden who now was shaken. He bogeyed the next two holes and the match was over. Now Clarkson gets to meet another professional, Bill Wakeham, in the final.

Wakeham, another professional, and a more famous personality, had an easier time in his match. But only after lunch. In the downpour of the morning, 16-year-old Bob Beauchemin proved again that he has a great future. He took a one-hole lead over Wakeham.

In the afternoon, however, the inexperience of youth went to work against him with disastrous results. Besides, he had three putts that stopped on the lip of the cup. Beauchemin's main failing was his anxiety to play the shot. It was his first major experience before a gallery, too, which didn't help the cause. But he will be heard from. With a swing like he's got, there is no doubt.

Sunday's match-up should be a dandy. Wakeham, on experience alone, should win. But Clarkson won't scare easily, if at all. Ask Ron Cush, Ken Nott, Rick Kent. They all had him beaten — or thought they had, on his way to the final.

Meanwhile, back in Baltimore, when Canonero II won the Preakness, as the story said, "all hell broke loose" . . . If this wasn't one of the best horse races of the year, you can't disprove it by Eddie Maple. He was the jockey on Eastern Fleet, a colt which ran the second fastest Preakness ever run. The fastest was by Canonero II, the winner. Maple said: "My horse didn't stop; the other horse just ran faster." Now if the South American invader is to be a wonder-horse, he must win the Belmont, third jewel in the triple crown.

Can he do it? Who knows? Others have tried and missed. Other good ones. Majestic Prince failed in 1969. But the Frank McMahon colt was sore-legged and not at his best either when he tried. The last horse to do it was Citation in 1948.

There was no doubt about the condition of Canonero II on Saturday. Jockey Gustavo Avila said simply "It was no race," even though the translation came out like Canonero II's life history. The interpreter was that happy. He answered questions that weren't asked.

The Venezuelan contingent was just as great as their pride and joy. One kissed the ground, others danced on the track, another broke into song on national TV. It was sheer delight. In the Kentucky Derby, the Venezuelan victory party lasted until the following Wednesday. This one may last until June 5. That's when they run the Belmont.

How will Canonero II do?

Best answer of all was the trainer's quote, which came on a later broadcast, Juan Arias said: "Now, maybe they will quit making fun . . . they laugh a little in Louisville . . . they laugh a little in Baltimore. I don't think they will laugh in New York . ."

●

Then there is that continuing fuss on the National Hockey League front which concludes tonight. How can anyone honestly predict a winner. The two clubs are evenly matched, and if Chicago Black Hawks appeared as if they should have won on Sunday in Montreal, you can't prove it by the Mahovlich brothers. They simply took over, and were great.

But then so was Jim Pappin of the Hawks. His first goal Sunday was a joy to behold, and his second wasn't bad either. But to no avail, finally.

Still, it must be clear that the two key players throughout the series have been Tony Esposito in the Chicago nets, and goalkeeper Ken Dryden for Montreal. It's too bad there has to be a loser. For between them they have made it a series to remember. In this book.

Yankowski Sets Pace In Opening-Game Win

John Yankowski helped stake Greaves Movers to an early lead, which survived a last-inning assault by Al's Home Service and produced a 6-4 victory in the season-opening Senior Amateur Baseball League game Monday at Royal Athletic Park.

Yankowski scored a run in the first inning, batted in another in the second, then drove in two runs and stole home in the fourth frame as the Movers grabbed a 5-0 lead.

Rick Cooke held Al's scoreless until the seventh inning when three bases-on-balls, a two-run single by Russ Holmes, a run-scoring single by Terry Strandlund and a grounder by Dave Wallace accounted for the four Home tallies.

Paduano Feature Dish In Lunch-Box Special

NEW YORK (CP) — Before the fight, Paddy Noonan and his band blared out with When Irish Eyes Are Smiling. But afterwards the Italians did all the laughing because Donata Paduano punched his way to victory over Bobby O'Brien in Madison Square Garden.

Paduano, 22-year-old Italian-born Montreal fighter, came on strong in the last half of the fight to win a close, but unanimous, 10-round decision in his professional debut as a middleweight.

O'Brien, a 25-year-old string-bean from Long Island, was billed as Irish Bob O'Brien, and before the fight in Madison Square Garden's Felt Forum Paddy Noonan and his band performed with young tap dancers. It was part of the Garden's new punch-and-lunch program: A box lunch could be obtained in the arena.

EARLY SMILING

But those Irish eyes were smiling in the early going.

Paduano, usually a slow starter, seemed lost in the shuffle in the first four rounds as O'Brien connected at will with left-right combinations. Paduano semingly had no defence against O'Brien's aggression as the Irish faction in the Garden lived it up.

But near the end of the fifth round, the tide of battle turned and Paduano started catching the onrushing O'Brien with lightning combinations. Now it was O'Brien who was the bewildered one.

BECAME UNCONFUSED

The confused O'Brien became unconfused and the two fighters went at it hammer-and-tongs for the full three minutes. But that proved to be the turning point in the lively scrap as O'Brien was not the same thereafter.

Paduano came out loaded for bear in the ninth round and caught the tired O'Brien with a savage right to the jaw followed by an equally-jarring left hook and had him staggering all over the ring when the bell rang.

Paduano kept up the blistering attack in the final round, but somehow the wobbling O'Brien managed to stay on his feet as the crowd gave both fighters a standing ovation at the final bell.

RUSSIA OUSTS CANADA IN WORLD HOOP MEET

RIO DE JANEIRO (CP-Reuter) — The Soviet Union trounced Canada 94-44 Monday to qualify for the finals of the women's world basketball championships. The loss eliminated the Canadians from the championship round.

The win left the Russian team with four points on two wins and the Canadians, beaten 50-50 by Cuba Saturday, with no points after losing both qualifying games.

Canada had been placed with Russia, Cuba and Argentina in Grup A in the qualifying play and the top two teams in each group advance. Cuba also won both its games in the qualifying round to join the Russians in the final round.

Also in the final round, which starts Wednesday in Sao Paula, will be South Korea, France, Czechoslovakia, Japan and Brazil, the host country.

Swanson Pitches One-Hit Shutout

Bob Swanson hurled a one-hit shutout and Harv Stevenson supplied much of the batting power Monday as Bate Construction blanked Seaboard Construction 5-0 in Victoria Major Men's Softball League action at Central Park.

Stevenson connected for a two-run single in the first inning and then blasted out a solo home run in the second frame. George Banks also hit a solo homer in the second inning to Give Bates a 4-0 lead.

Argentinians Collect Draw

VANCOUVER — The touring San Fernando field hockey club from Buenos Aires, which will face a Vancouver Island representative team at Victoria's Royal Athletic Park on Thursday, played to a scoreless draw Monday with the B.C. Presidents XI, a composite squad from the Vancouver area.

Both teams played a strong defensive game with Harry Preston and Davey Kellett standouts for B.C.

Garr's Two Homers Too Much for Mets

By The Associated Press

Ralph Garr of Atlanta Braves was standing on the corner watching the baseball go by.

"Yep, I just watched the ball from the batter's box after I hit it," said Garr, who is nicknamed Roadrunner for his blinding speed. "I knew it was out of the park — but I was afraid it might go foul."

The reason for the freeze, Garr said, was that he wanted to conserve his energy—in case the ball was foul "and I would need all my strength to run on the next ball."

But his fears were groundless. The ball sailed into the left-field fair territory and gave the Braves a 4-3 victory over New York Mets in the 12th inning Monday night.

Earlier, Garr tied the game with a two-out home run in the 10th inning.

EXPOS EDGED

In other National League games, Pittsburgh Pirates beat Montreal Expos 6-5; Philadelphia Phillies turned back Cincinnati Reds 3-2 and Houston Astros beat San Diego Padres 2-0.

Garr's game-winning shot came off reliever Ron Taylor, the Toronto native, but he said it wasn't as memorable as the one hit earlier off New York ace Tom Seaver.

"It was a good pitch," said Garr, "I had no business hitting it out of the park. If he threw it 100 times, I'd never hit it out again. . . ."

Garr not only made timely hits, but timely catches as well. He made two robberies of drives in the outfield, including Bud Harrelson's long belt up the alley in left-centre, which the Roadrunner simply outran.

Orlando Cepeda was another brave hero, stroking a homer off Seaver to lead off the ninth that tied the game 2-2. New York's Don Clendenon than ripped his second homer of the game to give the Mets a 3-2 bulge before Garr came through.

PIRATES COME BACK

Roberto Clemente, who unloaded a homer in the eighth, cracked a two-run triple in the ninth to give Pittsburgh a come-back victory over Montreal.

In the American League Tom Hall came out of Minnesota Twins' bullpen in the ninth inning and struck out three successive pinch-hitters, stranding the tying run on third base and saving a 3-2 Minnesota victory over California Angels.

The 155-pound fireballer, working in relief of Bert Blyleven after singles by Ken McMullen and John Stephenson put the Twins in a deep hole with nobody out, fanned Billy Cowan, Ken Berry and Jim Fregosi to end the game.

Elsewhere in the American League, Boston Red Sox nipped Detroit Tigers 3-2, New York Yankees downed Baltimore Orioles 6-3 and Cleveland Indians beat Washington Senators 6-3.

At Anaheim, the Twins overcame a 2-0 California lead on George Mitterwald's two-run homer and Jim Nettles' run-scoring single in the fifth inning.

Blyleven, nicked for two unearned runs in the second, went on to strike out 12 and stymie the Angels on five hits until the ninth, when McMullen stroked a leadoff single and raced to third on Stephenson's single.

Hall then came on to snuff out the rally.

Oil King Boss Promises Win

QUEBEC (CP) — Bill Hunter, general manager of Edmonton Oil Kings, has a promise for followers of his junior hockey team: They're going to win the second game of the Memorial Cup playoff series Wednesday night.

Hunter made the vow shortly after his team was defeated 5-1 by Quebec Remparts in the first game of the best-of- three series to determine the No. 1 first-level junior A hockey team in Canada.

"We weren't sharp," said Hunter. "We needed that game though. We haven't played since May 5.

"We will see Wednesday night, though. We are going to win Wednesday."

The Oil Kings, Western Canada Hockey League champions, got off to a good start against the Remparts as they constantly forechecked the fast-skating Quebec team in the opening period, preventing them from mounting any concerted attack.

The forechecking paid off in a goal by Dan Spring at 4:08 of the opening period, with the Oil Kings' Dave Kryskow in the penalty box serving a high-sticking infraction.

But the Remparts, described by Hunter as "the best skating junior club in Canada," came on strong in the second period and grabbed a 2-1 lead on goals by Michel Briere and Andre Savard.

MISSED CHANCES

"I think Edmonton missed too many good opportunities in the first period," said Remparts' coach Maurice Filion after the game.

Filion said he was impressed by the strong forechecking of the western club.

Rich Offer For Canonero

A $4 million bid for the $1,200 yearling, surprise winner of the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, was reported Monday at Pimlico.

Meanwhile, it was reported that the Venezuelan government was interested in buying the horse to spur interest in breeding in South America.

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — Shawnigan Lake Boys' School again left none of the silverware for rivals by collecting all three titles at the 10th annual International Rowing Regatta on Saturday.

Shawnigan Lake has won the three titles — regatta, B.C. high school and independent schools — for the past 10 years.

The host school finished with 67 points in the 10-school meet, 26½ more than runner-up Lakeside of Seattle. Brentwood College was third with 14 points, St. George's of Vancouver and Green Lake of Seattle finished in a fourth-place tie with six points, Sentinel of Vancouver was sixth with four points, Lord Byng of Vancouver placed seventh with two points and Overlake of Seattle came eighth with half a point.

Ian Johnson of Shawnigan won the 1,500-metre single scull race in six minutes and 46 seconds and will represent B.C. at the Canadian championships in St. Catharines, Ont., later this months.

The Shawnigan heavyweight varsity fours won the 1,500-metre event in 5:38.0 and will also be travelling to St. Catharines.

Although Shawnigan won the eight-oared event, Sentinel was chosen to represent B.C. in the eights at the Canadian championships because of previous good racing times. One organizer explained that Sentinel was chosen "as a compromise move" to give greater selection on the B.C. team.

TEE TOPICS

By Ernie Fedoruk

It's impossible to say what Bob Beauchemin's second thoughts were following his loss to Bill Wakehame in Sunday's Times Vancouver Island Open semi-finals at Uplands.

Wakehame was the betting choice, but the hunch players leaned heavily towards the 16-year-old Gorge Vale junior and tournament medallist. The favorite prevailed, 5 and 4, after being one down when they paused for lunch.

If Bob starts thinking about his match again, he might do well to study his pace. He lost it abruptly, and his one-up advantage quickly turned into a six-hole deficit.

He hurried his shots and rushed his putts. At times, he was belting fairway shots while the crowd was still moving into viewing position around him. It seemed as if he wanted to make it a two-hour game.

It showed on the 20th hole. Wakeham, having won the 19th to square the match, went down in the regulation four strokes. Beauchemin was left with a four-footer for his par and a hole-saving half.

He stepped up quickly, tapped the putt, and missed. Beauchemin fell behind for the first time, and never recovered.

This doesn't mean he should dawdle five minutes over one short putt, because that's not his style either. Rather, he should find a pace that suits his temperament. When he finds it, he'll soon have another chance to take another whack at Mr. Wakeham.

Pacing is included in the lengthy chapter entitled "experience."

The first Inter-Club League pairings came out Monday and produced a few surprises. Vaughan Trapp's name was missing from the Victoria lineup while Gorge Vale intends to go without Al MacLeod.

Vaughan was away for most of the past week, but the big reason he won't be playing Wednesday is a conflict of shifts in the Oak Bay pro shop.

MacLeod's omission is a greater surprise than Beauchemin's absence, or Trapp's. MacLeod has been a consistent point-winner for Gorge since competition began. During the 1968 and 1969 campaigns, MacLeod won 11 to 12 matches.

Most of the clubs have indicated they plan to shy away from juniors, since the teen-agers have their own inter-club league. At least, that's the way the unwritten rule read.

So Gorge Vale left off Beauchemin, but Colwood included Sid Murdoch.

It's old, but re-discovered, and I still like the story they tell about Sam Snead.

The portly, well-to-do club member watched the Slammer for several minutes on the practice fairway. When the chance came, the galleryite moved in to solicit advice from the master on the problem of holding the green with long iron shots.

"Mr. Snead, how do you stop those 210-yard 2-irons?" he asked.

"How far do you hit a 2-iron?" Sam asked.

"About 160 yards."

"Then," Sam wondered, "why do you want to stop it?"

SHORT CHIPS: Sunday's stormy conditions hit Victoria Golf Club hardest . . . The Oak Bay course lost both the eighth and ninth tees . . . Both had been re-seeded and had been coming along nicely . The waves washed away all of the spring's labor . . . Hole-in-one celebrant Sunday was Gorge Vale's Vern Spence . . . He canned his tee shot on the par-three 14th while playing in a foursome with Maury Vollet, Ernie Oiverl and Terry Moody . . . Isobel MacGillvray and Vic Henderson captured top honors in the spring mixed twoball tournament at Cedar Hill . . Runnersup were Laurie Genn and Greg Barnes . . . Amateurs who hope to play in the Cedar Hill Open (May 29-30) might be in for a disappointment if they don't get their entries in this week . . . At the rate they are pouring in, Bill Goldsworthy figures the limit of 200 will be reached by the weekend.

Stormy Chase for Lipton Trophy

Gale-force winds threw a whammy into the works Sunday when local boats raced off Victoria in competition for the Sir Thomas Lipton Trophy.

About a third of boats in the fleet threw in the towel and abandoned the race; among them being Tom Loney's Hammerhead, Steve Merriman's Vandal, Ron Saunders' Irrawaddy, Gordie Nickells' Redskin, Hugh Bacon's Marijo and Claire Copeland's Sea-Fax III.

The 13 boats that stayed in there had the ride of their lives with several sail changes as the wind increased.

Winner of the testing—on handicap—was Bob Grundison's Owl, one of the local Thunderbird sloops that will be in competition when the Thunderbird world championships are held here July 10 to 16.

Owl was the third boat to cross the finish line, the honor of being first going to Frank Bush's Concubine.

★ ★ ★

Bush gave shoreside-watchers an extra thrill as he skippered his boat down the last leg to the line. He hoisted his spinnaker in the high wind and, inspite of some dicy gyrations flew her almost up to the committee boat.

On corrected time, Concubine ended in fourth place.

In second and third spots were Denny Coverdale's Melee and Brian Saunders' Impulse.

★ ★ ★

Lewis helped himself to a pretty lusty workout Saturday when winds were piping about the 25-knot work.

Single-handed, he gave sightseers at Oak Bay Marina a thrill as he tried out a 13½-foot dinghy that's due to make the Victoria scene soon.

Her lines and sail plan are the work of former Montrealer Bruce Kirby, editor of One Design and Offshore Yachtsman, and an Olympic helmsman of repute.

Ian Bruce, best known for the International 14 he produces, designed the Laser's rig and produces it. He, too, is an Olympic helmsman and has won two world championships in the 14.

Deadlock for One Title In Pin Champs' Tourney

Competition in the fifth annual tenpin "tournament of champions" at Mayfair Lanes Sunday was highlighted by a deadlock for first place in the division for mixed teams.

VITRAs, champions of the Monday Gold Crown Mixed League, and F. W. Shaw, leading team in the Starlighters Mixed League, were declared co-winners and will receive duplicate awards after each posted a 2,892 total in the handicap event.

Shaws compiled their total tally with a 2,371 pinfall and a 521 handicap while VITRAs, working with a 622 handicap, had a 2,270 pinfall.

Champions of the Funlover's League, A-Go-Gos took honors in the women's division as they used a handicap of 649 for a 2,926 total and a 57-pin margin over the runner-up Dave Stubbs Construction quintet.

Pick-Ups, top team last season in the Sunday Men's Commercial League, topped the men's section by the narrow margin of 10 pins as they counted 2,685-280—2,965 while the second-place Victoria Auto Wreckers finished with 2,505-450—2,955.

Individual efforts included a 126 triplicate by Gerry Robbins.

Rolling high single games among the male trundlers were Wilmer Michell (217, 202), Tom Ferris (213), Wall Weinberger (211), Sheldon Nipp (211) and Ken Yip (210).

Jack Thompson notched the men's top three-game total of 586 and was followed by Brian Barker (581), Weinberger (570) and Michell (567).

Leading the ladies was Helen Young, who rolled with two teams. Helen posted single games of 203, 201 and 200, and fired three-game counts of 537 and 530. Nan Irwin had a 532 triple and other high singles were scored by Etta Shaw (200), Reta Clarke (190) and Pat Cliff (190).

Inter-Club League Opens Wednesday

Inter-Club League play for the Willie Park Driver, one of the most popular events enjoyed by the district's low-handicap golfers, gets under way Wednesday.

All six Greater Victoria 18-hole clubs are campaigning for the ancient driver donated by the late Walter Gravlin.

In opening matches, which involve singles as well as foursomes play, Cedar Hill will be at Glen Meadows, Colwood visits Uplands and Victoria plays at Gorge Vale.

CEDAR HILL at GLEN MEADOWS

ROYAL COLWOOD at UPLANDS

Laurie Kerr and Ken Floyd vs. Don Billsborough and Dave McCall; Ron Howard, Jr., and Bruce Pelmore vs. Bob Hunt and Keith Burnell; Jim McMurran and Sid Murdoch vs. Ken Noll and Frank Scroggs.

VICTORIA at GORGE VALE

Jim Anderson Blasts Pair

Jim Anderson wielded a mighty bat Monday to pace Bell's Men's Wear to a 12-3 victory over previously unbeaten Colwood Inn in a Stuffy McGinnis Major Men's Softball League game at Heywood Avenue Park.

Bell's victory ended a Colwood unbeaten streak at four games.

Anderson tagged two home runs during four trips to the plate a solo effort in the fourth inning and a two-run smash in the fifth.

Three New Teams in Chase For Distaff Softball Honors

Players will be throwing and swinging at two sites tonight as four clubs launch a new season for the Victoria Senior Women's Softball League.

Opening the campaign at 6:30 p.m. will be Cablevision Juniors and Tillicum Athletic Club, who clash at Lochside Park, and Westendale Constructionettes and Esquimalt Junior Combos, slated to tangle on Beacon Hill's northeast diamond.

Tillicums will be back in action Wednesday at the same time when the league's three new clubs — Canadian Forces Roadrunners, Moose Lodge Loyals and Independents — start work on their 24-game schedules.

Tillicums will meet the Roadrunners, coached by Don Siemans, at Naden Field. Coach Bob Smith's Independents will play the Loyals, handled by Kevin McCarthy, at northeast Beacon Hill.

CABLEVISION COACH

Among players listed with the Cablevision crew, coached this year by Dave Tribe, are catcher Joanne Mick, pitcher Pat Kutney and infielder Barb Tribe, who played last season with the provincial senior "B" champion Victoria Vicettes.

Expected to provide power for Westendale, handled by Frank Fast and Tony Bishop, are Heather Wood, co-winner of the 1970 most-valuable-player award; Julie Hood, sidelined last season by an ankle injury, and Myrna Harris, ending a two-year retirement.

Standouts for the Combos of Chuck Savchoo could be Stephanie Corby, Marilyn Sluggett and Joanne Farrell while Tillicum coach Ron Drayton will be counting on the talents of all-stars Maxine Stoval, Marrilyn Tobacco and Jean Deslippe.

150 New H-Bombs Ready For Placement at Minot Site

By MICHAEL GETLER

WASHINGTON (WP) — In the next few days the United States, with no public fanfare, will put 150 new H-bombs on the line at the sprawling air force Minuteman base at Minot, N.D.

This act is part of the drama — some say tragedy — of the weapon known as MIRV, the multi-headed missile which lies at the heart of crucial decisions that must be made in Washington and Moscow before the year is out.

Hanging on those decisions is another enormously costly and potentially dangerous upswing in the nuclear arms spiral.

About 175 miles from Minot, at another Minuteman base at Grand Forks, N.D., defensive missiles are being installed as part of the U.S. Safeguard ABM system.

The ABMs at Grand Forks are supposed to provide a protective umbrella for both bases against Soviet missile attack.

SOVIET MIRVS

In a sense the stretch of flat farmland across the top of North Dakota has become an unlikely miscrocosm of modern weapons strategy, both offensive and defensive, and of the arms race itself.

Ironically, the 150 new warheads at Minot were designed to penetrate a massive Soviet ABM network which was never built.

Now the Soviet Union seems bent on perfecting MIRVs of its own to penetrate the Grand Forks Safeguard system, which is being built.

How all this happened provides an insight into the action-reaction phenomenon of the arms race between the two superpowers, and why it is so hard to stop — as the deadlocked strategic arms limitation talks in Vienna testify.

MIRV stands for multiple independently targeted re-entry vehicle. Several nuclear warheads are packed into a single missile's nose and each of the bombs maybe sent to a separate traget.

MORE TARGETS

This technique allows hitting more targets for less money with fewer missiles. And it also means that one country can overwhelm another's missile defence by showering enough MIRVs down so the enemy used up all his ABM interceptors — leaving cities and military bases naked before the next wave of warheads.

MIRV is not just another weapon. It is viewed by foes and supporters alike as the most important and hellishly clever weapon since the A-bomb, H-bomb and the ICBM.

Unlike the ABM, there is no doubt that MIRV will work.

Case Of U.S. Actions Prompting Red Reaction

And unlike the bomber, there is no doubt it can get through defences.

Packed within its 10-year history, is a glimpse of the arms race in its most insidious form.

● MIRV was "invented" by the U.S., at least partially by accident. Those who oppose it view MIRV as a classic example of arms technology so irrestible that a strategy was devised to make use of it. Those who defend MIRV describe it as the by-products of legitimate fear and uncertainty over Soviet arms and intentions.

● It was thought of initially for one role in 1961-62, that of hitting many targets with a few missiles, but was pressed into full-scale development in the mid-1960s based on another mission overcoming the would-be Soviet ABM defences.

● The decision to push development of MIRV as an ABM counter was made by U.S. Defence Secretary Robert McNamara because, ironically, it was felt then to be less provative and less likely to fuel the arms race than alternative air force demands to add thousands more Minuteman ICBSs.

● Even though the massive Soviet ABM that was feared in 1964 never materialized, the drive to test and deploy MIRV was never reversed.

In January, 1969, U.S. Defence Secretary Clark Clifford acknowledged curtailment of the U.S. construction around Moscow — the only place an ABM was being built — but told Congress, "We must continue to plan . . . on the assumption that they (the Soviet Union) will have deployed some sort of an ABM system around their major cities by the mid-1970s."

● The very existence of the MIRV project was kept top secret — though there were some press leaks — until 1967. By the time defence critics in Congress sensed its importance and organized debate. It was 1969 and multiple warheads were already being test flown.

Opponents on Capitol Hill argued unsuccessfully that the U.S. already had more than enough single-warhead IBCMs to get through the small Soviet ABM, limited to only 64 launchers around Moscow.

NO RUSH

If MIRV was eventually needed, they said, it could be installed quickly — faster than the Russians could expand their ABM — because it was already developed. With the SALT talks scheduled to begin late in 1969, there was no need to rush into a $10 billion project to put MIRV on 550 of the 1,000 Minutemen and 31 of the 41 U.S. missile-firing submarines.

This year Senate opponents say it is likely that an amendment seeking to hold up money for MIRV will be tracked to the military spending authorization bill.

● Whether McNamara was right or not about MIRV being less provocative, the multi-headed weapon carried the arms race to higher plateaus on both sides with no added security, and to the brink of still larger expenditures.

The Russians, as expected, eventually began working on MIRV too. Now it is the official fear here that by 1975 or 1976 the Soviets could have enough huge SS-9 missiles with powerful triplet warheads to wipe out all but a handful of the U.S. Minuteman missiles in a surprise attack.

That possibility is behind President Nixon's backing of the $10 billion safeguard ABM to protect Minuteman. It is also behind recent warnings by Defence Secretary Laird that more bombers, missile-firing submarines and ABM bases will be ordered if the Soviet build-up continues.

NOW REAL

Laird, in fact, has introduced still another rationale for keeping MIRV moving.

Whatever the wisdom of the initial development by the U.S., the SS-9 and its anticipated MIRV capability are now real. This, in Laird's view, makes it essential to put MIRV on Minuteman so that even if all but 50 of the 1,000 Minutemen are knocked out in a surprise attack, the remaining missiles could hit 150 rather than 50 targets.

Could some or all of this have been avoided if MIRV had stayed in the laboratory?

In the U.S. besides the 100 triple-warhead Minuteman III missiles now on the firing line, the navy last month sent a second submarine to sea carrying 16 new Poseidon missiles. Each MIRV Poseidon can flight at least 10 warheads at Soviet cities.

Sometime in 1975, the roughly 1,700 land-and-sea-based U.S. ICBMs will be able to hurl about 7,200 individual H-bombs.

In the Soviet Union there are these new developments:

By 1972, the Pentagon believes, the Russians will begin fitting the first of their 228 SS-9 ICBMs with a triple-warhead MIRV. There is some evidence — still ambiguous — that this process may have already begun.

The U.S. has recently spotted a smaller type of container — probably for shipping a warhead — at an SS-9 site. This could be for a MIRV, or it could be, as some experts add, for a fractional orbital bombardment system (FOBS) or for a so-called (depressed-trajectory ICBM. Both of these techniques, designed to evade U.S. warning radars, use the SS-9 with and FOBS is said to be a single, smaller warhead, operational now.

School Plan Switched In Saanich

The Greater Victoria school district has switched plans for locating a new secondary school in the Cedar Hill area of Saanich, council was told Monday night.

The district wrote asking for the use of six acres at the north end of Cedar Hill Park for playing fields.

Municipal administrator John Tribe said school officials indicated they have approached CHEK-TV, 3693 Epsom, to have the school located on that property.

"They changed their minds, then," said Mayor Hugh Curtis, noting that previous plans called for a location at the south end of Cedar Hill Park.

Tribe said the officials admitted a change in plans, because of changing population trends. He also said school officials have looked over the whole area and can't find another property.

Council, which has not received a rezoning request, appointed an ad-hoc committee to talk with municipal and school officials on a new site "in that area."

Saanich's Cedar Hill Park development plan foresaw the high school and a municipal community centre at the southeast corner of the park. The northerly end would be for a golf course or park.

Stacks of pancakes, displays of tenting gear, motorcycles and a midway rewarded those who braved the wind and rain at the Saanichton fairgrounds.

Sponsored by the First South Tsartlip Venture Group, the Pancake Day was designed to spur interest in Scouting for older boys from all over the peninsula, between Royal Oak and Deep Cove.

Ex-Scoutmaster John Reitan and Hank Shaw of the Venture Group were in charge of the day-long celebration which was officially opened by Mayor A. M. Galbraith of Central Saanich and attended by Mayor Jim Cumming, North Saanich; Mayor Stan Dear, Sidney, and Ald. Les Passmore, representing Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis.

Scheme Approved

Saanich council agreed to initiate a 61-suite apartment under the National Housing Act Monday night after hearing that a non-profit group could not gain a one-third grant from the provincial government because accommodation included both senior citizens and handicapped persons.

The apartment thus joins a Saanich initiation of 19 townhouses, agreed to earlier, on a site between Darwin and Vernon near the municipal hall.

The Victoria Multiple Sclerosis and Cosmopolitan Aid Society for the Battem-Fielding Memorial housing project said a private donation of $100,000 would then be applied to the second phase including an activity centre and "possibly" a hostel for the handicapped.

Municipal administrator John Tribe said Saanich will not be involved in capital costs — this is paid by the two senior governments — but would pay ⅛th of any operating deficit but would receive full property taxes.

TOWNHOUSE GO-AHEAD GIVEN

One Vote Makes Difference

One vote made the difference at Saanich council Monday night when three readings were given to a rezoning bylaw to permit a 72-unit townhouse development at 3987 Gordon Head Road.

Last month, council voted 5-to-4 to approve the project following the second public hearing this year.

On bylaw readings, a simple majority is sufficient on first and second readings. But third reading, and final reading which comes up at the next council meeting, require two-thirds majority, or six of the nine council members.

Ald. Frank Waring made the switch, from a no vote at the public hearing to a yes vote Monday night. He joined previous supporters — Mayor Hugh Curtis and Aldermen William Campbell, Leslie Passmore, Edith Gunning and Edward Lum.

Remaining opposed were Aldermen William Noel, Alan Newberry and Foster Isherwood.

Asked later why he changed his vote, Waring said he hadn't changed his mind about the land use.

"I came to the conclusion that the real objection was not to the specific project but a fear that the use might proliferate," he said.

"Everything I read regarding housing indicates we must find other than single-family development if we ever hope to solve the housing problem."

The council meeting saw a plan of the area, prepared by the planning department and drawing largely on previous recommendations in the Apartment Study and the University Area Plan.

Planner Tom Loney said planned unit developments, at higher densities than single-family houses, should be "very seriously considered" but that the background of single-family houses "will always be paramount."

SEVERAL PLAN

Council agreed with a suggestion by Ald. Newberry that a study be undertaken in the area adjacent to the townhouse development with a view to declaring it a development area.

Under this, a general plan is sketched for the area with individual projects negotiated between Saanich and the developer and this is then brought to a public hearing as a land use contract binding upon both sides.

Second Look

Saanich council agreed Monday night to take a second look at a committee recommendation in favor of an ice surface in the Cedar Hill area.

Council's recreation study committee had recommended the $260,000 ice surface as the fourth phase of a 1967 recreation program, which had listed the fourth project as "community centre, McRae property."

The majority of council said there is no great urgency and care should be taken in the selection of both the project and the site. It was agreed to table the recommendation for reconsideration by the committee.

OPERATORS FACE FINES—BENNETT

Mobile home park operators will have to abide by the law, Premier Bennett said Monday.

He was commenting on a telegram he received from the Western Mobile Home Parks Association saying its members won't collect the fees to be assessed under the Mobile Home Park Fee Act.

"An act of the Legislature is an act of the Legislature," Bennett said, and added that the operators will be subject to fines and penalties if they don't pay the fees.

The act, which assesses monthly fees of $3 to $8 on mobile homes in trailer parks, calls for penalties of $25 to $200 in fines against park owners who fail to collect the fees.

The association, meeting in Prince George, refused to collect or remit taxes under the act which went into effect May 1. The group also calld for "equalization" of taxes for homeowners in mobile homes, which do not qualify for the homeowner grant.

28-Province Plan Rapped

Premier Bennett said Monday that increasing the number of provinces in Canada would be a good way to increase bureaucracy and the costs of government.

Reducing the number of provinces to five, as suggested by Bennett in recent years, would be a good way to reduce costs and make government more efficient, he said.

He was commenting on a federal Conservative Party study group's suggestion to increase the number of provinces in Canada to 28.

UNDIES THIEF FINALLY UNDONE

EPSOM, England (UPI) — Jonathan Howe decided he had had enough after a thief stole 26 pairs of his wife's panties, seven bras, five petticoats, two pantie girdles and four nightgowns from their clothes line.

He set a trap with her brightest, flimsiest and sexiest lingerie — and waited, a court was told. At 11:30 p.m. a young man dashed into the garden, stole all the clothes and ran.

Howe chased the man in his car and held him until police arrived. Laborer Terency Aylwin, 22, pleaded guilty to theft charges and was remanded for a month for reports.

What nature forgot.

Nature gave man little personal protection. It gave him only the intelligence to fashion his own protective devices and the common sense to use them.

The human head is crammed with more delicate machinery than a computer but the skull is only one-eighth of an inch thick. It's worth protecting.

Eye injuries are often tragically final. The loss of sight means a monumental adjustment. And eye protection is so simple.

The eardrum's delicacy is underestimated. That is why many workmen who have been exposed to certain types of industrial noise over a long period, go slowly deaf. Forever.

Lungs are like vacuum cleaner bags. Unprotected, they become receptacles for industrial dust and toxic fumes. Eventually, they accept no more.

Hands are highly engineered tools. They perform more skills than any part of the body. Yet, their safety is too often neglected.

We need those feet. But things do drop. Heavy things. A steel-capped boot can save a lot of pain and grief.

Modern safety clothing is well designed. Comfortable. And sensible. We set and enforce equipment regulations to keep you safe. Follow them. Respect your body and protect it. It's the only one you have.

CHINA BUILDING OWN JET FIGHTER

WASHINGTON (NYT) — China is producing for the first time a jet fighter of its own design, according to senior U.S. analysts.

Up to now China has concentrated on producing planes from Russian blueprints obtained before the schism between the two countries in the early 1960s ended their military co-operation.

The new plane, designated the F-9 by American analysts, is a twin-jet fighter roughly based on the MiG-19 design, but said to be considerably advanced, and different in several important aspects from Soviet aircraft.

Sources say China is believed to be turning out the F-9 at a rate of about 10 a month.

The F-9 is said to fly at more than twice the speed of sound — roughly 1,400 miles an hour — with a combat radius of 300 to 500 miles. That means it could fly from its base to a point 300 to 500 miles away, engage in combat operations there, and then return home without refueling.

It is said to be 50 feet long, with a 32-foot wing spread, and to weigh about 22,000 pounds. It is reported to be equipped to carry rapid-fire 30-mm machine-guns, bombs, rockets and air-to-ground missiles.

Previously China has produced MiG-19 and MiG-19 fighters, the TU 16 medium bomber, MiG-15 and Yak-18 trainers, MI-4 helicopters and AN-2 biplanes, all from Russian blueprints, sources say.

Last Great Tragedy Of Vietnam—Heroin

SAIGON (NYT)—The use of heroin by U.S. troops in Vietnam has reached epidemic proportions.

The U.S. Military Command, the American Embassy and the South Vietnamese Government have been slow to awake to the crisis. Now they are intensifying their efforts to curtail the easy flow of heroin to the soldiers, punish the sellers and rehabilitate the soaring numbers of Americans who use what they and Vietnamese sellers call "scag."

So serious is the problem, that Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and Gen. Creighton Abrams, U.S. military commander, recently met with President Nguyen Van Thieu on measures to be taken by the Saigon government, including agreement on a special task force that will report directly to their governments.

Like a parent who has suddenly discovered that his son is a junkie, the U.S. Command has reacted with confusion and uncertainty. Should the kid be punished and kicked out of the house? Or should he be encouraged to confess all and be helped to recover?

The answer has been to try both, but with a heavier emphasis on punishment. Officers are arguing the basic question of whether the military has a responsibility to go all-out to cure men they view as weak enough to use heroin. And the command does not want to make treatment of drug users "too attractive" out of fear that more men would turn to heroin just to get out of Vietnam.

The figure on heroin users most often heard is about 10 to 15 per cent of the lower-ranking enlisted men. Since they make up about 245,000 of the 277,000 U.S. soldiers here, this would represent as many as 30,000 men.

Some officers working in the drug-suppression field, however, say that their estimates go as high as 25 per cent, or more than 60,000 enlisted men, most of whom are draftees. They say that some field surveys have reported units with more than 50 per cent of the men on heroin.

"Tens of thousands of soldiers are going back as walking time bombs," said military officer in the drug field. "And the sad thing is that there is no real program under way, despite what my superiors say, to salvage these guys."

Most efforts so far, whether aimed at drying up the supplies or handling the addicted, are proving ineffective.

While moves to crack down on smuggling and improve police work are clearly important, there are experts who argue the pushers will merely counter by increasing their level of competence.

Silver Threads Scores Chest Image

* * *

It's 'Monolithic' and Too Money-Oriented

By PETER McNELLY

The Silver Threads Service this Spring told the Community Chest it is too concerned with money and has a "monolithic, bureaucratic" image, the Times has learned.

The society also accused the Chest with having done too little to promote the work of is 25-member agencies.

And a major review of chest policies has been underway since March, partly as a result of the Silver Threads' action.

A member of the Chest's board of directors has confirmed that the review is taking place, but said he had not yet read a Silver Threads brief dated Feb. 25 which was critical of several of the Chest's internal practices.

In its brief to the Chest, the society criticized duplication among agency services, Chest accounting practices, agency-Chest budgeting techniques, publicity methods during the annual United Appeal campaign and Chest policy for dealing with shortfalls.

"It is apparent that there is and has been a duplication of services amongst certain member agencies. There is no doubt that this duplication increases administration costs," the brief said.

The Silver Threads then asked the Chest to "provide the leadership" in implementing the recommendations of the Capital Region-Community Council social services study of 1970 which called for major re-organization of services in the region.

"Nothing will be gained by a dilatory approach or prolonged discussions with member agencies on methods. Immediate action will gain public approval, no action will seriously affect the 1971 campaign."

The brief also noted that the Community Chest does not submit accounts statements to its agencies after the United Appeal drive has finished.

It said accounts should be submitted showing the campaign goal, the amount collected, cost of collection, net amount collected, the surplus or deficiency, agency budgets and amounts proposed for each agency, proposed use of surpluses and ways of meeting shortfalls, amounts held in contingency and reserve funds and the proposed Chest budget for the coming year.

"In general there seems to be an over-emphasis on money and a lack of appreciation of the roles of the member agencies," the brief said, and suggested the Chest "must have some concern and appreciate that the agency is concerned with growth and improving the quality of its service."

●

During agency-Chest budgeting sessions, said the society, the Chest should not "patronize" agancy members and should be better acquainted with agency problems:

The brief reminded the Chest it is dealing with the public's money and is not the "boss organization." It even noted that Chest budget committee members have kept agencies waiting for appointments.

"If the agency members can be on time, the Chest budget committee can be on time."

The Chest "should resist any temptation to control agency policy through fanciful cuts of expenditure where the agency is satisfied cuts cannot be made, or in fanciful suggestions of sources of revenue where the agency knows they do not exist," the brief said.

On the issue of the United Appeal campaign, the Silver Threads told the Chest it has failed to put across publicly the roles of its member agencies.

"There is too much 'Chest' in the Appeal. To the public the Chest appears monolithic, bureaucratic and insensitive . . . At present the agencies and particularly their roles seem secondary to the Chest and the annual raising a large sum of money paramount."

●

The Silver Threads said "it would be refreshing" if the Chest told the public exactly how much money all agencies require for the coming year and set a campaign goal on this figure.

Then, if the drive fails short, the Chest can tell the public how much the agencies are going to be hurt.

The brief called upon the Chest to create a planning section to plan requirements for future appeal drives and assist agencies in working out long-range programs.

It warned that continuing deficits cannot be permitted to impair the quality of agency services. It suggested the Chest "modify its policy with regard to the agencies seeking non-Chest financial support."

"From the agency point of view the proposition is simple: If the Chest cannot support the agency, the agency must look elsewhere."

City Coolly Accepts Plea for 'Old Town'

After some stiff but controlled argument over the merits of preserving the city's old buildings, both sides discovered they are not too far apart.

Even Mayor Courtney Haddock, who criticized the delegation for its implied "condemnation" of the city's planning efforts, decided there is no "conflict of purpose" between the old town concept and the addition of new buildings in the downtown area.

The 13-man delegation from the Old Town Advisory Committee brought along Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce president Philip Holmes, and its brief was printed on Chamber of Commerce stationery.

Holmes met Haddock's questions, saying he would "preserve" the old Dowell Building on Wharf Street, but he is also in full favor of the proposed Reid development across the road on the Waterfront.

Sam Bawlf, who said he tried to buy the Dowell building a few years ago from the city, said at the time "we found it entirely economic to do so."

The brief said that the small area between the harbor and the central business district is "the finest group of 19th century buildings on the Pacific coast" and contains the "birthplace of Victoria."

THREATEN TO CARVE

The brief said plans for changing the old town area "seem to ignore pedestrian linkages which unite the area, and threaten to carve the old town shape into isolated blocks.

"There have been cases of indifference to the demolition of old buildings on the excuse that they are unsound and unusable, which is substantially untrue.

"Plans are being made for new developments in the area which, if not designed for street level compatibility, will smother its small-scale old-world personality. Any of these three could destroy the unity and character essential to the old town's survival."

'VITAL EXERCISE'

Holmes said the brief "does not in any way envisage . . . a prohibition of new development . . . but it does envisage the retention of old classical buildings."

Holmes said all the delegation wanted was to get council to "adopt the concept" of old town preservation, then try to "fulfil that concept" in guiding redevelopment.

Haddock said he wanted to know specifically which buildings are worth preserving because most of them are "crumbling brick."

Planning chairman Harold Olafson objected to the plan because it would interfere with what people wanted to do with their private property, but he said later the city "had agreed to the concept with (construction of) Bastion Square."

Legal Action Considered In Yet Another Pool Delay

Opening day for Victoria's new crystal pool has once again been pushed back, probably to November.

Legal action to compensate for the delay is being contemplated by the city.

Architect John Di Castri project supervisor, told the city's recreation committee Monday the contractor, H. E. Fowler, said he has fallen behind another 40 working days.

The last date given for completion of construction of the $1.8 million pool in Central Park was Aug. 6. Allowing for familiarization of the new building, opening day was to be Sept. 15.

By this standard, Oct. 4 is the latest completion date, with opening day falling on or about Nov. 10.

The topic arose when Ald. Ove Witt said he wanted to know whether the contractor was trying his best to finish the pool, or just "fluffing around."

"I just think it's a disgrace . . . so I come and look at it and I can't come up with any answers because it doesn't look like they are doing anything," he said.

Originally planned for completion last December, work stoppages last summer forced postponement of the opening day to early July, just in time to host two national swim meets as opening events.

"Do you really feel that the contractor is working at the speed you want him to work at?" Witt asked Di Castri.

Concerned about the progress himself, Di Castri asked the contractor for an explanation.

On April 30 he had 39 men on the job, Di Castri said, quoting from the company's letter. Some difficult overhead work had resulted in the project falling behind by 40 working days, but the contractor felt "we cannot substitute speed and accuracy as required" for an early completion date.

The only detail given Monday of legal action being considered by the city was that the city has written a letter to the contractor's bonding company.

When recreation chairman Ald. Percy Frampton asked if there were any more questions, Mike Griffin said: "Yes, when is it going to be finished?"

Latest cost figures for the pool were also presented to the recreation committee.

Including a $40,362.54 contingency fund, the total comes to $1,821,694.55.

HOSPITAL BID $294,831

The bid was actually $294,831, not $394,831.

G. H. Wheaton was the low bidder at $289,000 with Cana Construction next at $292,800.

Three Indian Students Hired As Museum's First Guides

Three Indian students from the University of Victoria have become the Provincial Museum's first official guides.

They are Ardyth Cooper, 18, of Sooke, a first-year arts student; Rod Naknakin, 23, of Cape Mudge who has just completed his third year in arts and sciences, and Margaret Vickers, 21, of Kitkatla on Dolphin Island, who is studying physical education and counselling.

Museum education officer Wilma Wood is enthusiastic about the new project, which began May 1 and will end Aug. 31.

ENJOYING WORK

Financed under the First Citizens' Fund, she said it "gives the general public an opportunity to bridge the two cultures."

The three guides are enjoying the work.

"But," says Margaret, "although most people are genuinely interested there is still the small number who don't really feel that we're all part of the human race — all homo sapiens.

'KID' THEM ALONG'

Rod will return home in late June to do some commercial fishing with his grandfather. His place will be taken by Jim Nicholas, a Cree Indian from Manitoba.

He and Margaret are amused by comments made by some of the American tourists.

"They keep telling us we're very different from their Indians. They don't seem to realize that we don't have geographical borders — we're all North American Indians."

DEEP MEANING

All three are eager to see the temporary Indian display made into a permanent exhibit.

Rod said such things as dancers' capes and masks have deep, fundamental meaning that, at present, is not brought out.

Their two weeks at the museum have given assurance to the trio that a real effort is being made to restore their people's culture to its former greatness.

Driver Fined $950 After Chase

Robert J. Devine, 719 Princess Street, was convicted of driving with a blood-alcohol content of over .08 per cent and was fined $350 for that offence; of dangerous driving, $300; of driving with no valid insurance on his vehicle, $250; and of driving without a valid driver's licence, $50.

Police testified they chased Devine's car along Lansdowne after observing the car being driven in an erratic manner. The car was weaving in and out of heavy traffic, court was told, and Devine's car barely avoided sideswiping another vehicle.

His car reached speeds of up to 75 m.p.h., police said.

When Devine was stopped, his breathalyzer reading was .11 per cent and he was found to have no insurance or licence.

Court was told Devine had previous convictions on traffic offences, including impaired driving and driving with no licence or insurance. He had been fined $350 in March of 1969.

Devine told the court he had never owned a driver's licence.

He pleaded guilty to the four charges today and Judge William Ostler allowed him time to make payments on the fines.

Female Inequality Denied by Unionist

Women enjoy equal rights with men in most British Columbia contracts, a union spokesman said today.

Statistics in a provincial labor department survey, which showed 95.1 per cent of contracts contain no equal pay provision, are "misleading," said Bill Apps, B.C. representative of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers and chairman of the B.C. Federation of Labor's human rights committee.

"The report indicates that if it is not in the contract, females do not have equal rights. It is only where there are two rates, for example Male $3 and hour and Female $2 an hour — that's discrimination," he said.

Asked if there are such examples of different pay rates for the same work, Apps said "You might find some, but they are disappearing. In most agreements women enjoy equal rights."

* * *

He said in the CBRT's railway contracts covering 19,000 workers, women "have always enjoyed equal pay and rights and can compete for any jobs on seniority."

He said there is no clause stipulating equal pay for equal work, but there was no provision or a lesser rate for female workers.

"In our contracts there is a rate for positions and no mention of male or female. You'll never see in any of our railway agreements Male or Female," he said.

In hotel agreements, he said there is a rate for waitresses, for example, but it was a rate for a position and not for women.

The CBRT did not have an equal-pay clause because it is not necessary because positions are covered, he said.

arthur mayse

THE MIND MAY DEAL IN logic, but the heart doesn't always do so. It cost me a twinge last Sunday morning to watch our daughter and her husband board a Viscount at Pat Bay. Also, it set a memory tapping for admittance.

The good-byes had been said. I'd managed, more or less, to refrain from showering last-minute advice on a capable pair who didn't need it.

We waved, me not quite sure that I was watching the right window. The plane rolled to its runway. Then Steve and Sue were off on the first leg of their journey to Yellowknife in the Northwest Territories where they will make their new home.

In a way, time had come full circle. I kept remembering another young couple who had set out like that, though not by plane, and in a different direction.

My partner in that venture remembered, too. We talked about it, heading in along the highway, and it all came back as if it had been yesterday.

We'd been living in Vancouver then, in a little rented house with roof-corners that stuck up like ears. Life was pretty good. We had friends. Our respective parents were located within visiting reach. I grumbled about my job, but not too seriously.

There was no tangible reason why we should decide to up stakes and try our luck in new country. We hadn't talked about doing so, and each was as surprised as the other to learn one foggy night in late winter that we shared the idea.

We did talk about it then, and from talking fell to planning.

On an evening a few weeks later, we said our good-byes. Our people did their best not to burden us with a spate of sound advice. I realize much better now that such withholding costs parents a stern effort.

Then we boarded a train and were truly on our own, as a couple can never be until they've put the known and familiar behind them.

There's sadness in parting. Even so, I think it's good for the young to break away from the places where they do their growing up. If they return it is with eyes opened to the fact that other worlds exist, and with standards of comparison they wouldn't have acquired otherwise.

We went to Toronto. I got into magazine work there, and eventually turned to free-lance writing. We lived for an unencumbered interlude in a one-room apartment with a converted clothes closet for kitchen. Then we bought a house, acquired a family and settled down.

Those were good years in every way. We did not pine for the West Coast. It was no part of our intention to return to British Columbia.

Life moves in phases. We were happy in that phase, and didn't know it was ending until the end began in a year that forced a hard decision upon us.

We could continue in Toronto, or we could follow a plainly indicated course and move on to New York.

We put off deciding — came west with our children for a Vancouver Island holiday instead — and realized without much conscious thought that a third avenue was open.

Our choice was made, or rather it made itself. Early the following summer, we moved to Victoria. And although we'd never lived here, it was like coming home.

That was a considerable time ago. Long enough for a daughter to grow up and marry, and with her husband, set the scene for another leave-taking.

We'll miss them, but good luck to them!

BACK-TO-EARTH LEARNING

Outdoor Classes Score Hit

By ANN DUNSMUIR

Students in Grades 6 and 7 at Margaret Jenkins Elementary have completed a three-week course in outdoor education designed to prove that learning and living are inseparable.

Teachers at Margaret Jenkins came up with the idea when a planned out-of-town trip for students proved too expensive. The school board agreed to help finance the outdoor project as a pilot study.

* * *

In the United States, 40 public schools have camping as part of the regular curriculum. Boards of education in Toronto, Regina and Calgary have recently established the program.

Highlight of the course for students was the week spent at Camp Thunderbird studying language arts, science and math outdoors. The previous week had been spent in classrooms preparing for the outdoor "labs."

The 88 students taking part in the project were supervised by a team of teachers, student teachers and resource personnel from the school board. Divided into groups for outdoor classes, the student-teacher ratio was one to eight.

* * *

Vice-principal W. L. Kirby believes "the sooner we break down the idea of education and school being synonymous, the better."

The camp motto was "take nothing away but your memories, leave nothing behind but your foot prints."

Allan Brooks, a biologist from South Pender Island, volunteered to teach at the camp. He believes outdoor sciences can only be taught outdoors in a dialogue between students and teachers.

Two months preparation for the project involved school board members, teachers, students and parents.

The board paid the rent for the school board, have alfood and students held a fair to raise money for a cook and nurse.

John Brens, an army cook just returned from a tour of duty in Cyprus, gave up part of his holidays to cook for the camp. He served a lunch of soup, hamburgers, salad, chips and pie with parade-ground efficiency, assisted by three Victoria Senior Secondary School students.

Three secondary school students, Rick Cawsey, Don Rogers and Kim Peters, got in a week of practical experience for their community services course.

* * *

The staff at Margaret Jenkins, preparing a report for the sschool board, have already had requests from other schools for information on how to organize and finance an outdoor education project.

Roy Lister, supervisor of intermediate instruction with the greater Victoria School Board, also was pleased with the curriculum. He feels it was a "terrific experience" for students, not just an outing, and thinks the students have learned something about relating learning to everyday life.

Kirby was particularly pleased with one student, considered slow in classroom work, who in outdoor studies turned out to be the best in the group.

* * *

Kirby believes that the most important lessons learned at the camp were awareness and alertness. "Some people go through life and never even notice a change in the seasons," he said.

Kirby fears the organization was a bit too structured. He would not hold classes in any one subject on future projects.

"I would just take them out in the woods and have things look as though they happened accidentally," he said.

And one student agreed. His single criticism of the camp was that "some things reminded me of school."

Women Working —But for Less

TORONTO (CP) — Women can take little comfort from the thought that they have been hit less by unemployment than men because they may work for lower wages, says Sylva Gelber, women's bureau director in the federal labor department.

Miss Gelber said today that the failure to ensure the principle of equal pay for equal work has adverse social effects, particularly in periods of high unemployment.

She told a convention of the direct sellers' association that in March this year the unemployment rate for men over 25 was 7.2 per cent and only 3.6 per cent for women workers.

While other factors are involved, she said, the figures indicate that employers are tempted to replace highly-paid male workers with women who may acceptably be employed at lower wage rates.

She suggested that unions complaining about the use of women workers should see it in their interest to push for equal pay for equal work. "A woman worker is not a threat," she said. "Cheap labor is."

She added, however, that not only unions but courts and governments as well have failed to unhold the principle. Frequently, equal-pay legislation had been overlooked or ignored. A text of the speech was released in advance.

Autistic Children Are Group's Concern

EDMONTON (CP) — Helping to educate the public about the autistic child and his problems is the main project of the National Council of Jewish Women's newest city branch, Leah Levity of Victoria said Monday.

"We became involved in aid for the autistic child this February," she said in an interview during the council's biennial meeting being held here this week.

"Victoria has the only Society for Autistic Children in Canada and it needed help in getting organized and in finances."

So the Victoria branch, which was formed three years ago, decided to aid with both finances and trained volunteer help until the society could become stronger.

"This is the typical way the council helps—by trying to get a project on its feet, then stepping out into some other community need," she said.

TOKYO LOCKED IN

TOKYO (UPI) — The 11.6 million residents of the world's biggest city were urged to stay indoors and to abandon their cars Monday when the municipal government issued its first smog warning of the year.

Fanned by a high rise in temperature, the combination of factory smoke and auto exhaust fumes created a health hazard nearly two months earlier than last year, when 30 school girls were felled by choking smog.

SOLID NUTRITION VALUE

Lowly Soybean Can Replace Meat

By HILDA BEASTALL

Don't knock the lowly soybean.

Soybeans are accepted today by most nutritionists as a food source of high-quality protein suitable as a frequent substitute for meat.

Apart from this, dry soybeans add their low-cost, high-rating protein to other daily foods and will extend the protein value of meat when it must be used in small quantity on account of high prices.

Here's how to handle them: Freezing the soaked soybeans cuts cooking time. The method recommended is as follows: Soak 1½ cups dry soybeans in 2 cups cold water for 2 hours, or longer. Then place in freezer tray or compartment of refrigerator to freeze solid, or overnight.

When wanted, remove from freezer and add to a saucepan containing 1 cup of vegetable cooking water. Cover, bring to boiling point, then simmer for about two hours, or until the beans are tender. The beans should not actively boil at any time. More hot liquid can be added if needed.

When almost tender (soys are always firm, not mushy), add salt, pepper, finely slivered onion, and ½ cup finely sliced celery stalk with its green leaves. Cook 10 minutes longer.

* * *

To make a baked casserole dish with a small amount of leftover ham or turkey pieces, take the soybeans cooked with onion, celery and seasonings as above, mix with 1 cup of cooked brown rice, 1 cup ham or turkey scraps (in small pieces); add 1 beaten egg in a quarter cup of vegetable cooking water if same amount of liquid is lacking with the beans. Pour into a 2-quart casserole. Sprinkle top with 1 tablespoon of wheat germ. Cover with lid and bake for 30 minutes at 300 degrees, removing lid for the last 10 minutes.

These amounts are enough for 4 to 6 persons, depending on quantities of vegetables accompanying the main dish.

The flavor and texture of cooked soybeans is so different to other dried beans that they soon become a favorite dish. This eases the strain of not knowing how to stretch the food dollars enough to include sufficient meat for good nutrition.

A covered container of cooked soybeans may be in the refrigerator for three to four days to use a few whenever opportunity occurs.

Mash some for adding to vegetable soups; mix a cupful with diced fresh apple and bacon, heat and serve on wholewheat bread. Or mash cooked soybeans to paste, season and spread as sandwich fillers.

Whatever use you put them to, you will find an increasing liking for the rich subtle flavor and texture of soybeans.

'Russian Roulette by Thumb'

By ELIZABETH BENNETT

Saanich police, unswayed by the infrequency of crimes related to hitch-hiking, have a name for it: Russian roulette by thumb.

Saanich was the last area police department contacted, and his report on crimes related to hitch-hiking was the same as all the others: they are few and far between. Yet like all other police, the Saanich spokesman was dead set against hitch-hiking.

"Look, you try to teach a child not to play with matches so he won't burn the house down," he said. "We teach our children not to accept rides with strangers. Yet they do it when they are young adults."

Most young adults know the loophole in the only law that can be used against hitch-hikers and stay on the sidewalk, the gravel margin or outside the yellow line. Unless the hitch-hiker is on the road itself, the police can't touch him.

Most will also carry enough money, cash or traveller's cheques to catch a bus out of a particularly unfriendly town — or evade a vagrancy charge.

All police can do is warn of the dangers and hope that incidents elsewhere, like the recent murders in Richmond, will provoke some second thoughts.

Hitch-hikers themselves say that in Victoria rides are few. One young man, picked up near the Adult Institute, said more middle-aged drivers stop than persons his own age.

Another group of young men in the Victoria West area found little difficulty in getting rides, but said many of the drivers were so erratic they worried about reaching their destination.

The Esquimalt police spokesman was concerned about this danger, and said they had had at least one case recently when a hitch-hiker was killed when the drunken driver with whom he had been riding was involved in an accident.

"We are all critical about driving with wives or neighbors we don't feel are good drivers," he said.

"Here you have youths who will let themselves be picked up by anyone. They don't know the driver. He could be impaired or driving a stolen car or just a bad driver. You can't tell that about a person in a few seconds."

Both hitch-hikers and the drivers who pick them up depend on the eye-to-eye contact just before the door closes — then they are committed to each other's company. Many hitch-hikers avoid sunglasses to increase their chances of being picked up.

Others advise short hair and neat-as-possible clothing, but some younger drivers negate this by only picking up freaks — people whose clothing suggests a shared life-style.

But there are freaks that even the freaks avoid, and the cleanest cut young man can be a homocidal maniac. This is what worries the police.

They know that someday, somewhere in Victoria, someone is going to make the wrong curb-side choice.

Breakthrough Promised For Brittle Bone Ailment

By KAY CHRISTENSEN

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Nine-year-old Alan Miller of Dayton, who has suffered from a disease that weakens bones and makes them brittle, has had 56 bone fractures since birth. In the last year, however, he has had only one fracture, a marked decrease.

Edward J. Eyring, assistant professor in the surgery department at Ohio State University, hopes Alan's progress symbolizes the beginning of a medical breakthrough.

Alan was one of 10 patients in a recent study conducted by Eyring and supervised by Professor Virginia Vivian of the school of home economics. The project originally was intended to study the effects of high vitamin C intake on the formation of collagen, the connective tissue in bone.

"We weren't really trying to treat fractures," said Eyring. "We got into a chemical study just as a byproduct."

The high vitamin C treatment may prove to be a medical answer to the bone disease Osteorgnesis Imperfecta, which is characterized by brittle bones and frequent fractures. Eyring said he had predicted about 25 fractures in the group for the year they were under treatment, but only three were actually observed.

"I don't think it's conclusive yet," said Eyring. "I think it'll take years and years of study. It's sort of like cancer research — you try anything you can — grasp at straws."

Eyring described several cases of this disease he had treated.

"One boy used to get these fractures just stepping out of bed," he said. "He would break his legs putting his shoes and socks on, getting dressed. These are the very desperate cases."

He said the disease hits about one person in 50,000. Some babies suffer the disease at birth and die shortly afterwards, and others suffer with fractures throughout their lives. He said many are confined to bed because their bone structure is so weak that their chest or spine collapses, causing heart and lung failure.

"The disease is sort of odd," he said. "When they go through puberty, the fractures generally stop. They're (the patients) pretty deformed — one girl had over 300 fractures. She was unable to transfer from the chair to the bed, confined to a wheelchair. She had trouble breathing because her chest had trouble expanding."

According to Mrs. William Miller, Alan's trouble was not so serious that he could not carry on normal activities for youngsters his age.

"He participares in most things other boys, do," Mrs. Miler said. "The only restriction placed on him is to 'be careful.'"

She is not certain if the vitamin C treatment he received helped his condition or not.

"There have been no drastic signs of change," she said. Alan's mother said the boy had only suffered one fracture in the last year, however, he has been on the vitamin C treatment — and that's the longest period of time he has gone without a break.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Celebrate Divorce

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Have you ever heard of a divorce party? Albert (my "ex") and his new wife are giving it to celebrate the anniversary of his wife's divorce. Albert says he has never been happier in his life. I am about to marry a terrific guy and I've never been happier. Albert says they aren't inviting anyone who hasn't been divorced. ("No sense wasting good liquor on people who can't appreciate the happiness a divorce brings," he says.)

My fiance says he'll go if I want to, but it sounds kooky to him. What do you think? Divorced and Happy

DEAR DIVORCED: It sounds kooky to me, too. But then, I've never been divorced.

DEAR ABBY: My boy friend will soon receive his Ph.D. When he gets it should I start introducing him as "Doctor?" I don't want to ask him because I don't want him to think I am ignorant. Not Sure

DEAR NOT: Not every Ph.D wants to be addressed as "Doctor." Ask your boy friend how he feels about it. It's not a matter of ignorance. It's a matter of preference.

DEAR ABBY: I am 18 years old and have been married for three months. My problem is that both my husband and I overslept one morning and we were late to work, so now my mother-in-law calls us every morning to be sure we are up. I have asked her not to, but she calls anyway. She blames me because my husband overslept. Abby, it happened only once and that was because we forgot to set the alarm. She says it's a wife's duty to get her husband up in the morning.

How can I get her to quit calling us? I am pregnant and don't feel so hot anyway. And my husband is about to tear his hair out. Young Wife

DEAR WIFE: Your mother-in-law is correct. It is a wife's duty to get her husband up — not his mother's. She may mean well, but she should respect your wishes when you ask her not to call. If you want to put an end to it, when the phone rings — don't answer it.

DEAR ABBY: I have a 15-year-old son who is in the 10th grade. A few years ago when he made his confirmation he received a birthstone ring with five diamond chips in it. It's worth about $100.

Well, my son gave that ring to a girl he went with for only two weeks. I told him that ring was a gift and he had no right to give it away. He got very angry with me and said he would get it back but he would never wear it again. He says the ring belongs to him and he should be able to do anything he wants with it. Who is right. His Mother

DEAR MOTHER: He Is. What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Leap for the Sky Ends in the River

PETERBOROUGH, England (UPI) — Four schoolboys who were convinced they could fly like birds with homemade wings ended up lame ducks today.

The foursome, all in their early teens, hobbled away drenched and bruised from the river Nene after abortive attempts to fly over a 50-yard-wide stretch of the river using flying contraptions made in their art classes.

All four plunged into the water seconds after takeoff from a river embankment in their flying machines, fashioned from plastic sheets, bamboo poles, cardboard, rubber and string.

Alan Gardner, 15, wearing an orange crash helmet, frogman's slippers and fixed wings strrapped to his back, ran 50 yards before nose-diving into the river.

Another boy, Norman Greeves, 14, hauled himself from the water and said: "That's enough for me. I'm packing up this lark. I felt sure I could fly — but now I feel equally sure that I can't."

Their art teacher, Leigh Odlin, 28, said the boys were "convinced they could fly like birds so I decided to give them a project to build their own machines.

"Unfortunately, instead of achieving their dreams they all got a dunking," he said.

WISCONSIN business woman Lois Stair, 47, Monday night was elected the first woman moderator of the 3.1-million-member United Presbyterian Church in the U.S. Mrs. Stair defeated three male candidates on the third ballot at the church's general assembly at Rochester, N.Y.

Visits by VON Down in April

Visits to homes by Victorian Order Nurses decreased by 300 in April, district director Lillian Randall reported at a meeting of the board of management of the VON at Spencer House.

The decrease was due to death and hospitalization of patients and illness among staff members.

Mrs. G. A. Jones reported on the recent annual meeting of the VON for Canada and announced that the British Columbia VON will hold its annual meeting May 27 in Vancouver.

Saskatchewan Pioneer Dies

LA RONGE, Sask. (CP) — Caroline Sanderson, a pioneer resident of this north-central area of Saskatchewan 140 miles north of Prince Albert, died Sunday on her 109th birthday, it was reported.

Mrs. Sanderson, whose husband Miles died in 1965, lived with her daughter, Bella Finlayson.

Born May 16, 1862, she lived all her life in the La Ronge Area.

Mrs. Sanderson was active in church activities well after reaching the century mark.

Two years ago a minor heart attack two weeks before her 107th birthday didn't slow her down and friends said she was "still up and around."

Speaking in Cree through an interpreter, Mrs. Sanderson last year commented in answer to questions that "life was easier in the early days" than it was today.

She had four sons and two daughters and is survived by more than 100 great-grandchildren and a score of great-great-grandchildren.

Soviet Man Reached 154

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet news agency Tass said today Shirin Gasanov, described as "one of the oldest men on earth," died Monday at his home in the Soviet central Asian village of Chereken. He was 154 years old, Tass said.

The news agency said Gasanov directed an agricultural commission on the village's governing body "until his last days.

PANFUL OF SPRITZ comes out of the oven under the watchful eye of Ella Moeskau, who is conducting classes in Norwegian cooking. Edna Rudiak is shaping kronkake while Anna Raffard stirs another batch of cookies. They are members of the Sons of Norway, and the items they produce will be sold during an Ethnic Food Festival to be held in Bastion Square May 24 to 29. Mrs. Moeskau was first president of the Victoria lodge of the Sons of Norway, which is celebrating its 25th anniversary Friday at 6 p.m. at the Red Lion Inn. Norwegian consul Kanut Myre will speak and 25-year pins and a life membership will be presented.

New Concept Needed For Volunteer Work

EDMONTON (CP) — The concept of doing for others is finished; today's volunteers must embrace the idea of doing with others, says Marjorie Blankstein of Winnipeg, education and social action chairman of the National Council of Jewish Women.

"We still want to help — there's a role for the trained volunteer—but we believe that the groups we help must set their own goals."

The council's 16th biennial meeting opened Monday, and Mrs. Blankstein said the main business of the four-day meeting would be to discuss with members of community groups what their needs will be in the next two years.

On the final day, the meeting will decide on the priorities and then draw up a budget for the next two years, she said.

The council, formed in Canada in 1897 and which now hs sections in 12 Canadian cities, has had programs in the past especially for the aged and for young people, she said.

Although the nearly 5,000 members likely will continue to work in these areas, they also will be looking at new needs at this meeting.

"For example, we might discover there is a considerable need for preventive services in the community. This might mean setting up educational programs in the schools, or our own programs to promote human relations and interpersonal relations education."

The programs have not and would not be only for the Jewish community, Mrs. Blankstein said.

"We're concerned for the total community, as well as the Jewish community," she said. "It's a teaching of Judaism that you must be involved with the whole community."

Tuesday's sessions are mainly workshops, with the 90 delegates sitting down with representatives of youth, senior citizens' and poverty groups to discuss needed programs.

Church Honors 'Nose-Twister'

St. Dunstan's Church, Gordon Head will hold a special evensong service in honor of its nose-twisting patron saint Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.

St. Dunstan, a 10th-century priest and metal worker, devised a coronation rite for Edgar in 983 that is still used to crown the British monarchy.

Church legend has it that the devil tempted the saint while he was engaged in metal work and that St. Dunstan caught the devil's nose with his tongs and gave it a mighty twist.

Tot Stabs Policeman

HONG KONG (Reuter) — A policeman who followed a four-year-old boy into a public toilet here emerged minutes later clutching a handbag, stabbed and nursing a bitten arm. The policeman was chasing the tiny thief who had just robbed a woman of her handbag at knife-point. The boy managed to bite his pursuer on the forearm and stab him in the chest before more police came to the rescue.

'Ukrainians Slapped'

WINNIPEG (CP) — Former prime minister John Diefenbaker said Monday the Ukrainian heritage in Canada has received "a direct slap in the face" by the federal government's decision to remove the reference to the Ukrainian language in the dominion bureau of statistics census.

Diefenbaker told a news conference "Ukrainians made a tremendous contribution to Canada's growth . . . and this is a direct slap in the face for people of Ukrainian ancestry."

THE WEATHER

The weather system which brought rain and gales to the Queen Charlottes Monday is now crossing the northern mainland and Vancouver Island. The system has weakened and will give only a little rain to the south coast today. It will weaken further as it moves over the coast mountains this afternoon and will be accompanied only by a narrow band of cloud as it goes through the interior. Another weather system moving into the Gulf of Alaska will bring rain to the north coast by tonight but other regions will be protected by a ridge of high pressure extending from the south coast to the Northern B.C. interior.

Parking Debated

VANCOUVER (CP) — City and provincial officials clashed Monday over who should provide parking space for the British Columbia government's proposed 55-storey skyscraper in downtown Vancouver.

Provincial Works Minister William Chant said at a meeting here that the proposed building — which would accommodate about 4,000 provincial employees — would be of benefit to the city and parking facilities should be built by private developers.

No conclusions were reached. The provincial government hopes to begin work on the $50-million building by the end of the year.

Before the Judge

James Foyer, 58, of 1269 Pembroke, pleaded guilty Monday to trafficking in a controlled drug at a local hotel last January.

Judge William Ostler remanded Foyer to June 4 for presentence report and sentence.

An RCMP officer testified that the accused met an officer at the Royal Olympic Hotel, 642 Johnson, Jan. 6 and sold him two vials of pills for about $8.

The officer said some of the capsules in the vials were analysed as a derivative of barbituric acid.

★ ★ ★

William Aaron, 45, of 1761 Lee, was given a suspended sentence and placed on a two-year probation in traffic court by Judge E. F. N. Robinson for indecent assault on a male.

John E. Aitken, 24, of 595 Hansen, was fined $250 by Ostler when he pleaded guilty to obstructing a police officer.

A Saanich officer said he was interfered with by the accused when he was arresting another man for impaired driving about 3:20 a.m. May 9.

Aitken, the officer said, was eventually taken in handcuffs to the police station after he had been warned several times to stop interfering.

★ ★ ★

Katia Stringer, 19, of 1855 Fort, was given a suspended sentence and placed on a six-month probation for shoplifting a sun suit from The Bay May 3.

She had earlier pleaded guilty.

It was valued at $9.

Gary K. Pengelly, 17, 3915 Carey, was fined $50 and given three months to pay for shoplifting a package of buns from a local bakery May 3.

Ostler said it was "a trifling theft" in terms of value of the buns and instructed the youth to pay the nominal fine from his own earnings.

Pengelly earlier pleaded guilty to taking the buns by entering the bakery through shipping doors on Culduthel Road about 1 p.m. May 3.

★ ★ ★

Kenneth Taylor, 20, of 9768 - 3rd Street, Sidney, was fined $75 in Sidney Court by Judge Denzil Ashby for making a false statement while applying for Unemployment Insurance benefits.

The accused, court was told, stated he was laid off from his employment when actually he left voluntarily.

CABLEVISION TEN LISTINGS. 7 p.m., Ladies First — Community Chest Forum; 8 p.m., The North Has Changes; 8:30 p.m., Victoria Outdoorsmen — Hunting and Fishing; 9 p.m., You and the Law — Saanich Police; 9:30 p.m., Outlook — Helen Beirnes.

UFO. 7 p.m., Channel 6. Inner space pushes aliens from outer space into the background tonight, as a scientist, resentful of the money being spent by SHADO on an electron telescope, attempts to prove his experiments in inner space deserve priority treatment.

THE BEVERLY HILLBILLIES. 7:30 p.m., Channel 7. (Rerun.) Granny still thinks frogman Mark Templeton is really a frog. When her own special-brand concoction doesn't satisfy her, Granny visits a psychiatrist, reluctantly conceding that modern medicine may be just what the doctor ordered. Confrontation with the psychiatrist is a rib-tickler.

MOD SQUAD. 7:30 p.m., Channels 4 and 8. (Rerun.) The young detectives go after a narcotics ring and Mr. Big, known only as J. B., played by guest Ray Walston. Julie (Peggy Lipton) assumes the identity of a murdered undercover agent to make the contact. Michael Ansara also is a guest star as a good guy.

JULIA. 7:30 p.m. Channel 5. (Rerun.) Overwork the occupational disease can also afflict those in medicine, as Julia and Dr. Chegley (Lloyd Nolan) discover. They become irritable, especially when they find out the company won't give them more help. The doctor's wife finds a solution, and a retired nurse comes to their aid as a volunteer.

DON KNOTTS SHOW. 8 p.m., Channel 5. (Rerun.) If you ever wondered what caused the Titanic to sink, listen to "ship designer" Don Knotts explain the tragedy to shipping-line executive Raymond Burr. Connie Stevens is also aboard for songs and sketches.

TUESDAY NIGHT AT THE MOVIES. 9 p.m., Channel 5. (Rerun.) "Better a Widow" (1969) starring Virna Lisi and Peter McEnery. Miss Lisi is beautiful to look at. Peter McEnery is a good actor. Together, they are a pretty couple, even if the film isn't all that good or funny. Better a Widow is a spoof of the industrial world as McEnery, an engineer, is caught between two opposing industrialists fighting over the installation of a refinery and falls in love with the daughter of one. Trouble is she is expected to marry the other tycoon.

ALL IN THE FAMILY. 9:30 p.m. Channels 7 and 12. (Rerun.) Archie (Carroll O'Connor) discovers he's about to have another mouth to feed. Gloria informs him she's pregnant. But the prospect of becoming a grandfather does not necessarily make Archie delirious with joy because the sobering fact is that son-in-law Mike has no visible means of support, nor any immediate prospects.

JUSTICE IN AMERICA. 10 p.m., Channels 7 and 12. The second of this penetrating three-part series on the American judicial system explores the backlogs in courts all over the country. This series is one of the most worthwhile undertakings by any network since it probes the hallowed grounds of the judiciary and shows how it is flagrantly abused, and how, justice is undermined by, in many instances, premeditated congestion, especially in civil cases, (auto accident suits in particular) for better bargaining position and lower settlements.

TONIGHT'S MOVIES

5:30, Channel 12: Blondie's Reward (1948 comedy), Penny Singleton, Arthur Lake. Mild comedy in the series.

8:30, Channel 4: The Over-the-Hill Gang Rides Again (1970 comedy), Fred Astaire, Walter Brennan. Fred Astaire plays the Baltimore Kid, an old ex-Texas Ranger.

9:00, Channel 5: Better a Widow (Italian, 1968 comedy-drama), Peter McEnery, Virna Lisi. Farcical tale about the misadventures of a young English engineer on a Mediterranean island. Filmed in Sicily.

11:30, Channel 7: The Roots of Heaven (1958 drama), Trevor Howard, Juliette Greco, Errol Flynn. Good ambitious film based on Romain Gary's prize-winning novel about a group comprised of adventurers, opportunists, and one idealist who join forces to protect the African elephant.

11:50, Channel 2: All These Women (Swedish, 1964 comedy), Jarl Kulle, Eva Dahlbeck. Ingmar Bergman's farce about a music critic's love affairs.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

In an article, Dr. Tygve Gundersen said that it has been his fortune to see a large number of children in the Children's Medical Centre in Boston, and to be able to study a mild disease, amblyopia exanopsia, commonly called the "lazy eye," which if not corrected can cause serious trouble with vision.

Between one and two per cent of children have this defect, whereby they see less well with one eye than the other. The mother may notice that the child, when perhaps a few months old, is cross-eyed. One trouble is that one eye tends to take over all the work of seeing, while the other eye gets lazier and lazier.

Only about half of these children have obvious defects that are noticeable to the parents, so it is very important for all children to have their eyes examined in infancy and again by the time they are three years old. If the child with a lazy eye is treated by the age of four, the trouble is correctable. From age four to seven, there is less chance of correction.

As a result of not receiving treatment, many girls and boys in college have one eye which is practically blind. What has to be done with the child with amblyopia is quickly to put a patch over the good eye so that the child will have to develop vision in his "lazy" eye. In some cases, the child has to have a little operation to straighten the eye.

★ ★ ★

It is bad to lose vision in one eye, because the person then loses the so-called "binocular" vision, or vision in depth, and the ability to judge distances between objects, which can be a serious problem. Also, if later the person should have an accident which blinds his good eye, he can be left with practically no vision. Dr. Gundersen says that between four million and eight million people in the U.S. have vision in one eye below the reading-level, which means that it is probable that they were not properly examined early in their childhood.

LET'S TALK MORTGAGES
Did you know that Block Bros. Realty have mortgage money available for many purposes? For instance:
—if you are carrying a first or second mortgage or agreement and want to get cash for it, WE'LL get you a top price.
—if you want to refinance that high interest mortgage and reduce your payments, WE'LL arrange mortgaging that will allow you financial freedom from large payments.
—if you want to consolidate your debts — or use your equity to buy a business — or make an investment — or live better, WE'LL help you with low cost mortgage financing. For full information and assistance phone:

A beauty among trees, this charming 25-year-old home is in excellent condition and exceptionally gracious. The grounds have lovely trees, fish pond, basketball and badminton playground, pigeon house, greenhouse, magnificent kidney-shaped swimming pool with semi-covered patio, outdoor fireplace and barbecue pit. Two other smaller houses are also part of the property and are presently rented. The main home has a gracious entrance and spacious living and dining rooms. The kitchen is a woman's dream with built-in Frigidaire oven and stove and dishwasher, also first quality cabinets and ample counter space. A large den or TV room looks onto the patio and pool. The master bedroom is spacious with two large closets. Two more bedrooms upstairs measure 16x15 and have lovely views from all windows. The basement has a 36x18 games room with brick fireplace and a separate area which could be used as a bar, or kitchen. The basement also has an enclosed workshop, lots of storage space, and there are 2 separate garages and ample parking area. Many extraordinary conveniences and special features make this property very valuable for a good-sized family. So close to the centre of the city yet so conveniently located and so secluded. For the person who wishes to invest in valuable property, where can one find such an opportunity? $98,400 with generous terms. Trades considered. Call JOHN RUSSELL, 386-2955 or 592-3248 evenings.

JACK AND BEANSTALK MEETS A CHALLENGE

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuter) — Portuguese immigrant Antonii Santos, 72, has an eight-foot high cabbage in his back yard and says it is still growing taller.

He said he brought cabbage seeds with him from Portugal 18 years ago, but planted them only a year ago because up to that time he had no garden.

Much Was Right With 'Samson'

By AUDREY JOHNSON

The classification of opera and oratorio come close to a merger in George Frederick Handel's dramatic masterpiece, Samson.

So much so that some performances have become productions with movement (ballet) and lighting effects added.

At Christ Church Cathedral Monday night, Rodney Webster conducted the 75-voice Victoria Choral Society, with soloists and instrumentalists, in a performance that had many musical virtues but did not quite attain full dramatic stature.

In some measure this was due to the remoteness of the singing ensemble — especially the soloists — from their audience.

It would be, one suspects, most rewarding to hear this performace again in either the Royal or McPherson Theatres.

EXCELLENT

Much was right and even excellent. Webster has a fine choir, perceptively trained, resilient to his leadership.

There is an imposing dynamic control and while the balance between the male and female voices is not absolutely ideal, he achieves a pleasing blend and a rich texture and tone.

The splendid full choruses, Fixed in his everlasting seat, and Let their celestial concerts all unite, were so well done that the drama and emotion quite overcame the general problem.

Superior vocal quality and technical ability were qualities pretty nearly uniform among the eight soloists.

Outstanding were Erika Kurth, whose clear soprano voice has taken on a mellow shine and a smoothness that rendered Dalila's important solos, With plaintive notes and, My faith and truth, highly effective.

Elinor Bertram has a lovely warm, un-throaty contralto voice and in the long role of Micah she conveyed considerable emotion in several fine recitatives and arias.

A powerful and fine textured baritone was present in the person of Hans Steffen, who sang with authority in another of the longer roles, and Peter Bradley, bass, also has quality and power, although his voice tends to wander in its placing.

Bruce Davidson was the tenor soloist and while he has the range and power, he lacks something of the essential emotional quality.

AFFECTS PITCH

There are uncomfortable changes in placement of tone and nasality that affects pitch at times.

A young soprano, Karen Smith, essayed the difficult air, Let the bright seraphim, and did it very well, revealing a really beautiful voice and a considerable degree of flexibility.

In a very small bit as the Israelitish messenger, tenor Don Twine sang exceptionally well. This is a singer, often heard in small roles, who certainly deserves something better, hopefully, in the near future.

The excellent instrumental accompaniment of organ, Richard Proudman; harpsichord, Beal Thomas, cello, James Hunter, and tympani, Fergus Heywood, added much to the quality of the performance as a whole.

Training Pilots Told to Hush Up

As a result of complaints made at a recent protest meeting organized in Sidney by the local Society for Pollution and Environmental Control, the department of transport has promised to take noise-muffling measures.

In a letter to SPEC executive Dr. Joan Coldwell, R. F. Heiliger, regional superintendant of airways, said that instructions had been given training pilots to reduce the application of full power over populated areas.

Pilots on training flights will be reminded and, if necessary, reported by transport department officials, if they overstep requirements.

Centennial Costumes For Rent

Newly-elected president Margaret Dixon says Centennial costumes are available at low cost for Victoria Days celebrations and inquiries will be answered by Jill Swannell, phone 656-4367.

Jaycees Protest Parking Fees

'Jaycee Fair officials are "highly distraught" today over charges that a parking lot owner across the street from the fairgrounds doubled parking fees when the fair opened Monday.

After he had raised the charge for parking from 25 cents to 50 cents for two hours, fair officials contend he had cars owned by drivers who hadn't paid the increased fee towed off the lot.

"This is a privately owned lot on Caledonia and has nothing to do with the Jaycees," said Norman McLaren, fair chairman. "It's an injustice to the people of Victoria that they should have to pay so highly."

He said he is attempting to contact the owner in an attempt to rent the lot on behalf of the Jaycees for the week, "if it's reasonable." Then parking would be free, he said.

At press time, the Jaycees had not heard from the owner.

'Governments Short-Change Elderly'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The special needs of the elderly are being short-changed by both the federal and provincial governments, Dr. Scott Wallace said here Monday.

The Social Credit member of the legislature for Oak Bay said there is a large gap between services provided for the elderly, such as old-age homes and services provided for people suffering from acute or chronic cases of illness.

He said in most cases government does not attempt to provide care for the elderly unless they are on welfare and that government philosophy appears to be "we'll let them spend their money until they're down to their last $500 and then we'll put them on welfare."

He said people who are better able to afford medical expenses should receive less aid from the government than people who are in lower income brackets.

Wallace made the remarks during a discussion on aging to 150 members of the Voluntary Association for Health and Welfare at their annual general meeting.

160 Pints Needed By Blood Clinic

The Red Cross clinic is open from 1:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. and from 6:30 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Newspaper Report Spurs Probe

VANCOUVER (CP) — Attorney-General Leslie Peterson ordered a full investigation into an automobile accident in which five members of a Fraser Valley family died when their car was in collision with a vehicle driven by an off-duty RCMP officer.

Peterson ordered provincial chief coroner Glen McDonald to initiate the investigation following allegations in a monthly tabloid newspaper that there was a liquor bottle in the car of Haney RCMP Constable Orville Nickel, 21, after the crash.

The crash took the lives of Ronald Johnson, his wife and three of their children last Dec. 26 while they were driving around Haney looking at Christmas lights.

The Vancouver-published newspaper, The New Leaf, alleged in a recent edition that investigating RCMP officers did not call all witnesses to the accident to a subsequent inquest and that the majority of inquest jurors appeared to be persons in regular contact with the police.

The chief coroner, who has jurisdiction over all coroners in the province, said Monday he has been instructed to "investigate and report on the case to the attorney-general."

"Just what way the investigation will go, I don't know," he said. "I have now read the full transcript of the inquest. And, no doubt, I will be putting investigators on the case, and calling on persons connected with the case as I consider necessary."

The jury eventually found in its verdict that Johnson showed misjudment and there were indications that Const. Nickel was speeding just before the crash. The officer had insisted on a blood test after the accident and no trace of alcohol or drugs was found.

Const. Nickel was subsequently ticketed for speeding. He contested the speeding allegation and provincial court Judge Donald Nicholson dismissed the case because of conflicting evidence as to the speed of the car and on the technicality that the crown had failed to prove that Nickel was the holder of a valid driver's licence on the day of the accident.

11 Issues To Face NDP Members

More than 500 British Columbia New Democratic Party members will make policy decisions on 11 social issues during the 1971 NDP convention in Vancouver May 28 to 30.

Also on the convention agenda will be a leadership vote. However, only the party's waffle group has said it will contest Barrett's position.

For the policy discussions, delegates will divide into groups of about 55 people. They will consider resolutions on agriculture, environment, youth, cultural affairs, labor, natural resources, education, welfare, taxation, finance and secondary industry and health and urban affairs.

Experts from within and without the party have been asked to submit background papers on the 11 topics. These people also will be present during the discussions to provide information.

This is a new practice for the NDP in British Columbia, and another will be official recognition of caucuses within the party. On each of the first two days of the convention, and hour has been set aside for caucusing.

Groups will make policy statements and name slates for NDP offices. The convention will take place at the Totem Park residences on the University of British Columbia campus.

Doggie Centres?

Should dogs in Oak Bay be serviced with comfort stations?

This was the light-hearted suggestion made by Alds. Alan Hoey and Brian Smith Monday.

The suggestion came after a memo from Mayor Frances Elford was discussed. It included a clipping from a Nutley, N.J., paper on the enforcement of a dog litter ordinance.

The mayor said she had brought the matter to the attention of council because of compalints.

In her clipping the acting health officer of Nutley said he was sure "people are cheating under cover of darkness."

Oak Bay dogs received a reprieve.

Probers Hear Legal Pot Plea

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. commission on marijuana and dangerous drugs was told today marijuana probably is dangerous but should be legalized.

The testimony followed the claims Monday of two doctors that the drug produced distortion of perception and reality in test subjects and the opinion of another doctor that alcohol produces similar results.

John Kaplan, a law professor at Stanford University, told the commission today in prepared testimony he believes marijuana to be dangerous but added research since 1894 has yet to show how dangerous the drug may be.

"If the marijuana laws worked," he said, "I would be strongly in favor of them but they, like prohibition, do not work. They divide the young from the old and are propelling us to a national crisis of confidence of major dimensions. Therefore they must go."

Monday, Drs. Harold Kolansky and William Moore outlined their study of 38 psychiatric patients which they said showed marijuana "produces a brain syndrome marked by distortion of perception and reality which leads . . ." to impaired judgment, lagging attention spans, slowing of a sense of time and trouble talking.

They concluded the mental problems observed in their patients resulted from marijuana smoking and recommended a "get tough" policy to control the drug.

However, Dr. Bertram S. Brown, director of the National Institute of Mental Health and also a witness before the commission, said in an interview it probably would be possible to find 38 marijuana smokers who had graduated from college with honors.

Brown told the commission he was not ready to recommend legalizing the drug but "I do know that the present penalty structure itself is already out of keeping with what we know about the drug."

The Kolansky-Moore findings also were disputed by drug expert Dr. Norman Zinberg of Harvard. He told a news conference the findings, first disclosed in April, would be hard not to apply to a group of college beer drinkers.

FINDS ERRORS

Dr. Joel Fort of San Francisco submitted a written critique saying the Kolansky-Moore paper is "full of inaccurate and inflammatory statements" with a conclusion of "some amateurish social criticism that might have been written by Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew's speech writers."

The crux of the Kolansky-Moore study is whether their observation of 38 highly selected individuals with mental disorders can apply to all marijuana users.

The 13-member commission, appointed by President Nixon, is gathering opinion and research for recommendations it will make next March. Nixon, however, has said he will not support a recommendation that marijuana be legalized.

Before the Judge

John W. Snowden, 49, of Seattle, was fined $250 when he pleaded guilty to shoplifting fishing flies from The Bay.

A security officer said the accused was observed putting the flies in his pocket and leaving the store without paying for them May 15.

Leslie C. Staples, 37, of 2839 Bryn Mawr, was fined $300 by Robinson for impaired driving and prohibited from driving for four months except on business.

Charles D. Reader, 29, of 3608 Happy Valley, was fined $300 for impaired driving and another $150 for failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

His licence was also suspended for four months except for business purposes.

Rex Kenneth Rae, 50, of 1345 Craigflower, was fined $300 for impaired driving and prohibited from driving for four months except on business purposes.

'Ottawa Negligent'

EDMONTON (CP) — The federal government's handling of the economy has caused incalculable hardships across the country and amounts to "nothing short of gross negligence," Premier Harry Strom said today.

THE BOARD OF SCHOOL TRUSTEES OF SCHOOL DISTRICT No. 65 (COWICHAN)

SCHOOL LOAN BY-LAW REFERENDUM No. 14

Question to be submitted to the Owner-Electors of School District 65 (Cowichan).

"Are you in favour of the Board of School Trustees of School District No. 65 (Cowichan) borrowing money, without further assent of the Owner-Electors, at any time or from time to time, within three (3) years from December 31st, 1970, by the issue and sale of debentures bearing interest at a rate or rates per annum as may be specified by the British Columbia School Districts' Capital Financing Authority at the time of the borrowing and payable over a period not exceeding twenty-five years from the date or respective dates thereof, in such principal amounts as the Board may from time to time deem necessary to raise net sums not exceeding in the aggregate five hundred and seventy-seven thousand, eight hundred dollars ($577,800.00), after payment of discount, commission, brokerage, exchange, and other expenses with respect to such issue or sale, for acquiring and developing school-sites and purchasing, constructing, reconstructing, furnishing, and equipping buildings for school purposes or use in connection therewith and other capital expenditures for school purposes?"

The following in brief and general terms sets out substantially the proposed projects and the amount allocated for each, the amount specified as being within provincial standards and eligible for provincial grants, and the amount specified as being above provincial standards and therefore not eligible for provincial gants and for which the school district pays the full cost:

Border Plants Must Be Trimmed

By HILDA BEASTALL

Unless you have many yards (or feet) of rockery border, the trimming of those showy, wide mats of purple aubrieta, white arabis and yellow alyssum will not take more than a few minutes. Newly starting gardeners complain that these plants become drab and dead-looking as soon as flowering ceases, leaving the border without any kind of color during summer.

Hilda

Also, they find the plants getting thinner in the centres, with flowering only at the far tips.

This can be prevented by trimming each of these plants now. You may say there are still some flowers, but these are just the tail-end few. The spectacular results soon apparent will more than repay the sacrifice of these few blooms.

Aubrietas bloom each spring on growths made the previous summer. If only the tip of the existing growth produces a new shoot, no increase in flowering is possible.

The net result is that each year fewer blooms appear because the tip growths are further and further from the roots supplying plant nutrients.

By trimming each plant every year, ample new growth is made, followed by prolific blooming the following spring. Of added value to the gardener is the compact, healthy dark green foliage produced to make the border attractive all summer, fall and winter.

If already neglected for several years, you must be drastic. Lift the mass of sprawling stems in sections and cut with secateurs to about six inches from the centre. Do this all around until you have only a 12-inch wide patch of dead-looking stems.

Beneath these stems spread a half-inch layer of mixed sand and screened compost, or leafmould. No fertilizer.

White arabis is treated in the same way.

Alyssum, usually we see the bright yellow saxatilis, though a pale cream called citrinum is to be had, is different in habit.

Leaves are long, greyish-green, resembling 10-week stock. Flowers are borne in upright spikes.

Cut about an inch of stem (a few leaves will come off too) below the old flower stem. Alyssum will make new side growths in summer. Again, if badly neglected, be drastic in cutting. It pays.

They will thrive in any well drained garden soil, providing it has not been made acid.

HEART ATTACK SURVIVOR

Walter Matthau Has Bonus Each Day

NEW YORK (AP) "Each day is a bonus, a free ride to me," says actor Walter Matthau.

"The thing that gives me most pleasure in life today is simply being alive. I had a massive heart attack five years ago that was supposed to kill me but didn't.

"A heart attack is a big insult to your psyche as well as your physiology. I believe mine must have changed my personality—and for the better. Anyway, I've gotten more leading film roles since then."

His latest starring vehicle is a screen version of Neil Simon's Plaza Suite, following smash performances in The Fortune Cookie, The Odd Couple and Hello, Dolly.

Asked what defeats most men in life, he says:

"They fall in with all of the philosophy that is made up by the haves. This is not consistent with the needs and desires of the have nots. Whenever the have nots try to apply the philosophy of the haves to their own lives, they come up empty."

CITES FAULT

"I feel terribly guilty. But I don't know what I'm guilty of or why I feel that way.

"This is a good attitude, also, for anyone in power to have—particularly doctors and politicians," he observes.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

As a rule, when one is playing a no-trump contract, he attracks first in the suit in which he knows he can make the greater number of tricks. On occasion, however, proper play demands that the suit producing a fewer number of tricks be attacked initially.

The latter situation was the case in today's deal, which arose in a rubber-bridge game.

South	West	North	East
1 NT	Pass	3 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Six of ♠.

On West's opening lead of the spade six, East put up the king, which South captured with his ace. It was obvious to South that East had to be kept out of the lead, for a spade lead by him would establish West's spade suit, which was known to be headed by the jack. (By the Rule of Eleven, West's lead of the spade six indicated that in the North, East and South hands, there were five spades higher than the six-spot. Since South had three higher cards, dummy had one higher, and East had shown up with one higher — the king — West had to have the spade jack.)

At trick two, declarer led the heart deuce to dummy's ace. He then returned the jack of clubs and finessed, losing to West's king. It mattered not what West now played back, for South was home.

If West returned a spade or a heart, South would get a present of a trick via a "free finesse." If he returned a club instead, South would win the trick and lead a diamond, driving out East's ace and simultaneously establishing the diamond suit. And if West exited with a diamond instead, he would establish that suit for South.

Had South made the mistake of attacking diamonds — his strongest suit — at trick two, the result might have been quite different. East would capture this trick with his ace, to play back a spade. South would insert his ten, which would be won by West's jack. A spade return would now drive out South's queen, and promote West's two remaining spades into winners.

All South would now have would be eight tricks: two spades, two hearts, three diamonds and one club. And unless he were a good guesser (like guessing to finesse against East for the queen of hearts, rather than to finesse against East for the club king, he would tend to end up with just eight tricks). By attacking clubs first — as he did — he guaranteed his contract.

Rest Home Guests Caught In Middle

"They might as well shoot me, if they are going to ask me to leave here," said Charles Howard one of the 300 rest home guests caught in the middle of the dispute between rest home operators and the B.C. government.

MILLER
. . . hard on us

Before settling down at Postles Manor, Howard had moved through 12 different places. "One place that I stayed in one night was so bad that I still haven't gotten over it," he said.

THEIR JOB

According to Howard the maximum sum of $174 paid by the provincial government to the rest homes for welfare guests, is insufficient. "The government should pay more; that's their job."

"I can't say that the rest home operators are being unfair, but they're being hard on us," said Jim Miller another welfare guest.

"I have a nice room overlooking the park and good food here. I had planned on staying here for the rest of my life. If they ask me to leave I have no idea where I will go."

HOWARD
. . . like shooting me

"I don't give them a great deal of trouble. Of the three years I've been here, I've paid my own way for the first two years."

Mrs. Postle, operator of the rest home claims that the sum paid by the B.C. government is insufficient. Despite the boost of the rate to $174, she still only receives $150 per patient per month.

CHINESE GRAB U.K. SOLDIERS

HONG KONG (Reuter) — Chinese troops held today eight British soldiers who inadvertently crossed the border between Hong Kong and China, it was announced here.

The soldiers, from the Irish Guards Regiment, were driving in a jeep and a four-ton truck to deliver rations to troops on border duty, the Hong Kong government information service said.

. . . CANADA PROTESTS

Mr. Houghton said his department had "directed our Canadian vessel not to voluntarily proceed to Alaska but to land at a Canadian port."

The coast guard said after the Anthony J. steamed into Canadian waters at Prince Rupert, the Massey Maid put into Nichols Bay near Ketchikan and the coast guard escorted it back to Canadian waters.

The coast guard spokesman said the Cape Romain broke off the chase after being told by the state department to avoid any overt action.

But Mr. Houghton said "the cutter not only tried to intimidate our vessel but proceeded to pursue it for 12 hours to Triple Islands just outside of Prince Rupert."

Captain Secord later said he had a U.S. chart showing he was in Canadian waters.

He said the coast guard vessel got close enough to tell him he was relieved of his command — but he didn't act on that.

Instead, he made contact with his company, the Canadian Fishing Co. of Vancouver, and fisheries officials.

Mr. Houghton said the international boundary was established "several years ago and all waters south of that boundary are Canadian waters.

"But the Americans haven't accepted that," he said. "They say the line only divides the land, not water."

RECALLS 1970 INCIDENT

The incident occurred near the point where the coast guard boarded the Canadian fishing vessel Clipper II in September, 1970. The catch aboard the ship was impounded and the captain paid an out-of-court settlement before being released.

Norm Christensen, vice-president of Canadian Fishing, said Captain Secord doesn't want to return to the area without an escort and has asked the federal fisheries department to help recover the $2,000 worth of equipment.

RCMP and fisheries patrol vessels met the Anthony J and escorted the fishboat to Prince Rupert, Mr. Christensen said. Before the chase ended, the Americans had pursued Captain Secord about 40 miles into Canadian waters.

"I can imagine he was very nervous because they had their guns on him, but there were no shots fired," Mr.

All Police Will Seek Wage Parity

VANCOUVER (CP) — Most municipal police officers in British Columbia will seek wage parity with Vancouver policemen in contract negotiations this year, Ernie Doyle, president of the B.C. Federation of Peace Officers, said Monday.

An arbitrator Saturday awarded Vancouver police officers a 15-per-cent wage increase, bringing the basic first-class constable's salary to $885 a month.

Constable Doyle, a member of the police force in Delta municipality, said the strongest demands will come from Vancouver Island forces, which he said are considerably behind Vancouver in wages.

"A bullet is just as hard over there as it is here," he said.

Ken Horseman, president of the Victoria Policemen's Union, said he thought the Vancouver settlement was reasonable, but not exceptional.

Victoria wages are extremely low, he said, and as of July 1 they will be $173 a month behind Vancouver.

Most B.C. municipalities are policed by the RCMP but there are municipal police forces in some communities on the island and lower mainland, and in Nelson.

Rites Held For Former Victorian

Funeral services were held recently in Prince George for former Victorian Philip E. Bishop, 49, regional construction engineer for the provincial highways department at the time of his death.

Educated at South Park and Victoria high schools, Bishop studied engineering at the University of British Columbia until he joined the Royal Canadian Air Force during the Second World War.

He joined the highways department in 1945, working out of Princeton, Smithers, Burns Lake and Penticton before going to Prince George.

He is survived by his wife, Norma, and daughter, Judy, both living at home; two sons, John of Vancouver and Michael of Dawson Creek; three brothers, Charles of Murrayville, B.C., Rev. Ernest Bishop of Saskatoon and George of Victoria.

There are also two sisters, Mrs. G. J. (Dorothy) Margison of Victoria and Mrs. G. M. (Joyce) Newman of West Vancouver.

Low Income Won't Picket $25 Ball

The Victoria Low Income Group executive has decided not to picket the Victoria Days inaugural ball Friday at The Empress.

The group had considered picketing because it feels the $25-a-couple price discriminates against the poor peole. But president Walter Olszewski said today the executive decided it was not the right time to picket.

"We just can't afford to get the type of publicity we would get. The people in Victoria do not look kindly on all the things we do, and we feel this is just not the right time to picket."

UBC Team To Monitor Utah Dumping

The University of British Columbia has been selected by Utah Construction and Mining Company to monitor effluent from the company's copper mine near Port Hardy.

W. N. Venables, director of the pollution control branch, said today he has approved the choice as well as the proposed monitoring program.

Under terms of a PCB permit allowing Utah to dump 9.3 million gallons of effluent daily into Rupert Inlet, the company must bear the costs — estimated at $60,000 annualy — of the monitoring program.

INDEPENDENT TEAMS

The independent monitoring team consists of physical, chemical and biological oceanographers, geologists, mineral processing and mining engineers.

J. B. Evans, head of the department of mineral engineering at UBC, will coordinate the team, which began preliminary studies in March.

The program "is designed to determine natural physical, chemical and biological variations in Rupert Inlet and related waters prior to mine-mill discharge and to equate these with actual conditions upon introduction of the mine effluent."

The permit to discharge effluent was issued Jan. 20 after strong protest from environmental groups concerned about the effect of the effluent on Rupert Inlet. Venables said today the UBC studies will be submitted to the PCB and could be the basis for tougher standards which could be imposed on Utah under its permit.

3 Iniured In City Accidents

Two-year-old Philip Damon Welch, 236 Crease, suffered a fractured skull when hit by a car in front of his house Monday night. The car was driven by Evelyn Sanders, 62, of 195 Crease, police said.

An accident at the intersection of Skinner and Craigflower at 1:15 a.m. sent two people to hospital. Both are in good condition.

Kenneth C. McCuaig, 836 Carrie St., suffered a broken wrist and head and facial cuts, while Janet Ellis, 19, of 936 Colville, was cut around the face.

The accident occurred after McCuaig's car, travelling east on Craigflower, went out of control and crossed to the other side of the street, struck a traffic control sign and then collided with a parked car.

CAPITAL SCENE

The Victoria Horticultural Society will meet Tuesday, June 1, at 8:30 p.m. in the Inn, 1528 Cook. Eric Billington, former president of the Canadian Rose Society, will speak on the cultivation and care of roses. Miss Doris Page will hold a question and answer session.

Electricians At Hydro May Strike

Some 2,000 electrical workers employed by B.C. Hydro are prepared to serve strike notice if no wage offer is made today, an official of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers said this morning.

Douglas Cronk, business agent for Local 258 of the union, said Hydro officials were meeting mediator Clark Gilmour this morning and the union would meet Gilmour this afternoon. Strike notice would depend on what happens this afternoon, he said.

Cronk said B.C. Hydro has not made a wage offer during negotiations even though the crown corporation called for the services of a mediation officer.

Wages and job security are the main issues, he said.

On wages, the union is seeking a 29½ per cent increase over two years. Journeyman lineman rate now is $5.39 an hour, with other rates above and below this.

Cronk said the rate for private line contractors will be $6.57 this fall.

On job security, he said the union wants a guarantee that its members will not be laid off as a result of B.C. Hydro contracting out work.

He said there never was a problem in the past, but in the last year B.C. Hydro has accelerated its use of non-union contractors which could lead to redundancies among Hydro employees. Hydro had also decided 50 per cent of capital expansion in the distribution division should go to contract "which could be union or otherwise and could create redundancies," he said.

Sadat Orders Arrest Of Former Ministers

CAIRO (CP) — Former vice-president Aly Sabry and other former high-ranking officials accused of plotting to overthrow President Anwar Sadat were taken to jail at dawn today and may soon face public trial, informed sources reported.

Sabry, six former cabinet ministers and others ousted last week had been under house arrest since Sadat launched his purge last Thursday.

The sources said details of the plot would be made public when the investigation now under way is complete.

Meanwhile, they gave this preview of the plans Sadat's opponents had made:

Labib Shukair, the Speaker of the National Assembly, was to be installed as figurehead president. Sabry, considered Moscow's man in the Egyptian hierarchy and a man of considerable unpopularity, was to boss the Arab Socialist Union, the country's only political party.

Interior Minister Sharawi Gomaa, whose ministry controls the police, had deployed his men throughout Cairo with instructions to use force if necessary to keep order once Sadat was out of the way.

LINES TAPPED

The presence of Lt.-Gen. Mohamed Fawzi, the war minister, was supposed to ensure the army's support.

The investigating commission looking into the conspiracy has found that at least 11,000 telephone lines were tapped by departments controlled by Interior Minister Gomaa, Cairo newspapers reported.

First Game To Fischer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bobby Fischer of New York won the opening game of his 10-game match against Mark Taimanov of the Soviet Union Monday when the Russian grandmaster resigned without further play.

The game had been adjourned Sunday night with the U.S. grandmaster holding a commanding position after the 40th move in the first game of the quarter-final elimination match to decide a challenger for the current world champion, Boris Spassky of Russia.

Silver Threads Scores Chest Image

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

It's 'Monolithic' and Too Money-Oriented

By PETER McNELLY

The Silver Threads Service this Spring told the Community Chest it is too concerned with money and has a "monolithic, beaucratic" image, the Times has learned.

The society also accused the Chest with having done too little to promote the work of is 25-member agencies.

And a major review of chest policies has been underway since March, partly as a result of the Silver Threads' action.

A member of the Chest's board of directors has confirmed that the review is taking place, but said he had not yet read a Silver Threads brief dated Feb. 25 which was critical of several of the Chest's internal practices.

In its brief to the Chest, the society criticized duplication among agency services, Chest accounting practices, agency-Chest budgeting techniques, publicity methods during the annual United Appeal campaign and Chest policy for dealing with shortfalls.

"It is apparent that there is and has been a duplication of services amongst certain member agencies. There is no doubt that this duplication increases administration costs," the brief said.

The Silver Threads then asked the Chest to "provide the leadership" in implementing the recommendations of the Capital Region Community Council social services study of 1970 which called for major re-organization of services in the region.

"Nothing will be gained by a dilatory approach or prolonged discussions with member agencies on methods. Immediate action will gain public approval, no action will seriously affect the 1971 campaign."

The brief also noted that the Community Chest does not submit accounts statements to its agencies after the United Appeal drive has finished.

It said accounts should be submitted showing the campaign goal, the amount collected, cost of collection, net amount collected, the surplus or deficiency, agency budgets and amounts proposed for each agency, proposed use of surpluses and ways of meeting shortfalls, amounts held in contingency and reserve funds and the proposed Chest budget for the coming year.

"In general there seems to be an over-emphasis on money and a lack of appreciation of the roles of the member agencies," the brief said, and suggested the Chest "must have some concern and appreciate that the agency is concerned with growth and improving the quality of its service."

●

During agency-Chest budgeting sessions, said the society, the Chest should not "patronize" aganey members and should be better acquainted with agency problems.

The brief reminded the Chest it is dealing with the public's money and is not the "boss organization." It even noted that Chest budget committee members have kept agencies waiting for appointments.

"If the agency members can be on time, the Chest budget committee can be on time."

The Chest "should resist any temptation to control agency policy through fanciful cuts of expenditure where the agency is satisfied cuts cannot be made, or in fanciful suggestions of sources of revenue where the agency knows they do not exist," the brief said.

On the issue of the United Appeal campaign, the Silver Threads told the Chest it has failed to put across publicly the roles of its member agencies.

"There is too much 'Chest' in the Appeal. To the public the Chest appears monolithic, bureaucratic and insensitive . . . At present the agencies and particularly their roles seem secondary to the Chest and the annual raising a large sum of money paramount."

●

The Silver Threads said "it would be refreshing" if the Chest told the public exactly how much money all agencies require for the coming year and set a campaign goal on this figure.

Then, if the drive falls short, the Chest can tell the public how much the agencies are going to be hurt.

The brief called upon the Chest to create a planning section to plan requirements for future appeal drives and assist agencies in working out long-range programs.

It warned that continuing deficits cannot be permitted to impair the quality of agency services. It suggested the Chest "modify its policy with regard to the agencies seeking non-Chest financial support."

"From the agency point of view the proposition is simple: If the Chest cannot support the agency, the agency must look elsewhere."

City Coolly Accepts Plea for 'Old Town'

After some stiff but controlled argument over the merits of preserving the city's old buildings, both sides discovered they are not too far apart.

Even Mayor Courtney Haddock, who criticized the delegation for its implied "condemnation" of the city's planning efforts, decided there is no "conflict of purpose" between the old town concept and the addition of new buildings in the downtown area.

The 13-man delegation from the Old Town Advisory Committee brought along Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce president Philip Holmes, and its brief was printed on Chamber of Commerce stationery.

Holmes met Haddock's questions, saying he would "preserve" the old Dowell Building on Wharf Street, but he is also in full favor of the proposed Reid development across the road on the Waterfront.

Sam Bawif, who said he tried to by the Dowell building a few years ago from the city, said at the time "we found it entirely economic to do so.

The brief said that the small area between the harbor and the central business district is "the finest group of 19th century buildings on the Pacific coast" and contains the "birthplace of Victoria."

THREATEN TO CARVE

The brief said plans for changing the old town area "seem to ignore pedestrian linkages which unite the area, and threaten to carve the old town shape into isolated blocks.

"There have been cases of indifference to the demolition of old buildings on the excuse that they are unsound and unusable, which is substantially untrue.

"Plans are being made for new developments in the area which, if not designed for street level compatibility, will smother its small-scale old-world personality. Any of these three could destroy the unity and character essential to the old town's survival."

Holmes said the brief "does not in any way envisage . . . a prohibition of new development . . . but it does envisage the retention of old classical buildings."

'VITAL EXERCISE'

Holmes said all the delegation wanted was to get council to "adopt the concept" of old town preservation, then try to "fulfil that concept" in guiding redevelopment.

Haddock said he wanted to know specifically which buildings are worth preserving because most of them are "crumbling brick."

Planning chairman Harold Olafson objected to the plan because it would interfere with what people wanted to do with their private property, but he said later the city "has agreed to the concept with (construction of) Bastion Square."

Legal Action Considered In Yet Another Pool Delay

Opening day for Victoria's new crystal pool has once again been pushed back, probably to November.

Legal action to compensate for the delay is being contemplated by the city.

Architect John Di Castri project supervisor, told the city's recreation committee Monday the contractor, H. E. Fowler, said he has fallen behind another 40 working days.

The last date given for completion of construction of the $1.8 million pool in Central Park was Aug. 6. Allowing for familiarization of the new building, opening day was to be Sept. 15.

By this standard, Oct. 4 is the latest completion date, with opening day falling on or about Nov. 10.

The topic arose when Ald. Ove Witt said he wanted to know whether the contractor was trying his best to finish the pool, or just "fluffing around."

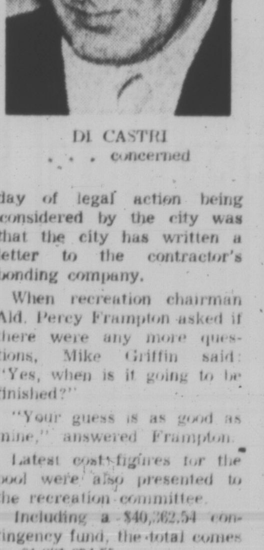
"I just think it's a disgrace . . . so I come and look at it and I can't come up with any answers because it doesn't look like they are doing anything," he said.

Originally planned for completion last December, work stoppages last summer forced postponement of the opening day to early July, just in time to host two national swim meets as opening events.

"Do you really feel that the contractor is working at the speed you want him to work at?" Witt asked Di Castri.

Concerned about the progress himself, Di Castri asked the contractor for an explanation.

On April 30 he had 39 men on the job, Di Castri said, quoting from the company's letter. Some difficult overhead work had resulted in the project falling behind by 40 working days, but the contractor felt "we cannot substitute speed and accuracy as required" for an early completion date.



DI CASTRI
. . . concerned

The only detail given Monday of legal action being considered by the city was that the city has written a letter to the contractor's bonding company.

When recreation chairman Ald. Percy Frampton asked if there were any more questions, Mike Griffin said: "Yes, when is it going to be finished?"

Latest cost figures for the pool were also presented to the recreation committee.

Including a $40,362.54 contingency fund, the total comes to $1,821,694.55.

HOSPITAL BID $294,831

The bid was actually $294,831, not $394,831.

G. H. Wheaton was the low bidder at $289,000 with Cana Construction next at $292,800.

THE MIND MAY DEAL IN logic, but the heart doesn't always do so. It cost me a twinge last Sunday morning to watch our daughter and her husband board a Viscount at Pat Bay. Also, it set a memory tapping for admittance.

The good-byes had been said, I'd managed, more or less, to refrain from showering last-minute advice on a capable pair who didn't need it.

We waved, me not quite sure that I was watching the right window. The plane rolled to its runway. Then Steve and Sue were off on the first leg of their journey to Yellowknife in the Northwest Territories where they will make their new home.

In a way, time had come full circle. I kept remembering another young couple who had set out like that, though not by plane, and in a different direction.

My partner in that venture remembered, too. We talked about it, heading in along the highway, and it all came back as if it had been yesterday.

We'd been living in Vancouver then, in a little rented house with roof-corners that stuck up like ears. Life was pretty good. We had friends. Our respective parents were located within visiting reach. I grumbled about my job, but not too seriously.

There was no tangible reason why we should decide to up stakes and try our luck in new country. We hadn't talked about doing so, and each was as surprised as the other to learn one foggy night in late winter that we shared the idea.

We did talk about it then, and from talking fell to planning.

On an evening a few weeks later, we said our good-byes. Our people did their best not to burden us with a spate of sound advice. I realize much better now that such withholding costs parents a stern effort.

Then we boarded a train and were truly on our own, as a couple can never be until they've put the known and familiar behind them.

There's sadness in parting. Even so, I think it's good for the young to break away from the places where they do their growing up. If they return, it is with eyes opened to the fact that other worlds exist, and with standards of comparison they wouldn't have acquired otherwise.

We went to Toronto. I got into magazine work there, and eventually turned to freelance writing. We lived for an unencumbered interlude in a one-room apartment with a converted clothes closet for kitchen. Then we bought a house, acquired a family and settled down.

Those were good years in every way. We did not pine for the West Coast. It was no part of our intention to return to British Columbia.

Life moves in phases. We were happy in that phase, and didn't know it was ending until the end began in a year that forced a hard decision upon us.

We could continue in Toronto, or we could follow a plainly indicated course and move on to New York.

We put off deciding — came west with our children for a Vancouver Island holiday instead — and realized without much conscious thought that a third avenue was open.

Our choice was made, or rather it made itself. Early the following summer, we moved to Victoria. And although we'd never lived here, it was like coming home.

That was a considerable time ago. Long enough for a daughter to grow up and marry, and with her husband, set the scene for another leave-taking.

We'll miss them, but good luck to them!

Three Indian Students Hired As Museum's First Guides

Three Indian students from the University of Victoria have become the Provincial Museum's first official guides.

They are Ardyth Cooper, 18, of Sooke, a first-year arts student; Rod Naknakin, 23, of Cape Mudge who has just completed his third year in arts and sciences, and Margaret Vickers, 21, of Kitkatla on Dolphin Island, who is studying physical education and counselling.

Museum education officer Wilma Wood is enthusiastic about the new project, which began May 1 and will end Aug. 31.

ENJOYING WORK

Financed under the First Citizens' Fund, she said it "gives the general public an opportunity to bridge the two cultures."

The three guides are enjoying the work.

"But," says Margaret, "although most people are genuinely interested there is still the small number who don't really feel that we're all part of the human race — all homo sapiens.

'KID THEM ALONG'

Rod will return home in late June to do some commercial fishing with his grandfather. His place will be taken by Jim Nicholas, a Cree Indian from Manitoba.

He and Margaret are amused by comments made by some of the American tourists.

"They keep telling us we're very different from their Indians. They don't seem to realize that we don't have geographical borders — we're all North American Indians."

DEEP MEANING

All three are eager to see the temporary Indian display made into a permanent exhibit.

Rod said such things as dancers' capes and masks have deep, fundamental meaning that, at present, is not brought out.

Their two weeks at the museum have given assurance to the trio that a real effort is being made to restore their people's culture to its former greatness.

Driver Fined $950 After Chase

Robert J. Devine, 719 Princess Street, was convicted of driving with a blood-alcohol content of over .08 per cent and was fined $350 for that offence; of dangerous driving, $300; of driving with no valid insurance on his vehicle, $250; and of driving without a valid driver's licence, $50.

Police testified they chased Devine's car along Lansdowne after observing the car being driven in an erratic manner. The car was weaving in and out of heavy traffic, court was told, and Devine's car barely avoided sideswiping another vehicle.

His car reached speeds of up to 75 m.p.h., police said.

When Devine was stopped, his breathalyzer reading was .11 per cent and he was found to have no insurance or licence.

Court was told Devine had previous convictions on traffic offences, including impaired driving and driving with no licence or insurance. He had been fined $350 in March of 1969.

Devine told the court he had never owned a driver's licence.

He pleaded guilty to the four charges today and Judge William Ostler allowed him time to make payments on the fines.

Female Inequality Denied by Unionist

Women enjoy equal rights with men in most British Columbia contracts, a union spokesman said today.

Statistics in a provincial labor department survey, which showed 95.1 per cent of contracts contain no equal pay provision, are "misleading," said Bill Apps, B.C. representative of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Transport and General Workers and chairman of the B.C. Federation of Labor's human rights committee.

"The report indicates that if it is not in the contract, females do not have equal rights. It is only where there are two rates, for example Male $3 and hour and Female $2 an hour — that's discrimination," he said.

Asked if there are such examples of different pay rates for the same work, Apps said "You might find some, but they are disappearing. In most agreements women enjoy equal rights."

He said in the CBRT's railway contracts covering 19,000 workers, women "have always enjoyed equal pay and rights and can compete for any jobs on seniority."

He said there is no clause stipulating equal pay for equal work, but there was no provision of a lesser rate for female workers.

"In our contracts there is a rate for positions and no mention of male or female. You'll never see in any of our railway agreements Male or Female," he said.

In hotel agreements, he said there is a rate for waitresses, for example, but it was a rate for a position and not for women.

The CBRT did not have an equal-pay clause because it is not necessary because positions are covered, he said.

VANCOUVER CLOSE

MONDAY

MARKET SUMMARIES

Small Gain in Toronto

After opening sharply on the downside the New York exchange did an about-face and, near the close of business, was down only 2.74.

Toronto was fractionally higher in moderate trade.

AT TORONTO, volume by 2 p.m. was 1.88 million shares, up from 1.62 at the same time Monday.

Strongest sectors were communications, pipelines and industrial mining.

Among rising issues, Falconbridge was up 2 to $120, Union Oil 1 to $46, Cominco ½ to $22⅜, Northgate ½ to $10, Bethlehem ⅜ to $16¾ and Pan Ocean ¼ to $18⅝.

MacLaren A was up ½ to $18½, Home A ¼ to $30⅛, Imperial Oil ⅜ to $22¾, Crush International ⅛ to $19⅛ and International Utilities ¼ to $40⅝.

AT NEW YORK, analysts attributed the buying interest to bargain hunting. They noted that the same negative background factors that depressed the market Monday remained — the rail strike, the balance of payments deficit, and rising short-term interest rates.

Big board prices included Telex, up ⅜ to $18⅛; Shell Oil, off ⅛ to $45½; and Control Data, up 2¾ to $69½.

AT MONTREAL, industrials returned to the plus side.

Combined volume on th Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges at 1 p.m. was 707,000 shares compared with 888,300 at the same time Monday.

Highlighting losses on the Montreal Stock Exchange, B.C. Telephone was down ½ to $67½, N.B. Telephone ⅝ to $14, Rio Algom ⅝ to $18⅛, GenStar ½ to $11¼ and Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas ½ to $44¾.

AT LONDON the market was slightly firmer.

Unilever gained nearly 16 pence on the interim figures and Beechams and ICI also advanced, but EMI, Rank Organization and Plessey were easier on balance. Reed International extended Monday's gain and Hawker Siddeley also moved ahead, but IOS issues eased.

Canadians were easier. Dome, Bow Valley, Pacific Pete, Hudson Bay Oil and Gas, Imperial, Canadian Husky, Gulf, Canadian Pacific, Hollinger, Hiram Walker, Alcan, Trans Canada Pipeline, Brascan, Power Corp., Algoma, Price Brothers and Inco were all lower but Tara Exploration and Northgate firmed against the trend.

AT VANCOUVER trading was moderate and prices were mixed. Pre-noon volume was 1,540,754 shares.

The leading industrial was Captain International, up .12½ at $8.12½ on a volume of 7,895 shares. Block Brothers was unchanged at $4.20 and Port Comm was unchanged at $1.00.

Futurity lead the oils, up .02 at .46 after a turnover of 67,800 shares. Ballinderry was up .05 at $1.40 and Allied Roxana was unchanged at .70.

Bathurst lead the way in the mines, up .11 at $2.33 after trading 85,800 shares. Texacol was up .05 at .80 and Larange was up .06 at .73.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

Flax and rapeseed, which were down as much as three cents, had fairly heavy hedge offerings, which were moderately taken by exporters on a scale-down pattern.

Oats and barley were fairly steady with some commercial buying. Rye had fractionally lower prices on commission house liquidation and some intermonth spreading.

Volume of trade Monday included 611,000 bushels of flax, 812,000 of rapeseed and 680,000 of rye.

CHICAGO — Soybean and corn futures came under heavy liquidation on the Board of Trade today, both declining around 2 cents a bushel.

Losses were heavier earlier in the session. Corn had fallen 3⅛ cents and soybeans 2¾ cents. Wheat and oats futures also closed on a generally lower tone. Soybean oil futures fell around 30 points but meal was irregular.

Rain in sections of the south and midwest were a factor in the selling of new crop corn and soybeans futures. The liquidation, however, was heaviest in the nearby May option, which expires at noon today. Trade in the two major pits was fairly active and mixed. The railway strike did not appear to have had much effect on prices, although there was some concern that the lack of movement of grain to terminals by rail would be felt.

KOSYGIN . . . meeting

BUILD PIPELINE IN SIBERIA

Russia Seeks Canada's Help

By JOHN MIKA
Times Ottawa Bureau

MOSCOW — Russia wants Canadian help in developing the technology for building giant-size gas pipelines for Arctic use and also would like to see Canadian businessmen develop services and factories in the U.S.S.R.

These were two areas of mutual interest explored by Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin and Prime Minister Trudeau in their first discussion here today.

Canadian participants at the meeting later told reporters that Kosygin's opening statement during the 2¾-hour talks raised the desirability of Canadian-Soviet co-operation in overcoming shared problems like transport of gas and oil in permafrost areas.

He said Russia was well advanced toward building outsize pipe far larger than anything being developed in the U.S. and Canadian exchange of information under the technological and industrial applications agreement signed here by the two countries in January would be welcomed.

The Canadian mission in January expressed great interest in Russian work towards developing a 96-inch pipe for natural gas and Kosygin's reference to such work indicates the Russians will exchange information on this subject.

The Canadian contribution likely would be in the field of large pipeline compressor pump in technology in which it is recognizably ahead of the Soviets.

The sources said that Kosygin did not mention oil pipeline technology for permafrost conditions but this likely would be involved in swapping information.

The Russians have only begun to lay pipe in permafrost which covers a much smaller proportion of their Arctic region compared with Canada — and are known to have an experimental test loop in Siberia much bigger than the Canadian test pipeline in Inuvik.

A Canadian Gas Association private mission went to Russia last July hoping to examine the permafrost oil lines but instead were only shown the projected route along the River Ob of a new 56-inch natural gas pipeline which would be the biggest built so far. However, they were keenly interested in the work going on for designing a 96-inch pipe.

Canadian Bechtel Ltd. has begun discussions directly with the Soviet ministry of gas which supervises design and construction of all pipelines in the U.S.S.R. They have reported U.S.S.R. permafrost pipeline knowledge is very advanced.

Cooper-Bessemer Canadian Ltd. has opened negotiations for sale of large pipeline compressors to the Soviets and Trans-Canada Pipe Lines has begun talks towards a deal for designing some phases of oil and gas pipeline construction in Russia.

Kosygin today also stressed that Russia would like to see Canadian private companies as well as the government consider opportunities to balance trade between the two countries which is lopsidedly in favor of Canada. In the past five years, largely as a result of wheat sales, Canada exported some $15 billion to Russia while only importing $70 million.

The sources said the Soviet premier mentioned that it would be helpful if Canadian business set up plants in Russia with the capital investment paid off through exports.

The goods-for-factories arrangements undoubtedly would need Ottawa co-operation but the Soviet stress on the idea bodes well for a greatly intensified willingness by Moscow to make deals with private businessmen which has been frowned on in the past.

The Soviets now are actively negotiating for purchase of two miniature submarines, for $3 million, from International Hydrodynamics Ltd. of Vancouver.

Because of Canadian leadership in pulp and paper technology, the Soviets specified that a Canadian consultant must be used by a French consortium which has been asked to build a 1,600-tons-daily pulp mill at Ust Ilimsk with French government credits.

Sandwell Engineering of Vancouver was chosen.

TRUDEAU . . . in Moscow

KOSYGIN'S DAUGHTER ESCORTS MARGARET

She was shown through the Tretyakov art gallery by gallery director Polikarp Lebedev, expressing particular interest in icons — mosaics of sacred personages — and late 19th and early 20th-century paintings by Soviet artists Levitan and Serov.

U.S. Senate Moves To Halt Rail Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate labor committee approved 13 to 1 today a resolution designed to halt, until Oct. 1, the United States-wide rail strike called by the signalman's union.

The committee acted as the strike sent mounting ripples of paralysis through much of the U.S. economy for the second day and posed the threat of hitting thousands of Canadian auto workers unless it is settled soon.

A spokesman for Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. said production will cease by the end of the week if the strike continues to cut the flow of U.S. parts.

A shutdown of Ford plants at Talbotville, Oakville, Windsor and Niagrara Falls would afect 13,000 auto-workers.

The Kellogg Co. of Battle Creek shut down today idling some 3,000 employees in Michigan and the Quaker Oats Co. told 500 employees at its Cedar Rapids, Iowa, plant not to report due to rail strike.

Some 300,000 commuters awoke to another day's scramble for alternative transportation — usually buses or car pools — and the post office department invoked contingency plans to keep the mail moving.

Produce and citrus growers in Texas and Florida watched as tons of their perishable products piled up on rail sidings and in terminals.

Sponsors of the Senate resolution said they hoped it could clear the Senate in a few hours and then be reconciled later in the day with House of Represenatives legislation, and sent on to President Nixon.

The committee included in its resolution an approximate 17 per cent wage increase for the 13,000 members of the signalmen's union.

The president had proposed a simple extension of the no-strike period to July 1 without any wage increase.

But members of the Senate labor committee decided that the men should receive an interim wage increase since they had been working 22 months without one. The wage increase included in the committee's resolution covers the first three steps of a wage package recommended by an emergency board.

SECORD . . . flees Americans

Canada to Protest B.C. Boat Chase

(Times News Services)

VANCOUVER — The Canadian government will protest to American authorities about harassment of a Canadian fishing vessel for 12 hours Sunday on the northern B.C. coast.

Maurice Houghton, chief of conservation at the federal fisheries branch here, said the Canadian halibut vessel Anthony J. was fishing in Canadian waters — below the B.C.-Alaska boundary in the northern part of the Dixon Entrance — "when the U.S. Coast Guard moved in and tried to superimpose their authority in an area that was out of their jurisdiction."

'Serious Incident'

The fisheries officer also said the cutter radioed the Anthony J and Canadian fisheries officials that they were considering firing across the bow of the fishboat.

"This is quite a serious international incident," said Houghton.

"The American vessel was illegally in Canadian waters and was not authorized to perform as if did," he said.

A spokesman for the federal fisheries department in Ottawa said the department is investigating details of the complaint, but that it appears the vessel was in Canadian waters and a protest will be launched.

Coast guard authorities at Ketchikan and Juneau, Alaska's capital, refused to enlarge on official reports of the incident and said the U.S. state department is looking into the matter.

A U.S. Coast Guard spokesman reported Monday that the Canadian vessel was spotted in waters near Cape Chacon at Prince of Wales Island within 2½ miles of U.S. territory, off the Alaska Panhandle.

Well-Known Fishing Family

The skipper of the Cape Romain ordered the Anthony J. to follow it into Ketchikan, Alaska. The Anthony J.'s captain, Jack Secord, indicated he would comply but suddenly cut his fishing gear and steamed toward Prince Rupert.

The coast guard's attempt to capture Anthony J. was hampered by another Canadian fishing vessel, the Masset Maid, which made several passes within 50 yards of the cutter.

Cartwright was skippering the seiner Roselinde and Richie the Nanceda in the same area at the time of the incident. Denver is skipper of the Secord I, currently fishing on the east coast.

DRUG NET CLOSES ON 59 IN VANCOUVER

VANCOUVER (CP) — City police and RCMP began a roundup here today of 59 persons named on warrants as suspected drug traffickers.

By 9 a.m., 11 suspects had been arrested as a result of information gathered during four months of separate undercover operations by both police forces.

U.S. Investment In CDC Urged

OTTAWA (CP) — The executive council of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce says the proposed new Canada Development Corp., a government planned investment company, should not be too exclusively Canadian.

A council submission today to the Commons finance committee says rules should permit up to one-quarter of the corporation's shares to be owned by non-Canadians.

The corporation should also follow a policy of joint ownership with major foreign companies rather than a policy of Canadian exclusivity.

The government has said that one aim of the new corporation would be to promote Canadian ownership of Canadian industry.

Financed at first by federal funds, corporation shares eventually would be offered for sale to the general Canadian public.

The Canadian Chamber of Commerce opposed the whole idea of such a corporation in a policy statement last September.

But since the government introduced legislation anyway in January, the chamber's executive drew up a 24-page booklet of criticism and proposed changes for presentation to the finance committee.

B.C. TRUSTEES GET SCHOOL DRESS ROW

A proposal that school dress be left up to the discretion of parents has been sent to the British Columbia School Trustees' Association by the Greater Victoria School Board.

Present policy in the Victoria area gives the responsibility for rules on school dress to principals.

The issue was raised by trustee Peter Bunn who said he felt it was wrong for a principal to tell mothers what clothes to buy their children to wear to school.

In other business, school board referred to committee a proposal to ban the strap in the Greater Victoria school district. See Page 7.

Chanters March Toward Lava Flow

SANT'ALFIO, Sicily (Reuter) — About 2,000 Sicilian villagers, led by a parish priest carrying relics of their patron saints, marched today in procession up Mount Etna to a huge, moving mass of lava threatening to engulf their homes.

The cries of wailing women drowned the rumbling of the black mass of volcanic rock as Rev. Francesco Parisi held up the reliquary and called on the saints to halt the lava in its tracks.

The villagers, chanting the rosary, wound their way through terraced vineyards about two miles from this prosperous farming village until they reached the smoking column of advancing lava.

As they left the village a new explosion roared out from high on the mountain peak, sending a thick black column of smoke and ashes pouring 4,500 feet into the air.

4 Members of Family Drown Off Vesuvius

Searchers on Salt Spring Island were today still looking for a Duncan man whose wife and two children died of exposure after their small boat swamped Sunday in rough seas off Vesuvius Bay.

They identified the mother as Yuet Han Patsy Salter, 32, of 3324 Gibbons Road. The children are a son, Waj Kwok Fong, 10, and a daughter, Wai Sze Fong, 11.

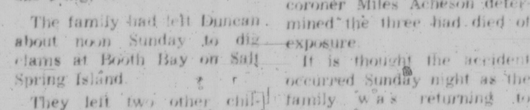
The bodies were found about 7:30 a.m. Monday, washed up on the shore in Vesuvius Bay by Mrs. Ruth Heineky, of Goodrich Street, who was out for a walk.

All three were wearing life-jackets. Their 12-foot clinker-built boat, powered by an outboard, was upside down 75 yards away.

INQUIRY

At the preliminary inquiry held Monday night Ganges coroner Miles Acheson determined the three had died of exposure.

It is thought the accident occurred Sunday night as the family was returning to Duncan.



Guess it's hard fer a Canadian fishboat t' remember which country it's workin' fer.

COMPANIES GOING BROKE; PEOPLE RICH

Ibo Soothsayer Beats Soccer Pools

By GODWIN IRONKWE

ENUGU, Nigeria (Reuter) — Amazingly accurate forecasts by an Ibo soothsayer have thrown soccer pools companies here into a turmoil as more and more people win big money prizes on the basis of his predictions.

It was not certain whether the soothsayer, Ubani O. Ubani, a 41-year-old schoolteacher, is really a genius or just a plain opportunist. Others are selling their meagre property to raise betting stakes.

At present only Ubani really knows what he is. And he has gone into hiding as a storm of inquiry blows around east-central state, home of the Ibo tribe, impoverished by Nigeria's 37-month-long civil war.

But from his hideout he did tell a reporter:

He did not say who "their" was and seemed to imply some kind of spiritual power.

Either way, he has brought a financial boost to thousands and a major headache to the soccer pools companies.

The sudden rise to fame of Ubani, who gave up schoolteaching to become a pools' agent, began only in March when he forecast correctly five drawn matches for a fixed-odds bet on the pools coupons on which people place their bets.

He placed the forecast for all to see on a notice board in front of his one-room apartment office in a city suburb.

At this stage only a few people used the forecast to stake their bets. But they won big dividends.

For two more weeks running, Ubani's forecasts were stunningly accurate and the news spread quickly round the state.

For the fourth week running, his forecast was right on target and pools experts said that nearly $1.3 million was won, creating financial difficulties for the smaller pools companies.

Some announced they were withholding payments on the grounds of possible "irregularities."

A potentially explosive crisis loomed and anti-riot police were brought into Enugu to disperse angry mobs trying to attack pools offices. Most betting houses were given guards.

At the height of the crisis, Ubani disappeared from his home and still is in hiding, visited only by relations and close friends.

From the hideout, Ubani, who says he never bets himself, said: "I am set to provide funds to rehabilitate the Ibos."

CHINA BUILDING OWN JET FIGHTER

Up to now China has concentrated on producing planes from Russian blueprints obtained before the schism between the two countries in the early 1960s ended their military co-operation.

The new plane, designated the F-9 by American analysts, is a twin-jet fighter roughly based on the MiG-19 design, but said to be considerably advanced, and different in several important aspects from Soviet aircraft.

Sources say China is velieved to be turning out the F-9 at a rate of about 10 a month.

The F-9 is said to fly at more than twice the speed of sound — roughly 1,400 miles an hour — with a combat radius of 300 to 500 miles. That means it could fly from its base to a point 300 to 500 miles away, engage in combat operations there, and then return home without refueling.

It is said to be 50 feet long, with a 32-foot wing spread, and to weigh about 22,000 pounds. It is reported to be equipped to carry rapid-fire 30-mm machine-guns, bombs, rockets and air-to-ground missiles.

Previously China has produced MiG-19 and MiG-19 fighters, the TU 16 medium bomber, MiG-15 and Yak-18 trainers, MI-4 helicopters and AN-2 biplanes, all from Russian blueprints, sources say.
